Arabs Set to Invade Holy Land; U. N. Acts To Save Jerusalem

King Abdullah To Lead 4 Armies In by Saturday, Dispatches Say

Jerusalem, April 26 (AP).—The regular armies of Trans-Jordan, Syria, Lebanon and Egypt will launch an invasion of Palestine by Saturday, advices reaching Jerusalem said tonight.

A dispatch from Amman, capital of Trans-Jordan, said King Abdullah personally will take the field against the Jews at the head of the armies of Trans-Jordan, Syria and Lebanon."

Moving with him will be Egyptian army units which will cross the Holy Land's southern frontier in a coordinated action. The Egyptian command will be closely allied to Abdullah, it was said.

Arab informants in Cairo said Iraq and Saudi Arabia also have decided to throw their regular military forces into the fight to prevent the Jews from establishing a state of their own in the Holy Land.

Reportedly Alarmed

Arab leaders reportedly are alarmed by the extent of recent Jewish military successes. Arab peoples in the Middle East have been inflamed by the arrival of Arab refugees from Palestine.

An invasion of the Holy Land by regular army troops would defy the British mandate which is not scheduled to end until May 15 and the United Nations Security Council which has ordered a truce in Palestine.

The Cairo accounts said King Abdullah already has dispatched reinforcements of Trans-Jordan's Arab legion to Palestine.

The 15,000 legionnaires are well disciplined troops. British trained and adequately equipped, they are regarded as superior to the Arab volunteer forces which thus far have engaged the Jews in the Holy Land. Approximately 10,000 legionnaires already are in Palestine on security duty with the British.

Occupy Alamein Camp

The accounts telling of the massing of Arab armies on Palestine's boundaries came as 500 Arab volunteers rushed into strategic Alamein camp on the southern edge of Jerusalem and occupied it without firing a shot.

The volunteers made their move as the last elements of the British Suffolk Regiment pulled out. Members of Haganah, the Jewish militia, were deployed on two sides of the camp, but never had a chance

Threaten to Set Up Own State; Possible Use of Marines Hinted

Lake Success, N. Y., April 26 (U.P.).—The Arabs of Palestine served notice on the United Nations today they would set up an independent Arab state in Palestine May 15 unless the U. N. guaranteed them control of the Holy Land at a fixed future date.

Faced with a similar threat by the Jews of Palestine and the prospect of all-out civil war in the Holy Land 19 days from now, the U. N. General Assembly ordered the trusteeship council to draft emergency steps to protect the city of Jerusalem and its shrines.

Could Involve Marines

The move, approved 47 to 0, with the Russian bloc and Costa Rica abstaining, could conceivably lead to use of American Marines now with the Mediterranean fleet, as part of a police force for Jerusalem.

Jamal el Husseini of the Arab Higher Committee, a cousin of the Grand Mufti of Jerusalem, told the 58 members of the General Assembly Political Committee the Arabs of Palestine would NOT consider the American trusteeship formula unless it was intended to give Palestine to the Arabs after "a short and fixed period."

Husseini said the League of Nations mandate specifically provided it should be succeeded by an independent Palestinian government.

Abdullah is a political rival of Husseini and the Mufti.

The General Assembly moved with unusual speed to devise emergency measures to protect Jerusalem.

France, envisaged hiring of a volunteer army to guard Jerusalem, but an American delegation spokesman suggested the U. N. might decide to call on American Marines serving with the Mediterranean fleet as well as British and French units in the area.

No Mention of Soviet Troops

He significantly made no mention of using Russian troops as part of a U. N. force in Jerusalem.

Following the Assembly vote, the president of the trusteeship council, Frascis B. Sayre of the United States, lost no time in calling a council session for tomorrow morning.

British Delegate Arthur Creech Jones indicated his country also favored use of already-activated national units when he expressed the opinion that a volunteer force would be "impractical" at this late date.

Tour Planned For Most of German Art

Gurney Says Proposal Reported Satisfactory To Homeland Leaders

The dispute over disposition of the 202 German paintings appeared resolved yesterday in a compromise plan to send most of them on an American tour.

Chairman Chan Gurney (R., S. Dak.) of the Armed Services Committee said he understood the idea was satisfactory to German leaders in the American zone. If it is not the whole plan would be off, he said.

Gurney announced that his committee voted unanimously yesterday to advise Secretary of the Army Kenneth Royall of the idea. The recommendation was made by a subcommittee headed by Senator Wayne Morse (R., Oreg.).

The proposal is to return the art masterpieces in four equal installments beginning immediately. The first 25 per cent to go—about 50—would be the most fragile. The rest would go on display with additional quarter-installments being returned three months apart. Thus, all would be back in German hands in nine months.

The paintings already being crated yesterday at the National Gallery, where they ended a 5½-week exhibition Sunday and drew 964,970 visitors.

An Army official said he expected Royall to approve the plan shortly and that the first batch could be on its way overseas in about two weeks.

It was understood that gallery officials already had selected the most fragile for first crating in anticipation of the proposal announced by Gurney.

Gurney said proceeds from the tour would go to the German Children Relief Fund. German art curators would be invited here to help care for the treasures during the tour.

If the plan goes through, Gurney added, there would be no need for legislation such as the pending House and Senate bills authorizing a tour across the country. It was not immediately clear how many cities would be visited. However, it was generally conceded that they would not be shown further in Washington.

Jews Suggest Peace Talks to Abdullah

Jerusalem, Palestine, April 26 (U.P.).—King Abdullah of Trans-Jordan has demanded that Arabs be given sovereignty in Palestine after Britain lays down its mandate May 15, it was disclosed tonight.

The Jewish agency in Palestine, on the basis of the demand, telegraphed Abdullah asserting peace can be achieved only by tolerance and under standing at a conference by responsible men on both sides.

Abdullah sent his note to British High Commissioner Gen. Sir Alan Cunningham, who replied he would forward it to the British government in London.

Doctor Must Stay On Case to End, Court Declares

Richmond, Va., April 26 (AP).—A physician once engaged in a case must continue to attend his patient "as long as his services are needed," the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals held today.

"He cannot voluntarily abandon his patient," the State's high court ruled in affirming a $25,000 judgment awarded by the Norfolk Law and Chancery Court against Dr. Foy Vann, Norfolk doctor.

Dr. Vann was sued by Arthur Gardner Harden, 18, and his father, Ernest H. Harden, jr., on a charge of negligence which they contended was responsible for amputation of the boy's leg. Evidence in the case indicated that Dr. Vann had left the city while the youth's injured leg was in a cast. During this time, the Hardens contended, complications developed which necessitated amputation of the leg.

"Even if personal attention is no longer necessary in the treatment of an injured limb," the court ruled, "the physician, if the case calls for it must furnish the patient with instructions as to its care and his failure to do so might become actionable negligence."

House Passes Daylight Saving Bill

It's Now Possible For District to Get Summer Time at 2 A. M. Next Sunday

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

The House voted 204 to 92 yesterday to let Washington have daylight saving time again this summer.

House approval pushed the daylight saving bill so close to final passage that it became theoretically possible for officials involved to order the District's clocks advanced one hour at 2 a. m. Sunday.

Whether the District that quickly will join major neighboring cities which made the time change last weekend may hinge on a meeting today of the District Commissioners. They are slated to discuss plans for making the time change. Their order is required to put daylight saving into effect once the bill becomes law. Last year, the Commissioners acted after a public hearing. It is up to the Commissioners to decide whether they want to hold a hearing.

The daylight saving bill must go back to the Senate which meets again Wednesday. There, District leaders are expected to ask Senate approval of the House version of the bill, to speed the measure to the White House. The President's signature would be required before the Commissioners could issue their order.

Senate-House Differences

Chief difference between the House and Senate versions of the bill is that the House voted, as Congress did last year, to permit daylight saving time in Washington for this summer only, while the Senate had voted to let the Commissioners put daylight saving time into effect every summer.

House District Chairman Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.) steered the bill to House passage.

Dirksen told the House the bill should be approved because the people of the District want it, because other large areas and major cities have it, and because the people of Washington ought to be allowed to have it.

"We ought to conform here to the other communities to eliminate and avoid unnecessary confusion," said Dirksen. "A substantial part of the country went on daylight saving time Sunday. Here you find confusion on the radio, you find it in train schedules, you find it in bank clearances and market reports, you find it everywhere."

He said daylight saving time would be given "in the spirit of a little bit of home rule."

Called a Delusion

Representative Joseph P. O'Hara (R., Minn.) opposed daylight saving time here as a "delusion." He said, "if New York and Philadelphia want it, that's their business, but everything we do here in the Nation's Capital affects the people of the Nation."

O'Hara's District subcommittee had first acted to move the bill to the House, over his vote against the bill.

First House decision on the bill came with a standing vote of 41 to 21 for it. Then Representative H. Carl Andersen (R., Minn.) protested that the vote did not show a quorum. His objection made the roll call automatic.

Oleo Taxes Repeal Vote Is Forced

Count of 235-121 In Committee Test Virtually Assures Passage by House

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Butter took a double drubbing in the House yesterday.

1. Ninety-four Republicans joined with Southern Democrats to force a vote on the controversial bill to repeal all Federal taxes on margarine.

2. An Armed Services Subcommittee voted unanimously to let the Army, Navy and Air Force use margarine as they see fit. It instructed its chairman, Representative Jack Z. Anderson (R., Calif.) to draft a bill to repeal all laws barring the use of margarine in the armed services.

After voting 235 to 121 to discharge the Agriculture Committee from further consideration of margarine tax legislation, the House engaged in a free-for-all on the bill itself. The vote virtually assures passage when the measure comes up again Wednesday.

Threatened by Knutson

High point in the debate came when Chairman Harold Knutson (R., Minn.) of the powerful Ways and Means Committee, threatened Southern members with retaliation by Republicans from the Dairy Belt if the present 10-cents-a-pound tax on colored margarine is repealed. The bill also would remove a quarter-cent tax on uncolored margarine and licenses on manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers.

Knutson declared textile prices too high, and blamed the prices on import quotas on short staple cotton.

"We're going to do something about that," he shouted, "and I'm on the committee to do it."

Knutson and Representative L. Mendel Rivers (R., S. C.) author of the repeal measure, tangled over this threat.

"You didn't talk that way when you wanted us to vote your way to override the tax cut veto," Rivers shouted.

"You voted right on that bill because your constituents demanded that you do so," was Knutson's comeback.

"My constituents are demanding that I vote for this bill, too," Rivers responded.

Turns on Republicans

Rivers changed his mind a moment later, when Knutson turned on the Republicans who signed the petition to discharge the Agriculture Committee.

"You Republican saps," Knutson shouted. "You poor Republican saps—"

Just then Knutson's time expired. Rivers jumped to his feet, and announced:

"I'll yield the gentlemen two minutes of my time when he talks that way."

Knutson took the additional time to continue his tirade against his fellow GOP members.

"The New Deal Congress had 16 years to do something about this, but it was too hot for them. I want to pay my compliments to you saps."

Then turning to the Southern members, Knutson shouted:

"If we go down we'll pull you down with us."

Both sides charged the other with trying to perpetrate a fraud.

Speakers Can't Hide Ghosts At U. S. Chamber Meeting

THE 36TH ANNUAL MEETING of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce here this week is in keeping with the times. It has boomed all over this town. Hotels are jammed and bars are primed for a record business.

More than 3000 men and women from all parts of the country have checked in at the U. S. Chamber building, which looks across Lafayette Park to the White House. Some 400 requests for tickets to the Thursday night finale dinner have already been turned down. And the big meeting on foreign policy, with Secretary of State Marshall as the principal speaker, was transferred from the Chamber's own auditorium (seating capacity 1000), to the ballroom at the Hotel Statler (seating capacity 1500).

Livingston

The ostensible reason for coming to a chamber annual meeting is the program. A man wants to be enlightened, doesn't he? He wants to learn what others think about business conditions, the cost of government, international affairs, and prices. All those subjects are on the agenda.

BUT THE REAL lure is old friends—seeing Jim Jones, whom you met at the 1943 convention in New York, or John Smith, whom you roomed with in college and who always tries to take in these meetings. Also, you want to make new contacts. That's why the bars do such a rushing business. Men—and women—seem to get acquainted better holding a glass with a tinkle in it. So, usually there are as many, if not more, persons outside of meeting as in them.

Going to a Chamber of Commerce meeting is a bit like going to the movies. You go once and you have an inclination to go again. You go again and you've developed a habit. The wives like a junket every now and then, too. Some 500 women are attending this year's proceedings, a record number.

The chamber's annual meeting differs from most trade association get-togethers. The National Association of Manufacturers, for instance, consists of manufacturers primarily; the National Retail Dry Goods Association comprises retailers, and so on for the other trade groups. But the chamber spread-eagles the business community, embracing bankers, manufacturers, insurance men, wholesalers, retailers, truckers, railroadmen and so on. So you meet a

19 D.C. Department Heads Give Workers Clean Loyalty Bill

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

Heads of 19 key District government departments yesterday gave their employes a clean bill of health on loyalty.

The officials, polled by The Washington Post, declared unanimously that they do not have any loyalty problem in their department, nor have they ever had one. They represent the bulk of the 17,000 District workers.

In addition, 18 of the group declared that they had no reason to suspect the loyalty of workers in any other District departments. One official, Arthur R. Pilkerton, District auditor, said he remembered a situation eight years ago when the loyalty of a few workers was checked by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

However, whe nit came to comments on the proposed District government loyalty check, 8 of the 19 interviewed said they would not comment, another 5 were undecided, 3 felt it was a "good thing," 2 thought it "unnecessary" and another declared, "Let the FBI do it."

Department heads interviewed included those presiding over agencies which are important in the functioning of the District government. And also those involved in protecting the security

U. S., Britain Have Joint Plan To Meet Sudden Soviet Blow

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

The United States and Great Britain now have a joint plan of action ready in case of sudden attack by Russia in Berlin or elsewhere, The Washington Post learned yesterday.

The plan was approved by the Combined Chiefs of Staff during a secret visit to Washington earlier this month by Lieut. Gen. Sir Leslie Hollis, deputy military secretary of the British cabinet.

Until Hollis' visit, the two wartime allies had not agreed on a coordinated plan, although in each country the Chiefs of Staff had separate plans for meeting sudden trouble.

The Combined Chiefs of Staff, a survival of Anglo-American cooperation in wartime, had been meeting only once a month, and then in more or less routine fashion. The American and British commanders in Berlin had been in close and constant touch, but had evolved little more than a plan for coping with a local situation.

Now, however, the combined chiefs as an institution has come back to life, and an emergency next week or next month would find the Americans and British acting as one. Few authorities in either country regard an immediate crisis as probable, but it is the job of military staffs to be ready for anything.

The short-term emergency plan of the combined chiefs is distinct from long-term plans, not yet worked out, for (1) an American commitment to guarantee western Europe against aggression; (2) American military staff consultation and cooperation with the western European staffs, and (3) American military supplies for France and perhaps other western European countries.

Negotiations for a formal American commitment will be slow in starting, and for two main reasons. In the first place, the executive branch of the Government would not dream of starting negotiations without learning what congressional leaders would be willing to approve—a process that is now under way.

Members of both parties in Congress applauded loudly on March 17 when President Truman welcomed the Brussels union of five countries—the United Kingdom, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg—and said

2 Nazi U-Boat Saboteurs Now Are Free

Pair Who Aided FBI Back in Germany On U. S. Probation

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Ernest Burger and George Dasch, Nazi saboteurs who landed from a U-boat on the East Coast in 1942, intent on crippling American industry, have been released from Federal prisons and sent back to Germany.

The two men, part of a Nazi wrecking crew of eight, gave Federal Bureau of Investigation agents full details of the plot. Their six fellow saboteurs were executed.

Attorney General Tom C. Clark, in recommending to President Truman that he grant clemency to Burger and Dasch, mentioned their "services" to the United States, and said:

"It may . . . be desirable to indicate publicly that persons who have been employed by foreign powers for espionage or sabotage have everything to gain by disclosing details of the conspiracy to the proper officers of this Government."

The White House, in announcing that Burger and Dasch had been freed from Federal prisons and sent back to Germany, said:

"They will be permitted to reside in the American zone of occupation, under conditions imposed by the commanding general, European command."

A dispatch from Frankfurt late yesterday said the two men arrived in Germany several days ago by ship.

Burger and Dasch were landed from a submarine on Amagansett Beach, Long Island, N. Y., the night of June 13, 1942, together with Richard Quirin and Heinrich Heinck.

Four other Nazis were landed by the same method four days later at Ponte Vedra Beach, Fla. They were Herbert Hans Haupt, Edward John Kerling, Werner Thiel and Herman Otto Neubauer.

All eight were subsequently rounded up by FBI agents in Chicago and New York City.

Negroes Ban Advisory Unit For Military

Proposal Is Rejected Because of Continued Segregation in Services

Members of a National Defense Conference on Negro Affairs, held yesterday at the Pentagon, refused to form a permanent racial relations advisory committee to the armed services, as long as segregation continues in the military forces.

Following an all-day session with defense chiefs, the group of Negro leaders revealed that the Army still stood firm against any change in its segregation policy.

Spokesmen were critical of Army Secretary Kenneth Royall for what they called his "brick-wall attitude," as the meeting went on record that "segregation was a form of racial discrimination."

Navy's Attitude Praised

Following the morning session, Lester B. Granger, who served as chairman of the conference, praised what he called the Navy's more liberal stand. Granger, secretary of the National Urban League said it was the only one of the services not "firmly supporting segregation."

Dr. John W. Davis, president of West Virginia State College Institute, said Air Force officials had taken the same stand as Army chiefs. He declared that Lieut. Gen. Idwal Edwards, USAF personnel director, told them that integration of white and Negro troops would be "unwise."

"That was an unwise statement," Davis added.

After the afternoon meeting, however, Granger said that Air Force officials said they were restudying the whole matter—and that General Edwards' stand had been misinterpreted.

Charles Houston, Washington attorney, said the "sense of the Air Force remarks appeared to show a desire to move toward integration." But, he added, there seemed to be no "blueprint for action" to carry out an integration plan.

"It seemed to be a pious hope but nothing concrete," Houston said.

Frankfurter's Negro Clerk To Be First in Court History

For the first time in the U. S. Supreme Court's 158-year history, one of its justices will have a Negro law clerk.

The clerk, 26-year-old William T. Coleman of Philadelphia, will come to work for Justice Frankfurter in September.

Coleman graduated at the top of his law class at Harvard University in October, 1946. For the past year he has been law clerk to Circuit Judge Herbert F. Goodrich at Philadelphia.

In line with a 66-year-old tradition, Harvard law school picks the law clerks for the justice who occupies the so-called "New England" chair on the high bench.

Frankfurter said the tradition began with Justice Gray, continued with Justices Holmes and Brandeis and now himself.

He said he gave the school only two qualifications to meet in selecting his law aide—"professional equipment and character." He also prefers that the aides serve one term under a Circuit Court judge before joining his staff.

Coleman interrupted his Harvard course to serve in the Army from 1943 to 1946. When the war ended. He was in training with the all-Negro 477th bomber squadron which was destined for Pacific duty.

He was married in 1945 and has a 1-year-old son.

The Supreme Court law clerks receive about $8000 a year.

Compromise Plan Provides for Duty In Regular Army Units Within U. S.

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Defense chiefs are proposing a one-year period of service for 18-year-old inductees under the modified universal military training program.

Officials at the Pentagon said yesterday that this period in uniform—double that under the Administration UMT plan—is required if any real benefit is to be derived from the compromise, "bargain-counter" plan.

Some 150,000 18-year-old youths would be drafted next year into the Regular Service—largely if not entirely into the Army—under the program as visualized last night at the defense offices.

After serving 12 months with combat divisions of the Army's "mobile reserve" in this country or with other regular units in the United States, they would be released from active duty upon signing up with the National Guard or a drilling reserve unit.

The idea—which originated with members of the Senate Armed Services Committee—is more a modification of the draft to include 18-year-olders than a UMT program.

Defense Secretary James Forrestal has backed it as a temporary—but only a temporary—substitute for UMT The latter had appeared certain of defeat at this session, until Senator Raymond Baldwin (R., Conn.) proposed the compromise. Aimed at building up the National Guard and reserves quickly, it can be accomplished within the present 1949 defense budget, officials say.

Main Features of Plan

Army Secretary Kenneth Royall is expected to present the committee this morning with a concrete plan to carry out the idea. Here are the main fetaures:

(1) One year of active service proposed instead of the six months planned under the UMT plan. Youths would be inducted into the Regular Service, not the civilian controlled "National Training Corps" contemplated under UMT.

(2) They would be drafted for service as well as training—not contemplated under UMT. While exempt from overseas duty, the 18 year olders would be assignde to regular combat or service units at home after taking basic training. That is why defense chiefs insist a year's service is necessary. They would not have the concentrated solid six months training planned under UMT.

(, By not setting up special UMT camps with separate instructors, a limited program can be accomplished within general appropriations for the Army, plus the half

Doctors Discover Year-Old Girl Immune to Pain

Akron, Ohio, April 26 (U.P.).—One year-old Beverly Smith will never feel pain regardless of how badly she may be injured, doctors disclosed today. It's useless to spank her and as long as she lives, she will never dread dentistry.

She never has felt pain and never is likely to, doctors say. She cries only when hungry or angry—never because of a pin prick or a tummy ache.

An attractive, bright child, doctors said she will lead a normal life except that she must be closely watched to see that she doesn't get seriously injured.

Doctors described Beverly's condition as a "developmental defect not a disease." It has no remedy.

Not until Beverly became anemic was her immunity to pain discovered.

"Once she laid her hand on a hot stove," her mother said, "and just looked at me and laughed."

For her anemia, doctors at Children's Hospital gave her a dee injection of liver extract. Usually a very painful treatment, Beverly "never even yipped."

A resident physician who had read of the other similar cases classified her ailment immediately.

Mrs. Smith has one other child. But Barbara, 3, feels pain.

Senators Sit Five Hours on O'Conor Case

A Senate Rules Subcommittee heard five hours of arguments yesterday and will meet to hear more Tuesday in the contested Maryland senatorial election.

Chairman Jenner (R., Ind.) said counsel for Senator O'Conor, Democrat, and D. John Markey, Republican, who brought the contest will be given their "full and final say." The committee will meet again at 2 p. m.(EST), Tuesday.

Markey charged election irregularities.

May Vote for Any Candidate

Richmond, Va., April 26 (AP).—Attorney General J. Lindsay Almond, jr., has ruled that Virginia Democratic officeseekers and voters may support any Democratic candidate for President they chose without violating their party pledges or jeopardizing their rights of voting in subsequent primaries.

But Martin A. Hutchinson of Richmond, liberal leader of Virginia Democrats, today was not satisfied with the ruling. He said Virginia Democrats who choose to vote for House and Senate candidates "other than those named by the Byrd organization" are still in the dark as to their party status.

The atorney general gave a decision "more notable for what it doesn't say than for what it says," Hutchinson said. He referred to Almond's ruling, isued Saturday, that "no Democrat is barred from participating in Democratic primaries after the 1948 presidential election, regardless of what presidential electors he may cast his ballot for in that election."

Thomas will oppose three Democrats, incumbents Rollies W. Hastings and Boyd E. McLernon and Henry H. Hanna.

Independents Rebuffed

Norfolk, Va., April 26 (AP).—George G. Martin, jr., and Victor J. Ashe, independent candidates for City Council, sought unsuccessfully today to file their petitions with Corporation Court Clerk W. L. Prieur, jr.

Prieur refused the petitions under instructions issued to him last week by Attorney General Almond, who ruled the April 13 filing deadline set forth in the State War voters Act takes precedence over the Norfolk City Charter deadline of May 8.

The other Council candidates, E. V. Griffin and incumbent George R. Abbott, filed their petitions April 13.

GOP Hopes To Adjourn By June 18

House Republican leaders said yesterday that barring a serious turn in the world situation Congress will complete its work and be ready to adjourn by June 17 or 18.

Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr., (R., Mass.) told reporters the form of the adjournment will be determined "by conditions at the time" but he personally favors an arrangement granting leaders separate authority to call Congress back.

There is some leadership sentiment, however, for a permanent, "sine die" adjournment unless international conditions worsen. House Majority Leader Charles A. Halleck (R., Ind.), for example, said he thought Congress should adjourn without strings, since the President has Constitutional authority to reconvene Congress in an emergency.

Republican leaders last session reserved themselves sepaiate authority to call Congress back, but never used it. It was the President who reconvened Congress to consider interim aid and his anti-inflation program.

Both House and Senate business meanwhile is being speeded up to meet the mid-June adjournment goal. House Republicans said there is an outside possibility Congress might complete its work the week ending June 12, but adjournment by June 18 is a "must." The Republican National convention opens in Philadelphia on June 21 and Democrats convene in the same city July 12. Unless the world picture changes, members would not return to Washington between conventions or in the ensuing campaign period.

King, Queen Cheered on Silver Jubilee

London, Aril 26 (AP).—King George VI and Queen Elizabeth celebrated their silver wedding jubilee today and demonstrations of affection from their subjects around the world.

The chief ceremony was a midday Thanksgiving service at St. Paul's Cathedral in London.

The royal couple drove in state to the Cathedral through miles of cheering, waving multitudes. Household cavalry in full dress escorted the gilded state coaches in the most lavish royal pageantry since the wedding of Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip last November.

Pope Sends Greetings

The King and Queen appeared on the balcony after the Cathedral ceremony, along with Elizabeth and Philip, Princess Margaret and Queen Mother Mary.

The King and Queen scores of greetings, including one from Pope Pius XII.

In the House of Commons Prime Minister Attlee expressed the hope that the King and Queen "may celebrate their golden wedding in a world from which war has been banished forever."

Winston Churchill noted the wish in his reply and added: "Although we shall not all of us be here to see it, that is a hope which we all cherish and share."

Visitors Crowd London

London's crowds were swelled by a mass of provincial visitors. An estimated 750,000 persons gathered before Buckingham Palace tonight and called the royal couple to the flood-lit balcony four times.

For the day ceremony, the 52-year-old King wore an admiral's uniform. The Queen, five years younger than her husband, wore a gray crepe dress, powdered blue cloak and hat. They were in high humor and responded radiantly to the roar of the throngs.

Princess Margaret, making her first state drive without her big sister at her side, wore a gown of forget-me-not blue silk. In a coach by themselves rode Princess Elizabeth and her husband—she in China blue silk and he in naval uniform.

House Oleo Vote Forced

Representative Ellsworth B. Buck (R., N. Y.) charged the butter lobby "tricked the Congress" 62 years ago when it got the taxes levied on margarine.

Chairman John Tabor of the Appropriations Committee, charged that some people "can't eat oleo unless it is colored like butter, so they can deceive themselves."

The Armed Services bill to permit margarine to be served in the Army and Navy, must now go before the full committee. The use of margarine as a spread for bread has been forbidden in the services for years.

Two Score in Fairfax Enter Democratic Convention Race

Two score persons had filed early last night as delegate candidates for the Fairfax County Democratic convention to be held May 10. Midnight was the deadline.

W. Franklin Gooding, Fairfax County Democratic chairman, said, however, any applications postmarked before last midnight would be accepted.

Convention delegates will be elected from among those filing at caucuses in the county's six magisterial districts next Monday. The district meetings will be held at 8 p. m. as follows: Centerville, Clifton School; Dranesville, Herndon Municipal Building; Falls Church, Baileys Crossroads Fire House; Lee, Burke School; Mount Vernon Groveton School; Providence, Oakton School.

Those elected at these meetings must file again with Gooding by May 7 if they want to be candidates as delegates to the State Democratic Convention in Richmond July 2. Fairfax will have 16 votes at the State convention.

Candidates who had filed as of early last night for convention delegates were:

J. W. Biggers, jr., Elma D. Brown, James Buckley, O. Kenneth Byerly, jr., James Byrnes, Andrew W. Clarke, L. M. Coyner, John A. K. Donovan, Walter N. Dowling, John W. Ferguson, Jean D. Freeman, Hubert J. Gerken, Franklin S. Gicken, jr., Lytton H. Gibson, Omar L. Hirst, John Koons, George C. Landreth, Robert C. Lowe, Edwin Lynch, Hugh B. Marsh, Robert J. McCandlish, jr., Carolyn Newcomb, Keith Price, Jesse J. Ramsey, W. F. P. Reid, C. B. Runyon, Mandley T. Rust, W. A. Sherman, Francis C. Straus, Rule J. O'Sullivan, Paul L. Sweeny, John E. Taylor, Alfred W. Truesz, John G. Turnbull, Edward K. Uhler, John C. Webb, Jean S. White, Anne A. Wilkins, Eleanor A. Morrow.

Delegates have been allotted to precincts in each district in the ratio nof 1 for every 25 votes cast for the 1945 Democratic gubernatorial candidate. Maximum number of delegates which can be elected is 64.

R. F. & P. Net Off 24%

Richmond, Va., April 26 (AP).—Dropping 24.5 per cent to a total of $2,548,917, the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac Railroad Co.'s net income for the year ended December 31, 1947, was off $828,005 from the previous year's total.

Maryland Voters to Pick 12 For Congress Race Monday

Baltimore, April 26 (AP).—Maryland voters will pick 12 nominees for Congress at party primaries May 3.

National issues will concern the voters only indirectly. No presidential candidate has filed in Maryland.

And—barring an unlikely success of Gen. Douglas MacArthur supporters to elect a slate of delegates—it is virtually certain that both Democrats and Republicans will send an uninstructed delegation to the national conventions.

The MacArthur adherents, led in Maryland by Tim Bright, hope to get enough of their candidates elected at the GOP primary to control the State convention.

But political observers regard such an upset a very remote possibility.

The four Democratic incumbents—Representatives Meade, Second District; Fallon, Fourth; Garmatz, Third; and Sasscer, Fifth—all have primary opposition.

The two GOP Congressmen, Representative Miller of the First and Beall of the Second District, are unopposed.

In the Second District, Baltimore County forces are pitted against city politicos. County men want to elect State Senator William P. Bolton, himself a county resident. But some city leaders as well as former Representative H. Street Baldwin are backing Incumbent Meade.

Jack Pollack, Fourth District Democratic organization leader, also has come out for Meade, a fact that caused consternation among several Second District Democratic groups who see in it an attempt at "invading" their territory.

But Pollack's main front lies in his own, Fourth District, where he is backing former State OPA Director Leo H. McCormick. McCormick seeks the nomination against Incumbent Fallon, who has been associated with the Democratic faction bossed by William Curran.

Amity Rules Meeting Of European ommission

Geneva, Switzerland, April 26 (AP).—The iron curtain was forgotten temporarily today as the third sessoin of the Economic Commission for Europe opened in an atmosphere of East-West cordiality.

The meeting, however, was confined to a few speeches and the election of officers. Strong political dissension, especially over Germany and the Marshall Plan, was expected to mark the two-week session.

Delegates from the United States and 26 European nations are attending.

Brother, it's tight!

WE'VE tightened our belts hard. This has been necessary in the past few months in order to effect economies. These economies have partially offset our spiraling costs.

More has been saved than appeared possible last Fall. Although we experienced a $90,000 net loss in 1947, for the first three months this year we were able to show some net income. Because of this, results over the next several weeks will be studied to determine what financial relief will be needed.

All we will ask is a fair and reasonable return on the property which makes your transit service possible. Despite present economies stockowners are receiving no dividends on their investment.

We're sorry if tightening our belts has affected our service.

With transit service, as in all other things, more can be given and more can be done... but it would cost more. We'd like your advice and help.

Identification Awaited Of Couple Found Slain

Danville, Va., April 26 (AP) State and county police awaited the arrival here tonight of L. L. Patterson, from Huntington, W. Va., to determine whether the man and woman found dead in a trailer Sunday afternoon are his mother and step-father.

The couple was tentatively identified as William Howard Osterberg, 38, asteeplejack from South Point, Ohio, and his wife, Mrs. Ruth Osterbtrg, 45, formerly of Bluefield, W. Va.

The Osetrbergs arrived and rented trailer space at a camp near Danville's citi limits April 13. The bodies were found yesterday when a nearby resident became curious over inactivity at the trailer.

County Coroner H. H. Hammer said the man and woman, each with a bullet wound in the head had been dead since about last Wednesday. Officers were unable to find a gun in the trailer.

Phone Rate Hearing At Richmond Today

Richmond, Va., April 26 (AP).—A hearing on the application of the Virginia Telephone Co. for substantial increases in its monthly service charges to approximately 21,000 subscribers in the western half of the State will begin tomorrow before the State Corporation Commission.

Actuaries of the SCC have estimated the proposed increase in rates will amount to approximately $135,000 a year or, roughly, about 50 cents a month per subscriber.

Whitaker Sworn In As House Member

John A. Whitaker of Russellville yesterday was sworn in as representative in oCngress from the Second Kentucky District.

He took the seat left vacant in January when Earl C. Clements became Governor.

Seating of Whitaker brought the number of House Democrats to 186. There are 244 Republicans, 2 American Labor Party members and 3 vacancies.

Lists Completed; 19 of 20 Known To Favor Dewey

Oklahoma City, April 26 (AP).—The Oklahoma Republican convention today elected four delegates-at-large to the party's national convention at Philadelphia, three of the four known to be favorable to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York for the presidential nomination.

The delegates are:

U. S. Senator E. H. Moore, Tulsa; Representative Ross Rizley, Guymon; Fred E. Suits, Oklahoma City, and Mrs. L. V. Henson, Seminole.

Only Senator Moore has not expressed himself as favoring the New Yorker, Moore has announced he will keep 'an open mind" until the convention in June.

The election of the four completes the state's 20 delegates. All of the 16 elected in district conventions have expressed themselves as favoring Dewey. But the delegation will actually go uninstructed.

Rizley, representative from the Eighth District for eight years, announced today as a candidate for the U. S. Senate post being left open by Moore's retirement. Moore is serving his first term. He defeated Josh Lee for reelection in 1942.

Write-in to Be Watched Today in Pennsylvania

By the Associated Press

Pennsylvania Republicans hold a primary election today and the results of a write-in vote may bring further indication of the relative strength of candidates for the Republican nomination for President.

There's a spot on the Republican ballot for each voter to indicate his presidential preference.

The Keystone State Republicans will also select 73 delegates to the national nominating convention. The delegates won't be bound but are expected to back Senator Edward Martin as their favorite son.

Four years ago the State's preferential write-in tally showed 146,706 votes for Governor Dewey of New York and 1502 for former Governor Stassen of Minnesota.

Pennsylvania Democrats are also holding a primary today with President Truman's name on the ballot alone. They will send 74 delegates to the Democratic convention.

In Massachusetts, the 35 Republican delegates will be elected by popular vote today and are to go to the Philadelphia convention unpledged. They have three possible favorite sons — House Speaker Martin, Senator Leverett Saltonstall and Senator Henry Cabot Lodge. However, several prospective delegates have talked approvingly of Dewey as a second choice and a few have expressed liking for Stassen.

Of the 36 Democratic delegates to be chosen from Massachusetts, Mr. Truman is assured of the support of 35. The objector is Mayor James Curley of Boston.

Rhode Island's 8 GOP Delegates Unpledged

Providence, R. I., April 26 (U.P.). The Rhode Island Republican convention today approved an unpledged slate of eight delegates to the GOP National Convention.

At the same harmonious session, former Senator Felix Hebert was reelected national committeeman, defeating Thomas J. Paolino of Providence, 47 to 34. Mrs. Marion Yatman of Providence was reelected national committeewoman.

Actress Lana Turner Wed To Millionaire 'Bob' Topping

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

HOLLYWOOD WEDDING—Glamorous Lana Turner of the films gazes into the eyes of her new husband, Henry J. (Bob) Topping, after their wedding in the movie capital yesterday

Hollywood, April 26 (AP).—Lana Turner today added the crowning touch to her Cinderella story—she married a millionaire, Henry J. (Bob) Topping, heir to a tin-plate fortune.

The ceremony, by comparison with the ostentatious and movie-like setting, was simple and quiet. It was held in the flower-drenched mansion of William R. Wilkerson, who discovered her for the movies.

While MGM studio hair-dressers combed her bobbed blonde hair, she signed the wedding document.

Only 14 Guests Present

At 2:12 p. m., a string ensemble struck up "Here Comes the Bride." Down the winding stairway came Lana's 5-year-old daughter by a former marriage, Cheryl Christine, demure and frightened. She was followed by Mrs. Sara Hamilton, magazine writer and Lana's best chum, who served as matron of honor.

Then came Lana on the arm of Dr. William Branch, her physician. The 27-year-old actress was smiling wanly and her white orchid bouquet shook in her hand.

Only 14 guests were present. Standing before an arbor decorated with white gardenias and gladiolas, the couple repeated their vows. Topping, 34, and thrice-married, spoke calmly and assuredly. Lana, also thrice-married, said her vows in a voice choked with emotion. They exchanged platinum rings.

Sail fro Europe May 5

As the minister offered benediction for the couple, the violins struck up "I Love You Truly." At the end of the prayer, Topping gave Lana a short kiss and a hug and the minister announced to the guests:

"Ladies and gestlemen, may I present Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Topping."

The orchestra swung into "If I Loved You."

A reception for a select group of the couple's friends followed.

The Toppings plan to leave town for a couple of days—they wouldn't say just where—then fly to New York. They intesd to sail for London on the Mauretania May 5. She will go along while he takes part in a venture introducing midget auto racing in Europe.

It was Hollywood's biggest matrimonial flurry since Shirley Temple and bohn Agar were married on September 20, 1945.

Tiidelands Bill Cleared for Action

The House Rules Committee yesterday cleared the way for early House action on a bill granting the states clear title to oil-bearing tidelands.

A similar bill was passed two years ago but it was successfully vetoed by President Truman.

Secretary of the Interior J. A. Krug has said the President also will veto the new measure.

Won't Lose Any Ohio Backers, Taft Is Sure

Cleveland, April 26 (U.P.).—Senator Robert A. Taft said today that Harold E. Stassen, his rival for 23 of Ohio's 53 Republican convention delegates, "reached his peak 10 days too soon."

Taft told a press conference, after his decision not to return to Washington as planned, that "Stassen reached his peak in Wisconsin and Nebraska on election days. I think here in Ohio he reached his peak 10 days too soon."

Taft Confident

"I don't see why I should lose any delegates at all in Ohio except by the law of averages," Taft added.

However, Stassen's campaign managers predicted their man would win 12 delegates in the May 4 primaries.

Representative Clarence Brown (R., Ohio), Taft's campaign manager, said Stassen might win "four to nine" of the 23 delegates but Taft disagrees with him.

"Brown has not been in Ohio," Taft declared, "and I am a good deal more optimistic."

Stassen Upbraided

The senior Senator from Ohio again upbraided Stassen for entering the Ohio primary. He said invading the home grounds of a "favorite son" was contrary to Republican Party "courtesy and custom."

Tomorrow Taft starts a week's tour in a last-ditch stand to offset whatever gains Stassen may have made. He will begis with a talk at Dayton, asd visit seven congressional districts.

Both GOP White House hopefuls wind up their campaigns in the Buckeye State May 3 with radio broadcasts. Taft will speak from Cincinnati, Stassen from Cleveland.

Negroes Ban Advisory Unit

of Morehouse College, Atlanta, Ga., took sharp issue with the Army's stand on the racial question.

"The most unfortunate statement made to us was that there can be segregation without discrimination," he declared. "Mr. Royall made that statement."

The Negro leaders were asked about the recent declaration by A. Philip Randolph, president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters (AFL) that he and other Negro leaders would back a program of civil disobedience against registration and service under the proposed draft—if segregation is not abolished in the armed forces.

"I am happy that Randolph said that," replied Houston. "It reflects a very deep feeling among the Negro people. But I am not yet ready to indorse such an action."

Forrestal Calls Conference

Granger said the conference had been called weeks ago by Defense Secretary James Forrestal. Sixteen prominent members of the Negro race from all over the country were invited to come and make suggestions on racial relations.

He said last night that he did not consider the group had reached an impasse with defense chiefs, despite the Army's stand. While unwilling to serve on a permanet committe as long as the Army refuses to budge, Granger said the members later would get together on a series of recommendations to Forrestal. Further negotiations would then follow, he said.

The Cecretary of Defense opened yesterday's conference, rushed to the Capitol to testify on a pending appropriation bill and met again with the group in the afternoon.

Gillem Report Discussed

Granger said the group object to the Army's "present interpretation of the much quoted Gillem board report." As written, the report would permit segregation to be eliminated, but present policy changes its intent, he contended.

An Army spokesman said the Department stands by the report—made by a board headed by Lieut. Gen. A. C. Gillem just after the war. It proposes, he said, that Negro manpower can be best utilized by maintaining separate battalions and companies of white and Negroes within regiments.

The spokesman said that about seven per cent of white recruits score in the highest class on classification examinations. Only one per cent of Negroes are in this intelligence group. Therefore, he added, Negroes competing with whites for noncom berths would lose out. Under the segregation policy, Negroes are assured a proportion of promotions.

Other Opinions Expressed

Truman K. Gibson Chicago attorney, said, however, that the few times the Army has agreed to integration, it has worked well.

"This affects America's position in the world," said Dr. Sadie T. M. Alexander, of Philadelphia. "The future of America depends on how she treats her Negroes."

Dr. Mordecai Johnson, president of Howard University, was one of those taking part in the conference.

Rep. Bender Predicts Nosedive by Sttassen

By the Associated Press

Representative Bender (R., Ohio) said yesterday Harold E. Stassen's top rating in the latest Gallup Poll on Republican presidential candidates will take a nosedive after Ohio's primary May 4.

Bender told the House that the most recent poll showed Stassen with a "slight lead" in the field of Republican candidates.

"Mr. Stassen," he said, "should take what comfort he can from it before the results of next week's Ohio primary are in."

Senate Votes Funds For 4 Departments

Actio nAlso Covers Score of Agencies' Year-End Financing

The Senate yesterday voted $1,406,781,377 to run the State, Justice, Commerce and Labor Departments during the year starting July 1.

It also voted $780,179,479 to carry a score of Government agencies through the remainder of the present fiscal year, ending July 1.

Three separate bills were involved. All had passed the House but with different figures. Senate and House will now try to get together on compromises.

As approved by the Senate, the bills would provide:

(1) $890,751,440 for the Federal Security Agency, the Labor Department and related labor agencies, including the National Labor Relations Board. This amount is $14,653,810 less than was voted by the House and is $40,787,729 less than President Truman asked.

(2) $516,029,937 for the Departments of State, Justice and Commerce and the Federal judiciary. The amount is $12,439,674 more than was voted by the House and is $116,079,415 under the President's budget requests.

Both these bills provide funds for the new year starting July 1.

The measure making up deficiencies for the current year carries $780,179,479 as compared with only $338,378,152 voted by the House. Since the House began consideration of the measure, however, additional budget requests have been submitted.

Burial 'Plot'

Plan to Move Pike to Peak Piques Town

Sackets Harbor, N. Y., April 26 (AP).—Any attempt to remove the remains of Gen. Zebulon Pike to Pikes Peak, Colo., from the military cemetery here will be resisted by "an armed guard," Mayor Carl Jackson said today.

"We have taken a liking to the general, and we're going to keep him up here," Jackson said.

Officials of the Army cemetery's branch had announced earlier that the famous explorer's body would be removed to Colorado on request of Pike's next of kin. Pike, for whom the peak near Colorado Springs was named, was buried here after being killed in the War of 1812.

Deeded to Village

Mayor Jackson said the cemetery property had been deeded specifically to the village of Sackets Harbor, and that "Colorado or nobody else" has anything to say about it.

"If anybody tries to move General Pike from here, we'll have an armed guard waiting for them. They'll do it over my dead body," Jackson said.

Army officials said the Rev. C. W. Harrison of Gainesville, Tex., a great-great-grandson of Pike, had requested the transfer.

1926 Attempt Failed

A previous attempt by Colorado to have the body reinterred failed in 1926 when strong protest were aired throughout this northern New York area.

There has been some doubt expressed here about the exact location of the General's remains. The bodies of Pike and other officers have been moved at least twice, once in 1819 when a post cemetery was built, and in 1909 when a new burial plot was laid out.

Mayor Jackson, however, discounted the rumors.

Palestine Invasion Is Set

to make a bid for the position which commands the entire southern approach to Jerusalem.

The Arab fighters, under command of Fadel Bey Jamal, a high officer of the Arab Judean army, approached Alamein camp from three sides. They sliced through a narrow corridor between the camp and the Jewish emplacements.

An Arab commander said the camp will be readied for occupancy by some 1500 Syrian and Iraqi troops of the Yarmuk army's third division under command of Abdul Hamid Raway.

Grim battle preparations south of Jerusalem apparently indicated that both sides were getting ready for a major battle for Jerusalem.

Fighting was resumed along Palestine's coastal plain. The Jewish extremist group, Irgun Zvai Leumi, struck again from Tel Aviv against the neighboring Arab city of Jaffa. In doing so the Irgunists acted in defiance of broadcast orders by Haganah, the regular Jewish militia.

Fist fighting broke out between members of the two Jewish groups when the Irgunists refused to remove a block on a street leading to the battle zone. Passersby swarmed in and broke up the fighting.

Strong automatic weapon fire covered the Irgunists' drive against Jaffa. Answering mortar and machine-gun fire indicated the Arabs were putting up stiff resistance.

The extent of Irgun's gains in Jaffa were not clear. High Irgun officers told reporters Arab defenders had fallen back into the middle of the city of 95,000. Earlier, Hebrew newspapers said the drive had carried a mile into Jaffa's frontier Manshieh quarter.

Other sources said the assault had stalled on running up against British troops with mechanized equipment. They said the British had told Haganah the all-Jewish City of Tel Aviv would be shelled unless Irgun fell back into the shell-scarred no man's land between Tel Aviv and Jaffa.

It was not definitely known, however, whether there were British in Jaffa and if so whether they were taking any part in the action.

At the northern end of Palestine's coast British artillery earlier in the day drove off Jews who had thrown heavy mortar fire into Acre. Most of about 200 prisoners in the Acre prison escaped in the course of the Jewish firing which came from Napoleon Hill outside the city.

Isaacson Gets Palestine Visa

Representative Isacson (ALP, N. Y.) has been granted a passport to visit Palestine.

State Department officials said yesterday the passport was issued Friday and is "valid for Palestine and the necessary countries en route."

Isacson was turned down last month when he sought a passport to attend a meeting in Paris of backers of the Greek guerillas.

The State Department took the stand that it would not be in the "best interests of the United States" to issue the passport and welfare of the public. Eleven of the number felt they belonged in the latter category and another eight said their functions did not affect the safety of District residents.

The Washington Post queried the following top District officials. The figure after each name is the number of workers in each department. Those whose departments are considered involved in the security and welfare of the public were:

Acting Superintendent of Police Truscott, 1900; H. C. Whitehurst, Director of Highways, 800; David V. Auld, superintendent, Water Department, 600; Donald Clemmer, director, Department of Corrections, 586; William Xanten, superintendent, Sanitation Department, 1300; Acting Fire Chief Frank G. Berry, 917; Dr. George C. Ruhland, Health Officer, 2300; George E. Keneipp, Director of Vehicles and Traffic, 176; Harold A. Kemp, director, Sanitary Engineering, 2500; Harry R. Howser, head of the Bridge Division, 65; Walter L. Fowler, Budget Officer, 13.

Others interviewed were:

Alan W. Payne, chairman, Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, 22; Superintendent of Ditrict Buildings E. P. Brooke, 350; Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, president, Board of Education, 4500; James H. Flanagan, chairman, Public Utilities Commission, 30; Chief Judge George P. Barse, Municipal Court, over 100; Harry S. Wender, chairman, Recreation Board, over 100; Robert H. Davis, Director of Inspections, 144, and Pilkerton, 126.

These officials were unanimous in their confidence in their workers and in other Oistrict employes. Budget Officer Fowler said, "I know all my workers like a book. I personally have never had any suspicion of any workers in the District government."

Clemmer, who heads the Department of Correction, declared, "I would be very surprised in any one on our staff is disloyal to this country."

Other department chieftains were equally outspoken in defense of their employes. They were more reticent when asked for their opinion on the wisdom or necessity of the proposed District-wide loyalty check.

Here are some typical replies:

Clemmer, "That I will not answer;" Brooke, "I wouldn't like to say;" Xanten, "I don't believe I ought to comment on it;" Payne, "No comment;" Pilkerton "I'd rather not be quoted on that;" Whitehurst, "It's up to the Commissioners, not me to express an opinion."

One official, Director of Inspections Davis, after pondering the matter, said, "Honestly, I don't think it's necessary."

Dr. Ruhland said that if there were reason to suspect the loyalty of District employes, "ask the FBI to handle it, not the District police. The police probably don't have the facilities to handle it."

The head of the Board of Education, Mrs. Doyle, commented that she personally did not "think it's necessary at all. But on the other hand, since I'm so sure fo the results in the school system, I'm not worried about it."

Flanagan, head of PUC, declared that "if those higher-up think it necessary, I would raise no objection to it."

Favoring the check were Acting Fire Chief Engineer Berry, Kemp, and Howser. Howser said, "It's a good thing in times like these. You can't be too careful."

Berry said that "any man on a government payroll should have his loyalty checked" and Kemp said, "It's probably a good thing."

Russians Accuse U. S. and British on Air Traffic

Vienna, April 26 (AP).—Tass charged tonight that British and American authorities were violating interallied agreements by increasing air traffic through their bases locted in the Soviet zone of Austria.

The official news agency said the agreements stipulate that the bases are to be used only for the transport of goods and personnel of the occupation forces in Vienna.

An official American spokesman said here no agreements specified the type of aircraft, passenger list or cargo.

Tass declared Soviet authorities had notified the British and Americans, who had promised to take the matter under consideration. No such protest had reached United States Army Air Force headquarters.

Contempt Charges Asked on Harriman

Busbey Would Bring Him Before House For Refusing Condon Loyalty Report

Representative Busbey (R., Ill.) proposed yesterday that W. Averell Harriman, former secretary of commerce, be brought before the House on contempt charges punishable by imprisonment.

Busbey also said in a statement that President Truman has "defied the will of Congress" in the case of Dr. Edward U. Condon. He said the President has had a part in "unholy acts of resistance to orderly processes of government."

The Congressman proposed contempt action against Harriman for having withheld from the House an FBI loyalty report on Condon, director of the National Bureau of Standards.

Condon Denies Charges

A House Unamerican Activities Subcommittee has accused Condon of associating with suspected Russian spies and of being one of the weakest links in atomic security. It cited part of the FBI loyalty report in support of its accusations.

Condon has denied the charges. He has been cleared by a Commerce Department loyalty board.

Direct appeals and a subpena designed to get the FBI letter on Condon were rejected by Harriman. He was backed up by President Truman.

Busbey said the President has shown "flagrant" conduct in "thwarting the will of Congress in the Condon case, among others."

Speaker Martin (R., Mass.) and members of various committees are lining up behind a bill to give committees actual power to get from Government agencies any papers or information they consider necessary.

Long Road Ahead

The Expenditures Committee already has approved such a bill. Chairman Hoffman (R., Mich.) told reporters it probably will be amended to include a fine or jail term for Government officials, other than the President, who reject congressional demands for information.

But the bill is a long way from becoming a law. It would have to get by the House Rules Committee, the House itself, the Senate, and possibly a presidential veto. Then it undoubtedly would be tested in the courts.

"Every committee, practically, has been having the same sort of trouble," Hoffman said. "And we should settle it once and for all."

Martin says "the last word hasn't been spoken." He says a bill to empower committees to get information would "breeze through the House." But he makes no predictions about the Senate.

had rendered in supplying details of the conspiracy," commuted the sentence of Burger to life imprisonment and that of Dasch to 30 years imprisonment.

Attorney General Clark's reasons for recommending clemency, a recommendation approved by President Truman, were contained in a letter made public at the White House.

"It is the view of the Department of Justice," he wrote, "that Burger and Dasch have now been sufficiently punished for their offenses against the United States.

On Suspended Sentence

"In fact, their services in revealing the dtails of the conspiracy, and later in disclosing valuable information as to conditions in Germany, as well as assisting the Department of Justice in obtaining convictions of disloyal persons in the United States, seem ample to justify clemency."

Here the Attorney General said it might also be desirable to indicate publicly that foreign spies and saboteurs had everything to gain by telling all to this Government.

"It is accordingly recommended," he told Mr. Truman, "that Burger and Dasch be returned to the custody of the Department of the Army and be transported to Germany, and that upon their arrival in Germany the unexecuted portions of their sentences be suspended under conditions with respect to travel, employment and political activities as the theater commander may require."

Wallace Backers Will Try Again At Glen Echo

Henry Wallace supporters in Montgomery County, refused use of Glen Echo firehouse for a party rally, will renew their request Thursday night.

Sammie Abbott, county publicity chairman for Wallace's Progressive Party, said yesterday party members plan to meet at that time with the Glen Echo fire board to present their arguments.

A rally had been announced by the party for last night, but on Saturday, Fire Board President Henry T. McCuen withdrew use of the firehouse. McCuen said he had agreed to "tentative plans" for use of the building for "a meeting but not a rally."

WERE it not for America's meat packing and livestock industry, nearly half the land of this country would be useless for food production. Only grass grows on it.

Grass, as grass, doesn't add a calorie to our food supply. But meat animals grow and thrive on it. And these animals, as animals, would be of little use to anyone were it not for the meat packing industry which turns them into nourishing food for people.

You may live a thousand miles from where your meat was "raised" but you can call for it at your near-by market. Meat packing companies bridge the distance—convert the livestock into meat and deliver it to your retailer.

And the meat packer's profit on this essential service, after paying all expenses, averages only a fraction of a cent a pound.

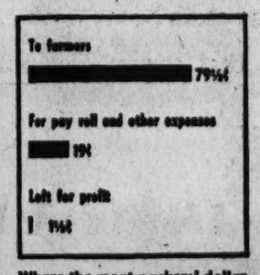
AMERICAN MEAT INSTITUTE
Headquarters, Chicago • Members throughout the U. S.

For help with your meat problems—listen to the Fred Waring Show—NBC stations—Tuesday and Thursday mornings.

Daily cash market. The dependable market provided by the meat packing industry encourages farm production. Farmers can "cash" a hog or a steer—or a thousand of them—as readily as a government bond.

Store-size pieces. First step is dressing the meat. Next it has to be cut and processed into the variety of fresh meats, smoked meats and sausage you want. Saving and sale of by-products help pay the costs involved.

Fresh meat for delivery today. Meat packers deliver meat, under refrigeration all the way, to retailers as it is needed. This permits your meat-man to have fresher stocks at all times—protects wholesomeness.



Where the meat packers' dollar goes. From each dollar that meat packers receive, farmers get about 80¢. Nearly half of what is left goes for pay rolls. Profits average about 1½ cents of every dollar.

One Year's Service Proposed for Youths billion dollars now carried in the budget for UMT. The latter would require nearly 900 millions in 1949 and double that in later years.

4. Navy and Air Force officials feel the period of service would not help them, and will accept only a few, if any, of the proposed one year, 18-year-old draftees. Some 150,000 young men can be handled within Regular Army units in this manner, however, officials believe.

Meanwhile, the Senate Deficiency Appropriations Committee opened hearings yesterday on a House-approved bill to make $2,798,000,000 immediately available for Air Force and Navy plane orders. The measure, which also carried 400 millions to pay off present orders, allows 822 million dollars more than recommended by the Administration for aircraft procurement.

High School Groups Sing Fine Music

From Yesterday's Late Editions

By Donald Engle

In the words of a currently popular song, if you come home from a concert "with that feathery feelin' up and down your spine," it was a big success.

That was our reaction last evening after a splendid concert at the National Gallery by the choral groups of Alexandria's Washington-Lee High School, under the skillful and sensitive direction of Miss Florence Booker.

Having just returned from a guest appearance in Detroit before the leading music educators in this country, these young people displayed an amazing versatility in their knowledge of choral literature, ranging from the early polyphonic masters through the English madrigal period, the sacred and secular Russian school, and samplings from our own folk music.

To all these works they bring a captivating spontaneity and enthusiasm that is truly refreshing. Their voices are fresh and unforced, their ensemble is precise but not mechanical, and they are completely at home in a complex polyphonic texture, chromatic modulations, and irregular rhythms. With these technical matters so well in hand, Miss Booker and her group can devote their attention to the ultimate purpose they serve, making fine music.

This they accomplish to the entire satisfaction of their audience (judging by the applause last evening), and as a tribute to the outstanding leadership and musicianship of their director. Other choral directors as well as laymen can derive a great deal of satisfaction and inspiration from hearing these young people, and they in turn should know that those long hours of rehearsal and extra effort brought much pleasure to all of us who had the privilege of hearing them.

Dagney Nordbo Plays Scandinavian Music

The Norwegian pianist, Dagny Solheim Nordbo, was presented in a recital of Scandinavian music yesterday afternoon at the Phillips Memorial Gallery.

It is difficult to evaluate Miss Nordbo's achievement as an artist from this particular hearing, chiefly because of the unfortunate selection of program material. This consisted chiefly of folk dance pieces, bagatelles, a caprice, and a cradle song, all of a pretty trivial nature, by Grieg, Nielsen and Saeverud.

Caracas to Get Next Parley

Bogota, Columbia, April 26 (AP).—The Inter-American Conference today chose Caracas, Venezuela, as the site for its next meeting in 1952 or 1953.

The conference today also adopted a resolution condemning the use of economic sanctions, as a violation of the hemisphere principle of non-intervention.

In effect, the resolution places economic aggression by one country against another country on the same footig as military and political aggression. The United States abstained from voting on the resolution. Norman Armour, now in charge of the United States delegation, said the United States was not opposed but thought the subject already had been covered.

President Eduardo Zuleta Angel said there is no doubt the conference will be able to hold its final session April 30.

It Takes Mills to Make the Steel You Use and PROFITS to keep mills going

It takes "real profits" to keep an industry alive. It is the purchasing power of the profit dollar that sets today's pace for progress.

The high costs of improvements and expansion in steel can today be met only with profit dollars. For the money that the industry has been allowed to set aside for replacement and improvement is not enough to meet today's requirements.

Steel's 1948 profit dollar buys only 50 cents worth of rolling mill, however, compared with 1938. It takes two of today's dollars to buy as much mill as one dollar bought ten years ago.

Steel profits averaged 6.3 cents on the sales dollar last year. In the same period, the profit per dollar of investment in the steel industry was 9.4 cents.

Steel profits are low when measured against today's high cost of maintaining efficient plants. The steel industry is meeting those costs because an efficient industry best serves the public interest.

U.S., Britain Draft Joint Defense Plan

he felt sure the United States would give "appropriate" support to such a union. But applause for a speech is not the same as approval of a formal commitment, as officials here know perfectly well.

Are Only a Part

Moreover—and this is the second reason why the proposed guarantee is developing slowly—the five Brussels powers are only one part of western Europe. Scandinavia is just as important to American security, but the Scandinavian nations are dead set at the moment against joining any military alliance with their western European neighbors.

One of the problems for the United States, therefore, will be how to underwrite one part of western Europe militarily without seeming to distinterest itself in other parts. This problem is being threshed out in the Government here, and presumably by the Brussels powers themselves.

It was stated frankly to Premier Paul-Henri Spaak of Belgium when he was in Washington recently, so that he could put it to his western European colleagues and allies.

As for future American military consultations with the Brussels countries, decisions are expected to wait until they have worked out proposals and submitted them to Washington.

Lieutenant General Hollis was present last Saturday when the Brussels group set up its permanent organization. A part of this organization will be a permanent military committee, which will in effect be a combined chiefs of staff for the five western European nations and for any others, like Italy, that may be included.

Pooling Plan Awaited

When the western Europeans have decided to what extent they shall pool their own military resources and leadership, Hollis probably will be assigned to bring their proposals back to Washington. It will be his third visit in a few months: the first a secret mission just before Christmas, the second an equally secret visit from which he has just returned.

In this way the development of American military cooperation appears to following the same procedure as the evolution of the Marshall Plan for economic cooperation. In each case, the submission of a definite program has been left to the European themselves, with the present 5-power military committee corresponding to the technical units of the 16-nation Committee for European Economic Cooperation which worked out the basis of the European Recovery Program last Summer.

As for military supplies, France is the only western European country to have asked for them so far, and even this request has not yet been put into specific form.

Officials here take it for granted that Congress will be asked to provide funds for such armaments, perhaps by a revival of the lend-lease method. Marshall Plan funds cannot be used for the purpose without violating the spirit of the Economic Cooperation Act and distorting the recovery program.

Although the Act does not specifically forbid using its funds for military supplies, it authorizes American "material and financial assistance" for three purposes: (1) to promote industrial and agricultural production, (2) to further the restoration or maintenance of the soundness of currencies, budgets and finances; and (3) to facilitate and stimulate the growth of international trade.

Knows of No Request

Defense Secretary Forrestal was asked about possible military lend-lease during yesterday's hearing of the Senate Appropriations Committee. Senator Kenneth S. Wherry (R., Nebr.) asked him whether any requests for lend-lease appropriations were in prospect.

"None that I know of," Forrestal answered, although he added that such a request might be one implication coming from the new "western union" of the Brussels nations.

Secretary Marshall, just back from Bogota, made his first personal report to President Truman yesterday and presumably discussed western European developments as well.

Police 'Fix' 125 Traffic Tickets, Increase of 10

Police last week "fixed" 125 traffic tickets, 10 more than the week before.

Of the 125 motorists granted adjustments, 118 were warned, while 7 tickets were canceled.

Warnings were given to four doctors on emergency calls, eight strangers in the city, eight motorists pleading illness and nine who said their cars were disabled.

Cancelations were granted to the following under diplomatic immunity: Pavlo Rogers, the Italian Embassy; Adnan Pachachi, Iraq Legation; Henry Polak, The Netherlands Embassy, Youssef Rakha and A. E. Watts, embassy connection not listed.

Charles DelVecchio, a photographer for The Washington Post drew a warning for parking overtime. He said he had been unavoidably detained because of darkroom work.

Stalin Music Promised by Composers

Moscow, April 26 (U.P.)—A new administrative board took over the Union of Soviet Composers today, and pledged itself to create music about the "Stalinist age."

A board of 51 composers, representing all the Soviet republics, was elected last night at the final session of the week-long union conference.

Absent from the list were Russia's "big three" composers, Dmitri Shostakovich, Sergei Prokofieff and Aram Khatchaturian. The Communist Party central committee criticized them and other composers last February as modernistic formalists.

Harriman Confirmed as ERP Envoy

The Senate yesterday confirmed former Secretary of Commerce W. Averell Harriman as special Ambassador to the 16-nation organization of the Marshall Plan countries in Europe.

There was no formal vote, although Senator William Langer (R., N. Dak.) said later that he wanted the record to show he voted against confirmation.

Harriman is expected to stay in Washington for at least two weeks, helping to choose the heads of the 16 economic missions to the Marshall Plan countries and otherwise assisting Economic Cooperation Administrator Paul Hoffman.

Hoffman announced yesterday that six of the countries had already filed "letters of intent" and were qualified to get American help under the Ecnimic Cooperation Act. The six were France, Italy, Austria, The Netherlands, Norway and Denmark.

The "letters of intent" are preliminary expressions of each nation's intention to adhere to the act by means of a bilateral agreement with the United States. Each nation has 90 days after the signing of the act, expiring July 3, to conclude such a bilateral agreement and bind itself formally to various conditions and pledges. After July 3 no country can get American help until it signs such an agreement.

Reds Are Crushed Under German Vote

Local Elections in Western Zones Show Gains for Right-Wing Groups

Frankfurt, Germany April 26 (AP).—American Military Government officials said today the results of Sunday's local election were a crushing defeat to communism in western Germany.

At the same time major gains were made by minor right wing parties. Dr. James R. Newman, military governor in the United States zone state of Hesse, said this indicated growing opposition to socialization of German industry now.

In industrial Hesse the Communists got only 7.9 per cent of the vote for city and county councils, compared with 9.3 per cent two years ago.

In agricultural Bavaria, returns from 100 out of 142 counties gave the Communists only 2.7 per cent of the votes. Two years ago their average was about 4.5 per cent.

In Hesse the National Democrats, one of the right wing groups, rose from 0.5 to 3.4 per cent of the vote, although it was licensed in only eight of the 41 counties. Hesse's Liberal Democrats, also right wing, jumped from 7.3 to 21.9 per cent.

The Christian Democrats, a conservative group, were getting 43.4 per cent of the vote in Bavaria, compared with a clear majority of 55 per cent two years ago. The mildly socialist Social Democrats were running second with 22 per cent, a loss of 3 per cent.

In Hesse the Social Democrats stayed in front with 35.7 per cent, compared with 43.2 per cent two years ago. The Christian Democrats remained in second place in Hesse with 29.1 per cent, a drop from 36.9 per cent.

New Outbreak In Osaka Hurts Eight Koreans

Yokohama, (Tuesday) April 27 (AP).—Eight Koreans today were reported wounded in another outbreak at Osaka late yesterday, but the incident was described as a skirmish "and not a riot."

The governor of Osaka prefecture reported part of a throng of 10,000 Korean demonstrators fought with Japanese police after disregarding orders to disperse. He said the police fired "warning shots" and turned firehoses on the unruly group.

The Koreans, whose uprising in Kobe Saturday was quelled by U. S. troops, had gathered in front of the Osaka prefectural building in protest against Japanese education regulations closing Korean schools. The demonstrators had official permission to assemble.

Col. A. W. Stuart, U. S. Eighth Army intelligence officer, said the skirmish broke out after the Osaka governor had refused a Korean committee's request to revoke the order closing Korean schools.

Top American intelligence officers said the riot were Communist-inspired and the school row was only a pretext.

Occupation headquarters in Tokyo reported earlier that 350 Koreans remained in custody out of the hundreds arrested after the riots in Kobe and Osaka over the weekend.

Chiang Urges Li to Reenter Election Race

Nanking, April 26 (AP).—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek tonight personally urged the disgruntled Gen. Li Tsung-Jen to get back into the muddled race for China's vice presidency.

Amid mutual recriminations and charges of political sharpshooting, Li and the other two candidates, Sun Fo and Gen. Cheng Chien, withdrew their candidacits Sunday.

Chiang, head of the Kuomintang (government party) to which all belong, immediately started putting pressure on them to reconsider.

Sun and Cheng told separate meetings of their supporters tonight that they would not resume active campaigning but would accept election.

General Li, however, reiterated that he would not accept the vice presidency.

Communists Oppose U. S. Trade Treaty

Communist opposition to a new United States commercial treaty with Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist government was reported to Senators yesterday.

The report was made to a Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee by two witnesses.

The subcommittee held a one-day hearing on the five-year pact, negotiated by the two governments in 1946.

Trieste Alerted for May Day

...ce, Italy, April 26 (AP).—A Yugoslav officer and an Italian soldier were killed, and three Italian soldiers were wounded today in an exchange of shots between Italian and Yugoslav patrols in Venezia Giulia, Italian military officials said tonight.

Italian officials said the shooting occurred in the Commune of Grimacco in Udine, northwest of the Free Territory of Trieste.

Their report said an Italian patrol of 18 officers and men encountered the Yugoslavs near Rauna di Lucio, a village on the border of Italian and Yugoslav occupied territory.

The Italians reached a point which their commander considered to be Italian territory, the military officials said. However, the woode nmarker at that point had been shifted by the Yugoslavs, they added.

Yugoslavs Sentence 11 to Die as Spies

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, April 26 (U.P.).—Eleven men charged with espionage for a foreign power were sentenced to death today by a military court and four other defendants were sentenced to prison terms of from 15 to 20 years at hard labor.

Many of the denfendants were members of the Communist Party and had held responsible positions. The government accused them of plotting sabotage, diversion and terrorism. Property of all the defendants was confiscated.

Revolt Growing Among Italian Socialists

Rome, April 26 (NYHT).—A rapidly-expanding group of rebels in Italy's left-wing Socialist Party demanded the resignation of the party's leadership today. They said the party's shattering defeat at the polls last week was a direct result of its leaders' pro-Communist policy.

The party was Italy's second largest only two years ago but is now a poor fourth. It ran last week as an ally of the Communists in the so-called Popular Democratic Front. Its strength in the new House of Representatives has not yet been determined, but present estimates are that it will have only from 35 to 37 seats (about 6 per cent) compared with 115 seats two years ago.

Giuseppe Romita, former Minister of the Interior and leader of the revolt, hinted today the Communist Party has offered to bolster its sagging left-wing Socialist allies by giving them about 10 of the Communist Parliament seats. The Communists gained at their allies' expense. They expanded their seats from 103 to approximately 139.

Meanwhile, the government announced tonight that "many persons, most of them Communists," have been arrested in connection with the riot yesterday in Milan in which a policeman was shot to death. The parading Milan demonstrators were defying a government order against public meetings and rallies.

[The Communist-controlled Chamber of Labor threatened today to call a general strike in Milan, to protest alleged "police brutality" during Sunday's bloody riots, the United Press reported.]

Greek Troops, Rebels Fight Crucial aBttle

Athens, April 26 (AP).—A staff army troops and 1600 Communist-led guerillas were locked in a decisive battle in the upper Mornos River valley, 90 miles northwest of Athens.

This was the first indication the guerillas were making a stand against 30,000 troops pressing an offensive in south central Greece.

An army success would liberate 2000 square miles of territory from rebel control and slash in two the guerilla mountain chain extending from the northern border to the Gulf of Corinth.

The communique said the battle was at Roumeli, a key valley position.

Meanwhile Military officials said Greek Third Army troops have loosed an offensive against 500 guerillas in the Crucia mountain range 30 miles northeast of Salonika. This is near the Yugoslav-Bulgarian-Greek border.

Fixing of Cement Prices Outlawed

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

The Supreme Court outlawed a Nationwide scheme to fix the price of cement yesterday, by a 6-to-1 vote.

The ruling bears on the cost of bridges, bungalows and business blocks—of just about all building—and ends a 10-year battle between the cement industry nad the Federal Trade Commission.

The FTC accused The Cement Institute, 21 of its officials and its 74-member firms of restraint of trade, in violation of the antitrust laws. A trial examiner spent three years hearing 49,000 pages of testimony and receiving 50,000 pages of exhibits.

176 Pages of Findings

After studying this record and 4000 pages of briefs, the FTC handed down 176 pages of findings. These said that the institute and its members agreed to keep prices up, to divide sales areas and not to compete for business. As this plan worked out, almost everybody who wanted to pave a sidewalk or build a skyscraper paid the institute price for his cement, no matter whom he bought it from.

Once the Government asked for bids on 6000 barrels of cement for a project and 11 firms sent in bids. Each of the 11 set a price of $3.286854 a barrel. The FTC found this and other cases clear proof of a price fixing scheme, and ordered the institute and its members to stop it.

More than 10 years after the case began, the Seventh United States Circuit Court of Appeals set aside the FTC order. Justice Black, speaking for the Supreme Court majority yesterday said the Circuit Court was wrong, and that the FTC order must be obeyed.

Burton Lone Dissenter

Justice Burton filed a lone dissent, saying there was not enough proof that the cement industry violated the law against price fixing. Burton said the $.286854 price did look like price fixing, but he pointed out that $1.1865854 of this was freight, so that the price asked by the 11 firms really was $2.10. And this, he said, was not enough to support the inference of price fixing.

Burton said he thought the basing-point price system used by the cement firms was lawful. nder Uthis system, a mill does not set its own price for cement, but charges the price for which cement sells at a "basing point" plus freight from that point to the customer. If Philadelphia was the basing point, for instance, a Washington mill would sell a Washington customer at the Philadelphia price, plus the freight from there to here. So the Washington buyer would not be able to save freight by buying his cement here.

Black found that the FTC was right in holding that this system was a price fixing device.

The justices, in other cases yesterday:

Set aside the death sentence of Timoteo Mariano Andres, because the Federal court which tried him for murder in Hawaii did not make it plain to the jury that all must agree on whether or not to urge mercy for him;

Told the Government to go ahead with its antitrust case against Scophony Corp. and other firms accused of a television monopoly; and Refused to hear a claim filed by Illinois for $714,097 tax on a gift of $2,471,758 to the University of Wisconsin by Kemper K. Knapp, who died in Chicago last year.

Moscow Retreat

Fear that the electoral victory over the Communists in Italy might be the signal for a coup d'etat has largely subsided. The Communists are testing their power to make nuisances of themselves in Milan and some other Italian centers. But the information coming out of Italy is to the effect that Moscow had already written off its hopes of seizing power in Rome before the election was held. It is said that 7000 former Italian partisans had gathered in the Po Valley in preparation for an armed uprising. Undoubtedly the strong precautions taken by Minister of the Interior Scelba discouraged this attempt, and advice from Moscow apparently contributed to the same end. Russian emissaries arriving in Italy from Vienna are said to have cautioned the Italian Reds against drastic action and warned that no Soviet armed help would be forthcoming.

This report ties in with various known facts about the Russian attitude. It suggests once more that Russia is not ready to abandon the cold-war phase of her struggle with the United States. The Kremlin made a strong bid for Italy and then withdrew when it became apparent that victory would necessitate resort to violence and that violence would mean war. It is possible, of course, that the Soviet Union backed down in Italy because it did not consider that country the most advantageous spot in which to provoke a showdown. It is also true that the loss of Italy has been accompanied by a stiffening of the Soviet attitude in Berlin. But this may mean only that Moscow feels the necessity of diverting attention from the loss of prestige it has suffered in Italy by creating additional tension elsewhere.

There is never any real safety, as we have frequently noted, whenever the issue of war or peace hangs upon the decision of a handful of men who may be deluded by their own tyranny. We cannot help thinking, however, that events in Italy have lessened the danger of war. Indeed, Moscow's aggressive policy appears to weaken in proportion to the determined resistance offered by the democratic powers. In our opinion, the Administration is fully justified in regarding the lessened danger of an uprising in Italy as a constructive result of the policy that has been followed. It does not mean that the United States can relax one iota in strengthening its defenses and tightening its economic and political ties with the democratic powers of western Europe. But it does add strength to the belief that a positive policy of heading off aggression before it has an opportunity to culminate can save our peace as well as our freedom.

Cuban Birthday

It was just 50 years ago last week that Cuba with American help attained her independence from Spain, a fact appropriately recognized by a special joint session of Congress at which President Truman spoke. The United States and Cuba today are united by both friendship and respect, and the two countries have perhaps a closer bond than most because of the circumstances of Cuba's deliverance. Yet Cuban-American relations have not always been harmonious, and an appreciation of Cuba's struggle for political maturity requires an understanding of some of the difficulties with which she has been and is confronted.

No longer does the United States send troops to Cuba at will, though by mutual agreement it does maintain a naval base at Guantanamo Bay. The recognition of Cuba's rights as a sovereign nation represented a marked step toward better understanding. But the political sphere is not the only area in which the Cubans have felt subjugated. It used to be said, for example, that Cuba was owned by the Chase National Bank. Cuba's economy, largely based on sugar, is utterly dependent upon the United States. That imposes a special responsibility on this country to avoid the sort of unilateral action that could spell ruin for Cuba.

Cuba's once turbulent governmental situation has quieted in late years, and she has produced a number of outstanding leaders, among them Dr. Guillermo Belt, who exhibited commendable leadership at Bogota. But the relative stabilization is not without its discordant elements. For example, Cuba has one of the largest Communist parties in the Western Hemisphere, a situation made possible by squalid wage and living conditions too often overlooked. The Communists exert a considerable influence in Cuban politics, and they lose no opportunity to twist the beak of the American eagle by blaming "Yankee imperialism" for all Cuba's economic ills. This is a circumstance that requires affirmative action by this country, not only in counteracting propaganda, but, more important, in helping Cuba rid itself of the economic sore spots. Relations between our two nations can be a model of cooperation between small and great powers, but the implementation of such a relationship requires two-way understanding built on more than a mere exchange of pleasant words.

New Facet—Old Policy

The idea of supplying American arms to the five nations of the Brussels pact is a reasonable supplement to the European recovery program. Rehabilitation in the world of today cannot be compartmentalized. Economic stability can be attained only in conjunction with political stability, and the tragic fact of 1948 is that political stability is still directly related to military strength. It would be wholly unrealistic to make an extensive investment in Europe's economic recovery while ignoring the efforts of some of these same countries to enhance their security from the menace of aggression that still hangs over Europe.

President Truman made it clear in his special address to Congress on March 17 that some assistance for the Brussels Pact countries would be forthcoming. Our task is, as Secretary of State Lovett indicated, to put a roof on the house that the European nations are building for their own protection. But it is not to be supposed that this is a wholly unselfish proposal any more than lend-lease was or than ERP is. So long as American forces remain in Germany, the United States will be an European power with the most vital interest in preventing aggression on that continent. The proposal to ship limited supplies of arms to Great Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg, therefore, involves no new principle. It is merely another means of implementing the policy long ago embarked upon.

The fact that the proposal is coming to the fore at this time ought to be written down, moreover, on the optimistic side of the ledger. It is an additional sign of confidence in the stability of Europe. If war were regarded as being imminent, it is not likely that the Administration would be preparing to launch a program of this sort. All the military supplies available would doubtless have to be retained for equipment of our own forces. The suggested policy is thus far removed from the state of jitters which seems to be afflicting some groups of Americans.

As the proposed arms policy is related to ERP, we think it should also be related to the strengthening of a defensive organization under Article 51 of the United Nations Charter. The "roof on the house" will not be complete without a binding agreement to resist aggression on this side of the iron curtain while the Security Council is kept moribund by the Soviet veto. Vital as bridges, railroads and rehabilitated factories are to recovery and airplanes, trucks and munitions are to defense, they are scarcely more important than the bonds that bind free peoples together in a common cause.

The Meat Ax Swingeth

The Literary Supplement of the London Times, whose standards of reviewing have been notably austere and Olympian, startled its readers recently when it devoted the better part of two and a half pages to a vehement condemnation of the celebrated American dramatist, Mr. Eugene O'Neill. The reviewer, who, according to the practice of the Times, remained anonymous, took the opportunity afforded by the publication of the British edition of The Iceman Cometh, to anathematize the work of Mr. O'Neill in toto, using almost every opprobrious epithet in the dictionary.

The occasion of the reviewer's indignation seems to have been his discovery of what had long been suspected by some of Mr. O'Neill's own countrymen: that he is after all not quite as great a dramatist as Shakespeare or Aeschylus, that The Hairy Ape is somewhat inferior to The Tempest and Mourning Becomes Electra to the Agamemnon. The reviewer almost implies that the British public had been persuaded to believe otherwise through some typical piece of Yankee chicane, comparable to the free-trade clauses in the Anglo-American loan agreement.

The main trouble with Mr. O'Neill, it appears, is that so far from being modern he is a kind of Albigensian anachronism. He is one who hates life, despises humanity, and is horrified by the notion of fertility. But Mr. O'Neill's characters, instead of killing themselves by austerities, after the fashion of the Albigensian elect, achieve their release from life in alcoholic stupor. In The Iceman Cometh, says the reviewer

> Larry Slade . . . is a typical credens Cathar: one who professes but does not practice the faith in its extreme form. He has no will to live, nor any will to die; and he drifts down to Harry Hope's squalid bar to become one of its dreariest inhabitants; a dismal drunkard who has not the courage of his futile convictions and can commit suicide only by deputy.
> There is no sign of nobility in the characters who populate his plays. Not one of them has been made in the image of God . . . Man, Mr. O'Neill invites us to believe, is a puny creature who vainly dreams of high achievements but is dogged by disaster.

By what right, then, was Mr. O'Niell awarded the Nobel prize? Nobel in his will stipulated that it should be awarded only for "distinguished work of an idealistic tendency." The reviewer observes that only by severe "stretching and straining" of the word "idealistic" could it ever be made to fit Mr. O'Neill, "whose world is a bestiary full of vulpine animals and crushed worms."

The anonymity of the Times reviewers is rather carefully protected, but some of them manage nevertheless to scatter internal clews to their identity. Such a clew may be afforded, in this case, by the reviewer's special anger at Mr. O'Neill for having made the principal character in The Iceman Cometh, the wife-murderer Hickman, a clergyman's son, who blames his vices and misfortunes on his upbringing in a puritanical parsonage. What, demands the reviewer, can Mr. O'Neill, "the son of devout Irish Roman Catholics and brought up in a well-found theatrical family," know about life in parsonages? The reviewer seems even to imply that Mr. O'Neill's incessant needling of puritans may be part of an atavistic and demoniac urge among Irish-Americans in general to destroy the foundations of American civilization; for after all it was the puritans who "made America safe for Mr. Ben Hecht." The Times critic cites the authority of the German historian Mommsen, to show that "the Celts have shaken all states and founded none."

Such wild generalizations, of course, nullify the whole value to the Times essay as a work of serious criticism. Nevertheless, it affords another interesting illustration how the characteristic American literature of the last two decades is now being used to justify the jealousy of American power, and the resentment at American fumbling of international responsibilities, that is felt in Britain and throughout Europe generally. It raises the question how far European impressions of contemporary American life and character have been derived from the work of writers like the Messrs. O'Neill, Hecht, Hemingway, Steinbeck, Faulkner, Dos Passos and Sinclair Lewis and how far this representation may affect what Mr. Stephen Spender, writing in the New York Times Magazine, describes as a contest between the American and Russian geniuses for the possession of the European soul. If it is true, as the Times reviewer says, that the America of such writers as Mr. O'Neill is one from which everything noble and beautiful has been excluded, it is not necessarily encouraging to be told by Mr. Spender that "a great many of the European students are learning English in order to study America and American literature."

Exit The Nickel Fare

An ancient and honorable New York institution, the 5-cent subway fare, is about to pass into oblivion. After considerable hemming and hawing on both sides of the issue, Mayor O'Dwyer finally approved last week a resolution raising surface transit fares to 7 cents and the subway fare to a dime. Though amply justified by the facts, that action required no little political courage. Exploiting the move for propaganda purposes, the Communist Party labeled it, according to the Daily Worker "a $125,000,000 steal," a wage cut for three million workers and "a huge gift to the bankers and big realtors." Nor did all the opposition come from such sources. There were many persons who, for sentimental reasons, wanted continuation of the nickel fare dating back 95 years to horse-car days. Others argued that, though the transit system was running a large deficit, this was a deficit properly paid from taxes as a boon to low income transit riders.

To be sure, there is something to be said on grounds of public policy for subsidizing such operations out of public funds in the same way that higher income groups are called upon to pay more taxes than those in lower brackets. But the issue is seldom faced squarely on that basis. That is what makes Mayor O'Dwyer's decision the more remarkable, for though he noted that real estate interests were not paying their proper share of taxes, he did meet incontrovertible facts head-on. To continue absorbing the deficit, he noted, would require money that ought to be diverted to hospitals, health service, sanitation and libraries.

What appears to have precipitated the change was a well-grounded demand from the Transport Workers Union for wage increases. This would have added some 23 million dollars to the anticipated 1949 deficit of 39 millions under the old rate structure. Mayor O'Dwyer has merely recognized that under public or any other kind of transit ownership, it is impossible to maintain a pretense of squeezing blood from a turnip without kidding somebody.

False Imprisonment

The old dilemma of what to do in the case of an accused person who, being illegally held and questioned by the police, confesses a crime before he is taken before a committing magistrate has arisen again in the case of Andrew Upshaw. The judges of the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia administered a stiff rebuke to the police for their negligence in this matter, but refused to disturb Upshaw's conviction. "We share the indignation expressed at unnecessary delay in arraigning prisoners," Justices Miller and Clark wrote. "Police executives should discipline officers who are guilty of that practice." In his dissent Justice Edgerton was still more emphatic in his criticism.

It should be evident by now that the courts cannot resolve this dilemma. Whether they throw out all confessions obtained by delaying arraignment, as the Supreme Court is inclined to do, or whether they criticize such law enforcement and let noncoerced confessions stand, the result is unsatisfactory. In the first instance many guilty individuals are certain to escape punishment. In the latter case, lawlessness on the part of arresting officers is encouraged. Only the local authorities and Congress can provide a remedy that will satisfy the demands of both justice and law enforcement.

We have previously suggested, and we suggest again, that the District ought to have a committing magistrate on duty day and night. And police officers should be under positive and unmistakable instructions to take persons arrested on suspicion of having committed a crime before the magistrate within a specified number of hours. This is an administrative and legislative responsibility. The courts may criticize and upset convictions with little avail unless this atrocious practice of making "arrests for investigation" or "false imprisonment," as Justice Edgerton aptly calls it, is corrected at its source.

"Strange Unification"

I find rather curious your editorial of April 21, "Strange Unification." Therein was indicated your wholehearted desire for the presentation of unified estimates of defense requirements, and for a single unified defense program to be laid before Congress by the Administration. The editorial then proceeded to belabor all three services equally for making "rival claims" for funds, for engaging in "active competition for the favors of Congress," and for the "deplorable division" in the defense establishment.

Unless I am badly misled by your news columns, Mr. Forrestal recently presented a unified program for expansion, as an Administration program having presidential approval. Your reporters, and a recent editorial, subsequently indicated that Air Force leaders insisted to Congress that the Air Force must be expanded to 70 groups without regard for the remainder of the program.

Your news columns also indicated that the Army asked for small additional increases over Mr. Forrestal's program. But nowhere have I seen it stated in your columns that the Navy in any way or in any particular failed to concur with Mr. Forrestal's program, or asked for one cent of additional funds or one additional man not provided for by the unified program.

It seems to me that if The Washington Post is sincerely interested in a true unification it would give credit to those services which conform with a unified Administration program, while condemning only those which engage publicly in precisely the active political competition for funds which The Washington Post purports to deplore. To beat all services over the head for acts of which only the Air Force appears to be seriously guilty, and of which the Navy appears to be totally guiltless, serves only to promote disunification.

It must be obvious to many that the Air Force strategy is to encourage the feeling that unification is not working, and that all services are equally guilty. Thereby the Air Force can best promote political action to supersede the present organization with a single general staff on the German pattern, which, aided by the propaganda-fed public hysteria over air power, the Air Force feels it can control to its own ends. Senator Morse has already introduced a bill for this purpose. Must The Washington Post fan the flames whereby our present democratic military organization will be replaced with a dictatorial model which reeks of militarism?

"Women's Status"

Your April 19 editorial on "Women's Status" was excellent, and on behalf of the National Women's Trade Union League I want to express appreciation. The editorial gave an admirable summary of the line of argument presented by the proponents at the recent hearing on the equal status bill, and to us it is incontrovertible. I am sure, however, that you will have adverse criticism from some quarters, and I congratulate The Washington Post on its usual enlightened attitude and on speaking out in the face of such criticism.

Those of us who have been working for many years to eliminate specific unjust discriminations against women believe that we have now arrived at a constructive over-all approach, and we are very grateful for your help in making the issue clear.

AAUW Policy

The American Association of University Women has operated for 65 years on the accepted biracial pattern. There have never been more than a dozen Negro members in a half dozen scattered branches of its more than 1000 branches. For years there has existed a national organization of Negro college women, called the National Association of College Women. And though the AAUW has blanketed in various groups of collegiate alumnae through the years, waiving eligibility requirements, it has never approached this organization of Negro college women with an invitation to amalgamation, or even cooperation.

Yet it has "excommunicated" the Washington branch because of one act of exclusion in a case trumped up as a "test", and has covered itself in a wide garment of perfectability by saying that its oldest and largest branch has "excluded" itself because, forsooth, the branch no longer shares with it the "principle of unity in the common cause of education on which the association was founded".

An even more serious thing is the apparent neglect of the AAUW to include in its comprehensive legislative program any measure relating to such civil rights for the Negro as are provided in the FEPA, anti-poll-tax and antilynching bills. The current issue of the AAUW Journal lists the measures to which it is committed and for which it is actively lobbying. Yet in this entire list not one of these measures is included. It has not even recommended that they be made subjects of study by its branches. However, the national board now places the burden of this neglect upon a single branch, with the penalty of exclusion. Would it not be more becoming to ask the Washington branch to join it in a common "mea culpa?"

German SS Guilt

In your issue of April 21, W. B. Ellinger disagrees with my contention of April 14 that, having acted on superior orders, the SS officers on trial at Nurenberg should have been found not guilty of war crimes as charged. He refers to the German military penal code of 1940 to support his view that the orders given were unlawful and the soldiers should have refused to obey them. He concludes with the statement that German penal and military law was "flagrantly disregarded" by the Nazi government.

It will be remembered that that government was in control of Germany, which fact was recognized by the United States. It will also be remembered that these soldiers acted while their country was at war. The state was supreme, and disobedience to its will meant court-martial and death. And that is the way it should be. During war times no government could exist very long if the military quibbled over the question whether or not particular orders were unlawful according to some statute.

The matter should be looked at from a practical standpoint. If the defendants at Nurenberg had disobeyed, they would have been shot, but having done what they considered their duty, they are now tried by their conquerors and sentenced to be hanged. "Be damned if you do, and be damned if you don't."

Kinsey Report Use

Mrs. Agnes E. Meyer raised a difficult and most important issue for our day in her criticism of the Kinsey Report, the question of cultural lag, especially as regards the findings of science. What she said was worth saying and is worth repeating, since the two letters which appeared in answer to her on April 19 seem to have missed the point completely.

Certainly this matter is not going to be settled in the letter columns of the newspapers. Mr. Kinsey's method of research has its peculiar dangers, however. Perfectly valid results have been gotten by it. On the other hand, it has shown again and again that data so obtained can be utterly worthless. No one acquainted with research in education, for instance, would accept conclusions drawn from such data without the most searching inquiry. It has been done too often in the past.

What we have here, though, is a piece of research which has passed over into the realm of the best-sellers where its influence has little relation to its value in its field. The naive public which is rushing to read this report because of the publicity it has received and to defend conclusions based upon it in the name of scientific freedom is wholly incompetent to judge it on its merits.

High school teachers and mothers of growing boys, who find themselves "enlightened" by the instances of male sexual behavior reported by it, obviously do not have the background in the field necessary for critical reading. Their ignorance forces them to take its findings on faith. Conclusions which may or may not be warranted by the data are formed in an atmosphere of childlike awe before anything that goes by the name of "science." Without a statistical background, ignorant of the difficulties inherent in the survey method and without experience of the problems presented by its application to this field, the claim that "everyone who reads the report has a right to draw his own conclusions" would seem meaningless.

The possible consequences of this situation to behavior are obvious and serious. Calling it a moral problem is not a magical device which will cause it to disappear. Medical men have accepted their responsibility to the layman in this respect. It is time for other scientists to consider theirs. J. W. C.

Guard Leadership

In an article in the Evening Star on April 9, Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox was quoted as stating that he is ready to resign when the D. C. National Guard is on a firm footing, completely organized, and with certain difficulties straightened out, naming as such difficulties, control of the armory and the recent charges of "wanton disregard of law" in reference to expenditure of Guard funds. In an article appearing in The Washington Post the following morning, General Cox was quoted as saying that he had no intention of resigning.

Has not the reputation of the National Guard of the City of Washington been damaged enough without such conflicting statements being attributed to the ranking officer of our local Guard?

In a recent editorial the Star advanced the thought that it was "time to change the Guard." It seems that the time has come for the proper authorities to take the action necessary to permit our National Guard, under proper leadership, to start to get on a firm footing, and to recruit up to strength so as to assume its proper place in our national defense system.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

A.E.C. Appointments

IN THE present period of stalemate, the Republican Congress is frequently blamed for refusing to try to cooperate with the Democratic President. This being a political year, the temptation to play politics with legislation and with presidential appointments is almost irresistible.

The other day the President himself seemed to be guilty of doing just that. And the issue at stake could hardly be of greater concern to each and every one of us.

In reappointing the five members of the civilian Atomic Energy Control Commission, President Truman appears to have deliberately tried to pick a quarrel with the Congress. At least that is the way his action is being interpreted by responsible Republicans who have tried to keep atomic energy out of politics.

UNDER THE McMahon Act putting atomic energy under civilian control, all five commissioners were named for a term of only one year. Then, after that first year, the appointments were to run for one, two, three, four and five-year terms. The latter arrangement was, of course, to insure continuity of direction in the vast undertakings of the commission.

With the terms of all the commissioners expiring in August, the President had a problem to work out. He could have waited until after the present Congress had adjourned in the summer and then he could have reappointed all the commissioners. In that way the present commissioners might have served until the November 2 election had determined the new President and the new Congress. If another President did not like the appointments, he could have withdrawn them.

What President Truman did do was to send up the five appointments, with Chairman David Lilienthal named for the five-year term. He did this without consulting Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper, chairman of the Joint Congressional Atomic Energy Committee.

There is nothing in the Constitution to compel Mr. Truman to consult in advance with the Congress. But the fact is that Chairman Hickenlooper has for his part tried to work with the Executive in keeping the whole shattering business out of politics and trying to insure that there would be no break in the continuity of control.

When Hickenlooper got word that the appointments were about to be sent up, he rushed to the White House. He suggested that there was a way out which would avoid controversy.

This was to give Chairman David Lilienthal of the Atomic Commission the one-year appointment. It was around Lilienthal that the quarrel of a year ago centered. But the Senate, Hickenlooper suggested, would accept the present chairman for another year so there would be no interruption and no renewal of the bitter feud which did so much harm.

The President ignored this suggestion. He went through with his original plan, with the reappointments being speeded to the Capitol so fast that they got there almost before Hickenlooper had time to return from the White House.

THIS HAS a special irony in that Lilienthal had told several members of Congress that he would be happy to accept the one-year reappointment. The hard-working chairman is naturally not anxious to go through again the trial by fire he endured last year. He indicated that the one-year appointment would be an acceptable compromise, since it would carry the term of the chairman into the middle of 1949 and thereby give the new President ample opportunity to decide what he wished to do.

To push the present nominations will cause a quarrel. Perhaps in the end the reappointments could all be confirmed. But, in Hickenlooper's belief, a public feud would do almost more harm to the development of atomic energy—and particularly certain projects now under way—than the bitter quarrel of a year ago.

Therefore a suitable way out is being sought. It may lie in a bill now under study. This provides that the appointments of all five commissioners be continued for a year after the date of their expiration this August.

Such a bill could be passed with little difficulty it is believed. If it were vetoed by the President, then all hope of confirmation of atomic appointments would be ended. In many ways this would seem to be a reasonable compromise. Above all, it is important to try to avoid the kind of blowup which might seriously hamper the developments of atomic energy.

Civil Disobedience

I disagree with Mr. Grant Reynolds of the New York State Correction Commission in his advocacy before a House committee of a "civil disobedience" drive against segregation in the armed forces. While I am opposed to segregation in any form, I doubt seriously that this method of trying to eliminate it will obtain the desired results or that it is the proper way to attempt to bring about such action.

This idea which follows the pattern laid down by Gandhi is not practicable or workable in our country. Changes can and have been made through democratic processes. This is the American way. Mr. Reynolds' views do not represent in any way the opinions of the majority of good-thinking Negroes. M. T. TAYLOR.

Diplomacy In Palestine

THE COURSE of events in Palestine is making it increasingly probable that the key to a settlement is in the kingdom of Trans - Jordan. This has long been the view of many qualified and disinterested students of the problem, and what has been happening and what is likely to happen tend to confirm it.

Lippmann

THE KINGDOM of Trans-Jordan was a part of Palestine under the original mandate granted to Great Britain after General Allenby conquered it from the Turks. In 1923 Trans-Jordan was separated from what is now known as Palestine by a British proclamation, and after this, the first partition of Palestine, Trans-Jordan became in effect a crown colony and after that a nominally independent kingdom bound by a treaty which makes it a British protectorate.

As the British troops are being withdrawn from the territory west of the Jordan, and as the mandatory government is being disestablished, there have emerged in the region as a whole two principal centers of organized military and political power. The one is the Jewish Agency and the Haganah army; the other is King Abdullah and the Trans-Jordan army.

IF THE PRESENT guerrilla fighting were to become an organized war, the war would be fought between the Haganah and Abdullah's army. And if this war is to be avoided and a political settlement reached, it is now reasonably certain that it can be achieved only if Britain and America jointly are able to negotiate an arrangement between the two principal parties actually on the ground.

For unless Abdullah's army crosses the Jordan and invades Palestine in force, there is no present likelihood that the Jews will be forced out of the main territory assigned to them by the recommendation of the General Assembly of the United Nations. Moreover, if Abdullah's army remains in Trans-Jordan, there is no other Arab army of any importance which could wage war in Palestine. If such an army existed, it would have to cross Trans-Jordan, and indeed to use Trans-Jordan as its base of operations, in order to conduct an organized military campaign.

For these reasons the key to the prevention of a serious war in Palestine is to find out what King Abdullah will do when the British mandate ends.

THIS SHOULD not be inordinately difficult. For on the one hand Trans-Jordan is allied with Great Britain and, on the other hand, Great Britain after the termination of the mandate can be counted upon, one must assume, to fulfill its obligations under the Charter of the United Nations. It is bound to use its whole power and influence to restrain King Abdullah from crossing the frontier and committing aggression, and to oppose him if he does. Since he is entirely dependent upon Britain for money, since his army has been trained, equipped, and officered by Britain, diplomatic advice should be sufficient.

Until this diplomatic action has been carried out and diplomatic measures of this sort exhausted, the idea of sending American or any other troops into Palestine,—except possibly to support a special agreed arrangement for Jerusalem—should not even be contemplated.

IT IS unthinkable that either in Washington or in London there should be any hesitation or doubt on the necessity and the justice of these diplomatic measures. For otherwise our whole moral and legal position in Greece and the Balkans will collapse. Trans-Jordan is to the guerrilla fighting in Palestine what Yugoslavia is to the guerrilla fighting in Greece. The two problems are identical except in one crucial respect. Great Britain is not Russia, and it will therefore, restrain Trans-Jordan unequivocally, and it will collaborate without vetoes or abstentions or boycotts in measures to prevent direct or indirect aggression, and in the search for constructive proposals for a negotiated settlement.

IT SEEMS NOT unlikely that as the problem is explored we shall find that the results of the first partition of Palestine in the 1920's are the foundation on which the consequences of the second partition in 1947 can best be dealt with. It may be that in the end the solution will be to reunite the whole of Palestine on both sides of the Jordan in a loose confederation of two or three autonomous but not wholly sovereign states, perhaps with Abdullah as King of a Greater Palestine.

Such a solution is not inconceivable if Britain and America jointly decided to promote it —Britain using its influence with Abdullah and America its influence with the Jewish Agency. A wise and adroit diplomacy working on these lines would encourage and induce the Haganah to exert its authority over the terrorists of the Irgun and the Stern gang and would encourage and induce King Abdullah to exert his authority over the Arab terrorists under the Grand Mufti.

SUCH A GREATER Palestinian confederation would alone be capable of solving the economic problem of Palestine. For since it would control the whole valley of the Jordan, there could be set up under it that Jordan valley authority without which the Arabs and the Jews can have no real hope of a future without struggle and bitterness and squalor.

The financing of the development of the Jordan valley could be done by the World Bank. It is the kind of project which the World Bank was designed to undertake. The use of American influence to bring this about might well be made an integral part of that new American policy for Palestine toward which the Administration is painfully working its way.

Murray Held Ready to Take Non-Red Oath

By Laurence Gonder
United Press Staff Writer

President Philip Murray of the CIO and high officers of the CIO United Steel Workers will soon sign non-Communist affidavits under the Taft-Hartley law, a union official predicted yesterday.

Murray, who also is president of the Steel Workers, has refused to sign the affidavits since the act became law last year. He said it was a matter of "principle" and that he believed the section is unconstitutional.

The law provides that no union can use the services of the National Labor Relations Board in a union shop or collective bargaining election unless its officers have foresworn communism.

The United Press informant, who declined to be quoted by name, said Murray still believes the non-Communist section is invalid.

"But," this CIO official added, "Murray's refusal to sign is costing the Steel Workers heavily in money, prestige and membership."

Meat Strike Parley Begins Ineffectually

The first of a series of Government-sponsored conferences between the "big four" meat packers and the striking CIO United Packinghouse Workers yesterday apparently failed to bring the 41-day strike any closer to settlement.

Representatives of Armour & Co., and the union conferred for three hours with Federal mediators. A union spokesman said no progress was made. A Government spokesman said the two groups would meet again at 9 a. m. EST. today.

Nation-wide Rail Strike Looms As Parleys Fail at Deadline

Chicago, April 26 (U.P.).—A Nation-wide railroad strike threat loomed tonight with the expiration of the required 30-day cooling off period at midnight.

Three unions, representing 150,000 engineers, firemen and switchmen, warned that unless an agreement was reached by that deadline, a strike date would be set "soon thereafter."

The threat arose amid negotiations between the unions and railroads. Neither side reported progress.

Still Far Apart

A spokesman for the railroads said the disputants were as far apart on wages as they were when negotiations began in October. Despite more than six months of parleying, mediation and Government intervention, he said, the unions still maintained their original demand for a 30 per cent wage increase.

J. P. Shields, assistant grand chief of the Engineers Brotherhood and spokesman for the unions, said the two sides "are still meeting, but we're not saying anything else at this time."

15½ Cents Sanctioned

A fact-finding board appointed by President Truman under the National Railway Labor Act recommended last month that the railroads grant a 15½-cent hourly raise.

By midnight all the strike-delaying provisions of the act will have been exhausted, and the unions will be free to strike at any time. Railroad men hoped negotiations would continue. Union officials declined comment.

The carriers believed one strong bar to a strike was that their pay increase offer, plus 25 proposed changes in working rules, were retroactive to last November 1.

Fur Workers Strike Against 750 Firms

New York, April 26 (A.P.).—Members of the CIO International Fur and Leather Workers Union officially went on strike today against 750 firms belonging to the Associated Fur Coat and Trimming Manufacturers Association.

Irving Potash, vice president of the union, said 10,000 men were affected. There was no immediate effect on the industry, since almost all shops have been closed since April 2. The manufacturers said the closing was due to the slack season, while the union contends it was locked out.

About 600 other manufacturers, not affiliated with the association, were not struck.

Italian Elections

By Sumner Welles

First Step Against Communism

MORE THAN two thirds of the Italian people have rejected communism. They have decided that free democracy is better than a police state directed from Moscow. They have shown they believe that their own self-interest links them to the west.

Many of us seem complacently to think that this means that Italy's course is now definitely set. In reality the elections mark only the first step. If the Italian people are to remain free they will need our support for a long time to come.

The Communist Party of Italy is still the most powerful in western Europe. The elections showed it has little popular strength. It is going to seize every chance it can get to discredit democratic government and to sabotage the European Recovery Program. It will increase rather than lose its hold upon the mass until the new democratic government remedies those social and economic ills that are the chief reason for communism's appeal.

The living standard of most Italians is miserably low. Overpopulation and the lack of natural resources are national handicaps that can only be surmounted when there is once more a peaceful world economy. If the help we give Italy during the next few years is used as it is intended, production will increase, employment will be restored and the general living standards will rise. But only the Italian government itself can cure such evils as the present feudal system of land tenure and the appalling gap between the impoverished masses and the privileged few. Radical social reforms are more needed in Italy than in any other part of western Europe outside of Spain and Portugal.

Until the western democracies have all met successfully the social challenge which each faces, in greater or lesser degree, they will not have won their contest against communism.

THE KREMLIN, however, sees that present trends are favorable to the west. The Brussels pact is one indication. The Italian elections, the organization of the 16 western European nations and the customs union between France and Italy are others. Conditions have been improving in Great Britain and in France. The recent policies of the three major powers in western Germany are contributing to recovery. In Norway and in Denmark popular opinion is demanding incorporation in the western bloc. Only in Sweden does the illusion still persist that isolation is possible.

There is increasing evidence of growing hope and a will for unity among the western democracies.

If Russia is prepared to gamble, she will move westward this year before American rearmament becomes a reality and before the European Recovery Program can make itself felt.

But in view of the hardening of the determination of the west, it is more likely that she will for the time being merely consolidate her recent gains from Finland to Czechoslovakia, and from Hungary to the Balkans, while continuing to probe for soft spots in Asia and the Near East.

That means, of course, that for an indefinite period the world will be divided into two spheres of influence. It also implies a prolonged contest in power politics, with the United States one of the two chief contestants.

In the long struggle that looms ahead the Soviet dictatorship enjoys one major advantage. Its policy is ruthless. It is consistent. It is also infinitely patient.

AMERICAN POLICY cannot be ruthless. It has often been inconsistent. Recently it has shifted as often as the controlling influences exerted upon the Executive have changed. In the years that lie ahead those who conduct our foreign policy are going to be subjected to every conceivable kind of domestic pressure. There will be the politicians who, because it will be popular with their constituents, will claim that the European Recovery Program should be halted before the objectives sought are even in sight. If there is a momentary lull in the international scene, the taxpayers will want to know why they should pay for rearmament. With our characteristic impatience, many of us will applaud the demands of the sentimentalists, the fellow-travellers and the peace-at-any-pricers that the President "sit down with Stalin" and reach a settlement.

The United States does not want war. So far as we can tell neither does the Soviet Union at this time. But the surest way of making war inevitable would be a reversal of our present policy and a premature settlement.

The western democracies are apt to concentrate upon the immediate objectives. The masters of the Kremlin shape their policy to reach objectives that can often only be attained in the distant future.

The danger of war will be eliminated when some government in Moscow reaches the conclusion that Russia's power, persistence and patience are matched by those of a united west. Only then would the United States be warranted in trying again to negotiate the settlement which can create a one-world, rather than a two-world, order.

Mine Pension Trustees Silent After Meeting

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

The three trustees of the coal miners welfare fund met for two hours yesterday but refused to tell what happened.

They me tin a controversial atmosphere. One of the trustees, Ezra Van Horn, who represents the operators, has filed suit to throw out, as illegal, the plan which the other two members agreed upon two weeks ago.

Backing the plan, which would pay $100 a month to miners over 62 years old, are John L. Lewis, miners' union president, and Senator Styles Bridges (R., N. H.), the neutral trustee.

After the meeting, Van Horn and Lewis refused all comment. Bridges said matters of administration were taken up. He said another meeting will be held Wednesday afternoon.

In the coal fields, meantime, full production was restored yesterday, for the first time since March 12.

On that date, Lewis wrote a letter to his 400,000 union members, stating that the union contract with the operators had been "dishonored" through failure to agree on a pension plan. A month later he and Bridges, newly-appointed as neutral truste, reached agreement on a retirment benefit scheme.

The union contract with the coal industry expires June 30. Under the Taft-Hartley Act, Lewis must give 60 days' notice if he seeks to negotiate a new one. Next Friday will be the deadline for this notice. At that time, Lewis may give an indication of his new demands.

Police Told Of Threat to Kill Reuther

Detroit, April 26 (A.P.).—An unnamed minor union official reported to police tonight that a man carrying a gun told him he planned to shoot Walter P. Reuther, president of the CIO United Auto Workers.

Police Commissioner Harry S. Toy termed the tip "startling" and ordered his best detectives to follow it up.

The tipster informed police he talked to the man April 20, the night the red-haired UAW leader was shot down by a shotgun blast through a kitchen window of his home.

Commissioner Toy said it might require three or four days to pin down the tip, adding it "may take us to an adjoining city."

Toy did not give out the name of the informer or of the man who purportedly made the threats.

Meanwhile, officers began scanning a list of all the men Reuther purged from office in the big CIO-UAW.

Union headquarters gave detectives about 150 names of persons who lost their jobs after Reuther become president of the UAW-CIO. Most of them were fired after the 1947 convention when the red-haired labor leader gained complete control of the one-million-man union.

The police asked for the list, a UAW-CIO spokesman said.

Carl Bolton, 37, a former convict and former vice president of Ford Highland Park Local 400, UAW-CIO, was taken into custody Sunday after being questioned and released earlier. No charge was placed against him.

Officers said they want to talk some more to Reuther, himself. They went to the hospital Saturday, but his physician advised against any questioning at that time.

C. U.'s Polishing Windup Musical

By Richard L. Coe

ABOUT THE TOWN: This is the time of year when drama groups are whipping up their final productions of the season . . . Out at Catholic University, Father Hartke's skilled students are putting the final touches on their annual musical, "Alley Moon," by Instructor Walter Kerr, with music by Stephen Allers . . . A special preview for "Father's Fund" will be held Saturday night, with the opening scheduled for Sunday at 8:30 . . . Patrons of this charity will find their five bucks per going to help talented students finance hteir careers in the department . . . Prospective patrons may contact the department at the university, MIchigan 6000 . . . Evelyn Davis, taking time out from her own studio, is staging the dances for the cast of 60.

THE MOUNT VERNON Players are working on Benavente's "Bonds of Interest," which opens a two-week run at their Undercroft Auditorium, 900 Mass. Ave., Thursday night . . . Though first produced in 1907, it wasn't till after World War I that this country saw the Spanish drama, which became the Theater Guild's first play after the group changed its name from the Washington Square Players in 1919 . . . Principal players for the Mount Vernon group will be Francis Mayer, Mary Forrester, Ray Ramus and Frances Lowe . . . For reservations call DIstrict 1484 after 7 p. m.

ST. PAUL PLAYERS are readying "Double Door" for two performances Thursday and Friday nights in their auitorium at 1425 V st. This melodrama by Elizabeth McFadden will find Pauline Cotterall as the youthful bride who battles the greed of her half-sister-in-law. . . . Supporting this lass from England, Jamaica and Trinidad, will be Robert Mattina, William Seebach and James Edmund Day.

MARYLAND NUIVERSITY'S speech and drama department opens Moliere's "The Miser" tonight at the university campus theater, to continu ethrough the week. . . . Lyle Mayer is directing the Marylanders.

THE SACRED HEART players will continue their tenth anniversary musical, "Rio Rita," through Wednesday night at the Sacred Heart Hall, 1625 Park rd. . . . Directing this Ziegfield hit of the late '20's is a former Ziegfield girl, Dorothy Mason Walton. . . . Mrs. Walton's players include Tom Rounds, Mary T. Sullivan, Joseph Zeiss, Courtney Werner, Max Garrison, Mary Ruddy, Jack Pyne, Marie Lamb, John Gnall, Doris Cumberland and Ray Lloyd. . . . For tickets phone TAylor 2121.

THE YOUNGER SET is busy, too. Rose Robison Cowen's Children's Studio will repeat "Miss Lollypop's Party" Friday night and Saturday afternoon and evening at the Arts Club . . . "Miss Lollypop's Party" is a one-act original by Mrs. Theodore Tiller; other short plays by the Cowan students will include "The Dragon Who Giggled," "The Clown of Doodle Do," "The Ant and the Grasshopper" and "Little Miss Muffet."

SHIFT: Getting back to the big timers, tonight's the big opening of the little Playhouse, a gem of a theater if we ever saw one . . . By now you, too, may have noted that the green fence has been stripped away from 727 15th st. and the classic entrance to the one-time bank has been neatly turned into a smart modern . . . Inside, the decor is coral and gray, with specially designed carpeting . . . The 450 chairs are the ultimate shout; you slide yourself back when someone wishes to cross in front of you . . . The house itself is ready to go, which may not sound like a triumph to anyone who's not seen a theater only a few hours before its opening moment . . . Yesterday, that struck us as the most remarkable feature of the theater—actually ready for Margaret Truman to press the buttons which will start the machinery tonight . . . Before that, you'll be hearing the Army Air Force band in the lobby, with searchlights playing over the benefiting National Symphony Orchestra's posh audience . . . Inside, after the arrival of the White House party, Meyer Davis' orchestra will accompany the Metropolitan Opera's Jarmila Novotna for the National Anthem.

JARMILA NOVOTNA, who shares star billing of "The Search" with Aline MacMahon and Montgomery Clift, will be in town early today, and her first date being with the sprightly Senate and Bill on their "Brunch" program for WQQW at high noon today . . . Sleek Senate and good-looking Bill couldn't be better hosts for the Met's Czech soprano and Metro's surprise star.

HERBERT GAL: Carol Merrill, one of the bright ladies in Victor Herbert's "The Red Mill," which last night returned to the National stage for a week's visit. Buster West, Fifi D'Orsay and Pat Rooney, jr., are among Carol's musical playmates

Chamber Favors Tax Reductions

Richmond, Va., April 26 (AP).—Support of a long-range Federal tax reduction program aimed at meeting the essential needs of the Nation, gradually retiring the national debt and encouraging "a stable and prosperous economy," was announced today by the Virginia Chamber of Commerce.

The tax program was one developed jointly by State Chambers of Commerce. It carried the direct endorsement of 28 such groups including the State chamber here.

Eventual reduction of personal income tax rates to 15 per cent, or less, at the starting point and 50 per cent in the top income bracket and maximum corporation income tax rates from 38 per cent to 32 per cent and later to 25 per cent, or less, were among the individual and business tax changes advocated in the program.

A 450-pound safe reportedly containing between $300 and $400, was carried away from Count's Restaurant, Damascus, Md., early yesterday, Montgomery County police reported. It was recovered several hours later on the farm of Frank Fraley, near Derwood, minus the cash.

Wherry Tells 1000 Delegates Congress May Get Soldiers by Incentive Plan

Congress may try to solve the military manpower problem by voting "incentives" to volunteers, Senator Wherry (R., Nebr.), acting majority leader, suggested yesterday.

Wherry and former Postmaster General James A. Farley addressed more than 1000 delegates as the thirty-sixth annual meeting of the nited StatUes Chamber of Commerce opened a four-day stay yesterday at the Statler Hotel. It was the largest opening day crowd in the organization's experience.

In his address, Farley told his audience he has "no intention of playing a return engagement in politics." He said "I want it clearly understood that I am not a candidate for any office."

Wherry and Farley spoke before the Chamber's Citizenship Luncheon. Later, members of Congress and other Washington officials were honored at a series of informal state congressional dinners at hotels throughout the city.

Wherry Scores Appeasement

California deleagtes honored their Senators and Representatives at a dinnerr, also at the Washington Hotel, at which A. P. Giannini, founder and head of the aBnk of American, and Henry J. Kaiser, the industrialist, were speakers.

In his luncheon address, Wherry said of the manpower problem for military needs:

"I think it will be done by offering incentives for a volunteer army and augumented by a limited selective service to be used at the option of the President to guarantee the required number in the event the volunteer system is inadequate."

Wherry blamed most of the "world's ills" and much of this country's rising defense budget on "secret deals made at Quebec, Yalta, Teheran and Potsdam." And, he added, on "years and years of appeasing Russia."

Largest First Day Crowd

Wherry said the country must handle the "extra burdens of defense and foreign aid without converting our economy into a police state."

"By that I mean, without restoration of the controls, directives and innumerable other means of regimentation that we patriotically endured during the war.

"It will avail us nothing to secure freedom for the rest of the world and lose our freedom here at home."

He urged federal economy as a matter of "stark necessity," and called the tax reduction act as "the best tonic I know to keep our free enterprise American system strong."

The largest opening-day crowd in the 36 years of the chamber's annual sessions assembled for the four-day meeting.

Farley told the chamber that "businessmen have neglected the cause of better Government" and thereby have "damaged their own interests." He urged support of Congress as "the bulwark of our democracy." This is particularly needed, he said, at a time when world peace is manaced by "one nation."

The State congressional dinners held last night were scattere throughout the city.

The five New England States co operated in one dinner held at the Mayflower Hotel. Other States which held dinners at the Mayflower were Tennessee, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Kansas and Louisiana.

First General Session Today

The Delaware, Georgia, Texas and Washington dinners were held at the Carlton Hotel.

The Statler Hotel was the scene of the South Carolina, Illinois, Michigan, Ohio, Wisconsin, Montana, North Dakota, South Dakota and Missouri dinners.

New York and North Carolina delegates feted their Congressmen at dinners at the Shoreham Hotel; the Florida dinner was at the Wardman Park; the Mississippi and Nebraska dinners at the Raleigh Hotel; the West Virginia dinner at the Metropolitan Club, and the Minnesota dinner at the Willard Hotel.

The States of Arizona, Colorado, Idaho, Nevada, New Mexico, Utah and Wyoming were represented at a joint dinner at the Hamilton Hotel, which was also the scene of the Oklahoma dinner.

The first general sessio of the United States Chamber of Commerce will begin today at 10 a. m. in the Presidential Ballroom at the Statler.

After a keynote address by Chamber President Earl O. Shreve, the delegates will hear Secretary of State George C. Marshall; C. Bruce Hill, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, and Clem D. Johnston, chairman of the Chamber's Committee on International Political-Social Problems.

There will be separate luncheons for the delegates and their wives. The delegates will lunch at the Malflower Ballroom and afterwards will hear a panel discussion on the business outook. The wives will lunch at the Terrace Banquet Room at the Shoreham. An Organization Night Dinner will be held in the Presidential Ballroom at the Statler at 6:30 p. m.

K-F Rivals Raided Stock, Eaton Hints

Cyrus Eaton testified yesterday that "someone" said competitors of Kaiser-Fraser had "probably organized an attack" on the motor firms stock. This was the day Kaiser-Fraser spent $2,500,000 for stock to stabilize its price.

Eaton did not say who made the remark. He said it came at an anxious meeting in Henry Kaiser's office as the stabilization operation ran up against heavy selling.

Eaton, of the Cleveland banking firm of Otis & Co., was a witness at the Securities and Exchange Commission investigation of the sudden cancellation of a banking deal to offer 900,000 shares of the motor car company's stock to the public at $43 a share.

On February 9, Otis & Co. and the First California Co. of San Francisco withdrew from a contract to offer the stock. On February 3, Kaiser-Fraser had bought 186,000 shares of stock to steady its price in preparation fo rits offering to the public.

The Cleveland financier said he did not give his views on the stabilization move, nor were they asked by Kaiser-Fraser officials. "I made no suggestions one way or the other," he said.

On February 12, the day the hearing opened, Kaiser, chairman of the motor company, testified the purchases were made on the advice of Eaton.

Earlier, two Wall Street Journal reporters testified that an Otis & Co. official in New York, Theodore L. Bailey, gave them erroneous information that the common stock issue had been sold.

Patrick Carberry said Bailey called him on February 4, the day the stock was to be offered, and told him the books on the issue hadbeenclosed.

Later, he said, the banking firm's Cleveland office issued a statement denying the offering had been sold.

New York Cotton

New York, April 26 (AP).—Cotton futures declined $2.45 to $3.50 a bale today under pressure of commission house and New Orleans selling.

Traders remained confused over the operation of the foreign aid program and the extent to which it will draw on all crop cotton supplies. This sentiment, along with heavy may liquidation, prior to first notice day Tuesday, accounted for considerable pressure in the nearby futures deliveries.

Washington reports that it may take two weeks to wind-up all details on the private Japanese cotton credit program was also disturbing to traders who had looked for an immediate export demand from that country.

Favorable crop news, including badly needed rains in Texas and Oklahoma over the week, stimulated selling in the new crop months.

Taxi Driver Found Guilty Of Homicide

A Municipal Court jury deliberated an hour yesterday and found Joseph P. Touma, 41, guilty of negligent homicide.

The charge resulted from the traffic death last year of Joe M. Basile, 57, at 11th and K sts. nw. Sentence was deferred pending a probation office report.

Touma, a cab driver who lives at 4313 Kansas ave. nw., was tried once, but a hung jury caused a mistrial.

Basile, a pedestrian, was struck after Touma's cab struck another car, and Touma's vehicle careened off to hit Basile.

Richard Roberts, Assistant United States Attorney, argued that Touma was under the influence of alcohol, was speeding, and was overtired from lack of sleep at the time of the accident. The case was heard before Judge Aubrey B. Fennell.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, April 26 (AP).—Grains sank in another weak market today, but final prices were well above the day's lows. More rain in the Southwest, a further lowering of Government wheat buying prices and fears of oats imports from Canada combined to cause the selling.

Prices were off a couple of cents at the opening. Selling pressure continued throughout the first hour until May wheat and May corn were down around 4 cents. May wheat sank below last week's low, as did all deferred corn contracts. A mild rally developed toward the close.

At the finish wheat was 1¼@2¼ under, May, 2.36¼@2.39½; corn was 1½ to 2 cents lower, May, 2.13@2.14¾; oats were ½ to 2 cents lower, May, 1.07¼@1.07¾, and soybeans were unchanged to a cent higher, May, 2.96.

Fairs of Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas and Nebraska received moisture over the weekend. More light showers were forecast for scattered sections of the winter wheat belt. All the rains of the past several days, while not heavy in most areas, have stopped worry over new crop prospects.

Again following the market, as it has done on the current decline, the Commodity Credit Corporation at Kansas City reduced its wheat buying price 2¼ cents a bushel. The agency offered to pay 9 cents a bushel over the Chicago May future priced at 2.36. This represented a drop of nearly 10 cents a bushel since last Thursday.

Virginia Auto Inspection Points Listed

Seventy-five garages and filling stations in nearby Virginia have been designated as official inspection agencies for Virginia's annual automobile inspection campaign which begins Saturday.

State Trooper R. H. Lester, in charge of the inspection in Alexandria and Arlingeon, Fairfax and Prince William counties said the inspection agencies are generally the same as those last year.

The inspection deadline is June 15, and Trooper Lester said there is little liklihood any extension will be granted.

Last year the deadline was extended three months because garagemen had difficulty in obtaining parts necessary repairs.

Rep. Flannagan Suggested for Anderson's Job

By The Associated Press

President Truman was asked today to consider appointment of Representative Flannagon, Virginia Democrat, as Secretary of Agriculture.

Represetnative Cooley (D., N. C.), head of a seven-man delegation and a leader among Democratic Congressmen sponsoring Flannagan, said the President did not commit himself nor say when the selection will be made.

Flannagan declined to comment. Cooley, however, has said he is receptive.

Flannagan has announced he will not run for reelection.

Boy, 15, Held In Theft of Church Cash

A 15-year-old boy, who opened a bank account with $200 cash last week, was arrested yesterday for the theft of more than $400 in change from the Church of the Nativity, 6001 13th st. nw.

The Right Rev. John F. Hannon, rector, told police the money was taken sometime during the night of April 18 from the strong room, which had been entered by chiseling a hole in the plaster wall.

Police first began to watch the boy, when they learned he was going from store to store, converting change into bills. In addition to the money in his bank account, they found almost $87 in his room, when he was arrested, they said.

A student at Paul Junior High School, he had often attended the church. He told police he took the money to buy an automobile. He was sent to the Receiving Home to await Juvenile Court action.

Weekend thefts reported to police yesterday included:

Ellis M. Kupersmidt, manager of the Coast-In Pontiac Co., 407 Florida ave. ne., reported the office safe was opened by combination and a metal box, containing more than $800 in cash, stolen.

A $200 microscope was taken from a laboratory at Doctors Hospital, and a $200 movie camera was stolen from the auto of Maj. Edward R. Gilbert, of 4250 Lee Highway, Arlington, while it was parked at 4th st. and Pennslyvania ave. nw.

Ronald Neff of Kenmore, N. Y., told police his suitcase containing clothes valued at $130, was stolen from outside a telephone both he was using in Union Station.

District Rent Bill Approval Due Wednesday

Congressional approval is expected Wednesday for the bill to extend District rent control through March 31, 1949.

The House yesterday approved a conference report recommending that the measure be passed substantially in the form adopted earlier by the Senate. Senate agreement on the report is expected Wednesday. That would send the bill to the White House.

While extending rent controls generally, the bill removes those on transient hotels, certain rented rooms and other accommodations.

Donaldson to Be Feted on Monday

The gathering will mark Donaldson's thirty-fifth anniversary as press gallery superintendent. He joined the Capitol staff as a page boy 37 years ago. The Washington Post erroneously reported Sunday that the party was scheduled for last night.

Business Outlook

Speakers Can't Hide Ghosts At U. S. Chamber Meeting

By J. A. Livingston

variety of people—and you never know where, how or when a new contact will blossom into business.

THE PRESS accommodations at these sessions are apt to make managing editors wonder if they really need reporters. Ben H. Lambe, has been with the chamber for 30 of its 36 years of existence and who is in charge of publicity, provides a valet service for newspapermen. Prepared releases afford a running account of proceedings. Speeches are mimeographed and available usually well in advance, along with summaries. This last service is invaluable. It enables a newspaperman to determine which sessions to sit away from. And there's no prohibition against telling friends.

Meetings like these do something to businessmen invited to deliver speeches. They forget that most of their lives have been spent in producing or distributing goods or helping others to do so. They forget that they can't be expected to be experts on credit policy, or Federal expenditures, or foreign affairs overnight. But they try. Suddenly they get the urge to rise above themselves and become great industrial statesmen. They go to books of famous quotations for high-sounding phrases; or they hire ghost writers. Result: Artificial pearls.

That's why the smaller meetings on particular problems—like labor relations, or transportation problems, or insurance—are usually the most meaty. At such sessions the speakers talk about what they know and feel, about their own experience. They take their hair down.

THERE ARE individual exceptions to these generalizations, of course. Eric Johnston, two times president of the United States Chamber, is a forceful speaker on nonbusiness subjects. His work at the chamber broadened his viewpoint. Another exception is Paul G. Hoffman, who as president of Studebaker Corp. branched out and founded the Committee for Economic Development and who now is administrator of the Marshall Plan.

Hoffman was scheduled to speak at these meetings, but showed his usual sense of the fitness of things and canceled. He explained that he was not yet ready to speak on the Marshall Plan—that he was not yet fully steeped in the subject—and yet, in view of his job, he didn't consider it appropriate to speak on anything else.

Red Sox Slow Down Nats, 6-0, Before 29,000

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

A KENTUCKY DERBY record will go into the books even before the field is one jump away from the barrier in Saturday's run for the roses — the Calumet entry of Citation and Coaltown will be the shortest-priced favorite ever to go to the post in the big race.

POVICH

The two sons of Bull Lea, who could finish no better than eighth in his own Derby outing ten years ago, transcend the pre-Derby picture so completely that they are expected to wind up as 1-to-5 shots by post time. That's twenty cents on the dollar, in plainer language, a new low.

Thirty years before the mutuel machines were introduced at Churchill Downs, in 1908, the colt Himyar won the 1878 Derby at 1 to 4, but the modern record as odds-on favorites is shared by Bimelech in 1940 and Count Fleet in 1943. They were 2-to-5 shots at post time. Bimelech ran second. Count Fleet won his race.

The feats of Citation and Coaltown have been so tremendous that it now appears only five or six entries will contest the Calumet pair. It will be the smallest Derby field in years, with owners reluctant to post the $1000 entry fee on the slim chance that they can saddle anything to beat the two big C's.

IT COULD happen that neither Citation nor Coaltown will win the race, in which event it would be no complete surprise to such racing realists as Walter Haight, who has seen 2-to-5 shots and 4-to-5 shots get licked in the same Derby "They still have to run around the track, and a lot of things can happen when they are running around the track," says Haight with an easy philosophy.

If Haight picks the Calumet entry to take the Derby, he won't do it with any lack of misgivings despite the logic for selecting that pair at this time. "A hundred things can happen during the running of a race," he points out, "not forgetting what happened to that favorite in the Grand National in England years back. He was out in front in the last quarter, he didn't stumble, didn't lose his rider and wasn't disqualified. But he didn't win. He was struck by lightning in the stretch."

The chief contention on Saturday probably will be offered the Calumet pair by My Request, the New York winner now being shipped to Kentucky. My Request ran a neat mile and sixteenth to win the Wood Memorial in 1:46 1/5, two seconds faster than Assault in the same race two years ago, on a track that wasn't fast. But My Request is bucking the time-honored Derby jinx of most Wood winners.

THE FACT IS that Ben and Jimmy Jones, the father-son trainer combination for Warren Wright, don't know yet which is the best horse in their barn—Citation or Coaltown. Most trainers will observe that that is a wonderful predicament to be in, and the Jones are to be envied.

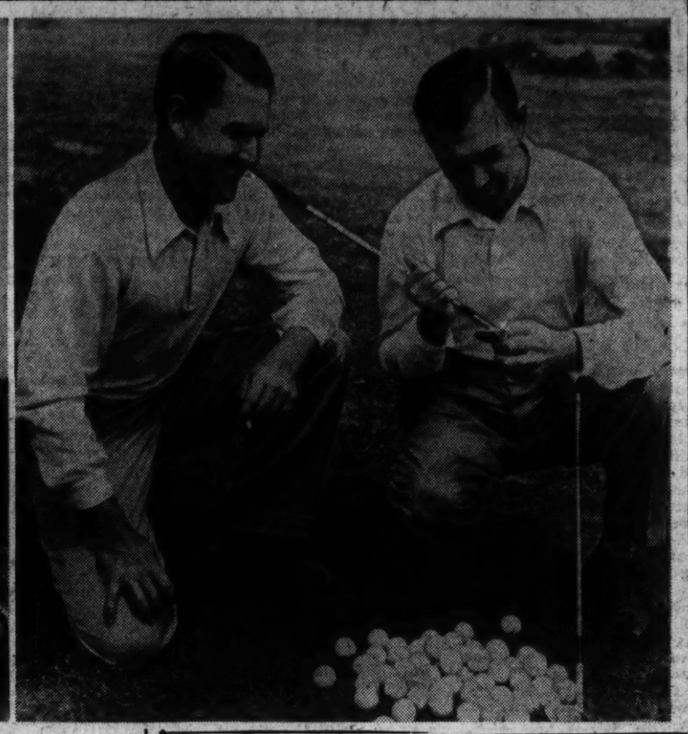
The Citation vs. Coaltown duel presents a race within a race and probably overshadows Derby interest otherwise. The winter book operators who have been taking Derby bets for months will be rooting hard for Coaltown. The bookies would clean up. There was scant if any betting on Cotitown in contrast to the heavy wagering on Citation. In fact, until a few weeks ago Coaltown was not even a Derby figure. They didn't know for sure whether he'd get to the tracks this season.

Coaltown didn't race as a 2-year-old. He was down with a pulmonary ailment and at one time it was feared he was a windsucker, but whatever did ail him he rebounded nicely from it. He hasn't been licked in any start this year, and he won the Blue Grass Stakes at Keeneland the other day in record time. That was at six furlongs, but he has always acted as if he wouldn't be bothered by the Derby's mile and a quarter.

AN OFF TRACK AT LOUISVILLE on Saturday would not favor Citation, apparently. His only defeat this year was on the soft track of the Chesapeake Trial at Havre De Grace, where Saggy took him. Eddie Arcaro claimed that Citation was forced wide in that one, and a week later he ran Saggy into the ground to win the Chesapeake Stakes impressively despite a strange bit in his mouth after his favorite bridle broke on the way to the post.

That Chesapeake victory of Citation's was notable for another incident. It produced a new note in the traditional communique from the jockeys' room after the race when the winning rider is interviewed. Customarily the winning jockey always says "I had a great horse under me," or "he did everything I asked him," or "he ran like a champion."

Arcaro, however, wasn't guilty of any of those cliches. Asked for a post-race statement by newspapermen, he said quote, "Help me get these goddam boots off."



Ted Williams Gets 4 Hits, Griffs Make Only 1 More

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Before the largest night-game crowd in Griffith Stadium history the Nats were ignominiously shut out by the Red Sox, 6-0 last night.

Ted Williams, with four straight hits that figured in all of the Boston run-scoring was a co-hero with Mel Parnell, rookie left-hander who held the Nats to five hits. A standing-room crowd of 29,043 saw the game.

Mickey Haefner was the losing pitcher but was the victim of errors by Mickey Vernon and Sherry Robertson that figured in three unearned runs. The final Red Sox run was scored off Forrest Thompson in the ninth.

An hour before game time standing rom only was available at the stadium with a record night-game crowd of more than 27,000 indicated.

The pitching stage was set for an all-southpaw duel when Mel Parnell took the mound for the Red Sox against the Nats' Mickey Haefner. Haefner turned back the Red Sox scoreless in the first inning.

Nats Score—But Lose It

At the end of an uproarious Washington half of the first inning the Nats also had no runs despite the fact Eddie Yost opened the inning with a triple to deep center, and Al Kozar drew a walk. Parnell fanned Gil Coan, and the Nats were victims of a freak play when Vernon's smash toward right field hit base runner Kozar on the foot. Yost, who crossed the plate on the automatic hit, was recalled to third and Kozar was declared out.

Base Umpire Hurley had allowed Yost to score but Umpire-in-Chief Charley Berry reversed him, after Manager Joe McCarthy protested loudly that the ball struck Kozar. Parnell got out of the inning by grabbing Culberson's tap down the base line and tagging the hitter out despite a nasty spill when Culberson ran into him.

Ted Williams' throwing arm frustrated the Nats in the third inning when Eddie Yost was out trying to stretch a single to deep left and in the fourth the Red Sox jumped into a 2-0 lead with the help of an error by Mickey Vernon.

A single by Williams opened the Boston assault on Haefner and, with one out, Vernon booted Spence's smash near first base, Williams taking third. Doerr popped up, but a walk to Mele filled the bases and Rookie Matty Batts lashed a single past Christman to score Williams and Spence.

Another Washington error—by Sherry Robertson—helped the Red Sox into a 3-0 lead with an unearned run in the fifth inning. Ted Williams, unfeazed by the Nats' special right-field shift, singled into center with two out and scored from first when Robertson misplayed Stephens' liner to right field. Stephens reached third but was stranded.

The Nats flunked out on a counter attack in the fifth after Christman singled to left with one out and took third on Evans' single to center. Evans moved to second when Dom DiMaggio bobbled the ball, but Parnell steadied and struck out both Haefner and Yost.

The Red Sox produced the only scoring threat of the sixth inning. Bobby Doerr popped a double into short right that Kozar over-ran with none out, but Haefner buckled down and retired the next three hitters on pop-ups.

A two-bagger by Johnny Pesky off the right field wall started the Red Sox off on a two-run rampage in the seventh. Ted Williams, with his third straight hit, a single to center, scored Pesky and moved to third on Vern Stephens' single to right center. After Spence popped up for the second out, Williams scored on a Haefner pitch that got away from Evans for a passed ball.

Worsham Hot Again, Shooting 66

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

A month ago the golf world was saying, "What in the world has happened to Lew Worsham?"

Today, they're still talking about the home-town U. S. Open champ, but they've changed their tune. Now it's "Look out . . . Worsham is hot again."

The big fellow with the protruding chin and constant smile apparently has rediscovered the touch which led him to the National Open crown last year.

Yesterday, at Prince Georges, he zoomed around the par 72 county layout in 66 strokes, the best scored turned in by any of the pros practicing for the National Capital Open which starts Thursday.

Just a year ago, Worsham caught fire. He finished among the top five in last year's Prince Georges show and went from here to St. Louis where he scored a stunning upset to win the U. S. championship.

He Did Win at Denver

He's been a disappointment since then, however, finishing on top in only one tournament—the Denver Open last fall. Things got so bad with him at one stage that he called it quits, abandoned the winter tour and rested for a spell at his home club, Oakmont, Pa.

He rejoined the pro brigade down in Florida during the winter, but did nothing to distinguish himself in any of those tournaments. In the Masters' he was way down the list. But all of a sudden like he came to life again.

At Virginia Beach two weeks ago, in the Specialists' Tournament, he set what is believed to be a world's record for 54 holes—198—to win first place in that star-spangled field. Sunday he established a course record at Quantico, Va., with a 69.

Lew had no ready explanation yesterday for his recent successes. "I'm just hitting the ball, that's all," he said.

Other Stars Tune Up

Worsham is no stranger to the Prince Georges course. He held the record—a 66—until last year when Ed Furgol of Pontiac, Mich., scored a blistering 61 to shatter Lew's mark in the first Capital Open.

Worsham wasn't the only big-name golfer getting in practice licks yesterday. Ben Hogan, Cary Middlecoff, Amateur Frank Stranahan, Jim Ferrier, George Fazio and Dutch Harrison weer also around. Stranahan ,the muscular Simonpure tutored by Byron Nelson, reported a 67, and Harrison, the Arkansas Traveler, was even par, 72.

Today and tomorrow also will be devoted to rehealsals with something special added to Wednesday's program. It's a golf clinic wherein the experts demonstrate their best shots. Demaret will conduct the show.

The tourney proper opens Thursday with 18 holes slated for Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday in the four-day scramble for $12,500 in prize money.

Big-Name Players Arrive

By Charles DelVecchio—The Washington Post

Gibson, Harper and Oatman Win PGA Berths at Manor

By Roger Wolbarst
Post Reporter

Andy Gibson, Chandler Harper and Harold Oatman captured the three qualifying spots from this area for the National PGA championship in St. Louis in yesterday's PGA sectional qualifying round at Manor Club.

Gibson, Country Club of Baltimore pro, ran away from the rest of the field of 24 prospective qualifiers by firing a par 70 and a 68 for a 138 total.

Far behind in second position was Chandler Harper, Portsmouth, Va., with rounds of 70-75—145. Harper was alternately very cold and very hot during his morning round.

He had a six over par 41 on the outgoing nine, but did a complete about-face coming in as he racked up six birdies while shooting a six-under 29.

The hird qualifying spot went to Oatman, of Norfolk, Va., who had to work for his berth. At the finish of the regulation 36-hole-round he was deadlocked with a fellow townsman, John O'Donnell, at 146. Oatman had 74-27 and O'Donnell 75-71.

Oatman won his berth in the sudden death playoff by parring the third hole while O'Donnell went over.

Max Elbin, Burning Tree Club pro, led the Washington golfers with a 79-75—154. He was followed by Manor pro Claggett Stevens, 81-74—155 and Bobby Bowers, Indian Spring, 79-77—156.

Prince Georges' Al Houghton and Kenwood's George Diffenbaugh withdrew after shooting opening rounds of 79 and 76 respectively.

GW. Hoyas Play At Stadium Today

Two of the best collegiate pitchers hereabouts will be matched today as George Washington and Georgetown baseball forces meet for the first time this season at Griffith Stadium, starting at 1:30 p. m.

Georgetown, victor in 10 of its 13 outings so far, will start right-hander Tommy Flynn. The gangly star has won five games for the Hoyas, losing only to Penn State.

G. W. is expected to use Pete King, stellar southpaw. In his last start King limited Maryland to six hits, winning his second of three decisions. King's usefulness isn't limited to his mound work. He's the Colonials leading hitter.

Schneiter Low In PGA, 134

New York, April 26 (AP).—George Schneiter of Ogden, Utah, tournament chairman of the Professional Golfers Association, whittled 10 strokes from par today to pace sectional qualifying rounds for the 1948 PGA tournament. He had 66—68—134 at Salt Lake City.

The eveent will be staged at Norwood Hills Country Club in St. Louis May 19-25.

The trials are to qualify 103 golfers for the tournament the field of which will be supplemented by 31 exempt players and the first 25 low scorers in the National Capital tournament at Washington, D. C., next Thursday.

Former Open Champion Lawson Little and the veteran Horton Smith were other "name" performers to make the grade as par evaded most of the specialists who made the qualifying attempt today. Little had 73—75—148 at Richmond, Calif., and Smith shot 72—70—142 at Detroit.

Two qualifiers—well known in this area were Edgar (Rut) Coffey, former Winchester, Va., pro now at Moundsville, W. Va., and Errie Ball, formerly of Charlottesville. Coffey shot 79—74—153 at Pittsburgh, and Ball had 65—76—141 at Chicago.

Palmero, Italy, April 26 (U.P.) The four-member Czechoslovak tennis team led by Internationally Seeded Jaroslav Drobny said today it would not return home for the time being "for reasons of health." The team—Drobny, Vladimir Cernik, Milan Matous and Helena Strauberova —said they had not gone to Hungary over the weekend because they missed their plane.

Feller Saves Tribe, Win in 14th, 12-11

Chicago, April 26 (AP).—Eddie Robinson and Bob Feller—appearing as a relief pitcher—produced unbeaten Cleveland's fifth straight victory today when the Tribe trimmed the Chicago White Sox, 12 to 11, in a 4-hour and 20-minute, 14-inning game before 5965 persons.

Robinson opened the fourteenth inning with his second homer off Earl Caldwell, the losing pitcher, for the game's third run since the fifth inning.

When Russ Christopher, sixth of seven Cleveland pitchers, threw a single to Taft Wright and walked Aaron Robinson in the Chicago half of the fifth extra inning, Feller took over.

37 Hits in Game

The game was productive of 37 hits for 68 total bases. Cleveland's portion of this harvest included four homers, round-trippers by Larry Doby and Ken Keltner besides Robinson's pair; two triples and two doubles, all by Manager Lou Boudreau, and 14 singles.

Boudreau used his second double, the fifth of five straight hits, to drive in Cleveland's tenth and eleventh runs in tying the score in the Tribe ninth.

Coon Winner Of Trip to World Series

AN 18-YEAR-OLD Washington-Lee High graduate, James C. Coon of 428 N. Monroe st., Arlington, yesterday was the thoroughly excited winner of The Washintgon Post's first weekly "Pick the Winners" baseball contest.

Coon, who filed his entry "and then forgot about it because I didn't think I had a chance," wins a ticket to a 1948 World Series game plus a round-trip railroad ticket to the series city nearest Washington. He also wins two tickets to one of the Nats' home games.

Because he expects to be enrolled in George Washington University next fall, Coon last night expressed the desire to see a weekend game. "But if that's impossible, I'll have to miss school a day," he added.

Though he entered all of The Washington Post's contests during the football season, Coon's triumph in the first baseball contest was the first of his career. He follows the Nats closely but claims to know little about other major league teams.

Coon picked 11 winners in the 12-game contest. He was matched in this respect by George E. Park, 1710 Abingdon dr., Alexandria. Coon, however, predicted the exact score of three of the teams involved while Parks was able to pick only one.

The contest entry blank appears in The Washington Post each Sunday with a World Series trip going to the winner each week. Be sure to fill out your blank and send it in this week. You have until midnight Wednesday to do so.

Get That Entry In!

There's still time to get in your entry for this week's "Pick the Winners" baseball contest. Any blank postmarked before Wednesday at midnight is eligible. Just clip the form from Sunday's edition of The Washington Post, or draw a reasonable fascsimile, and send it to The Baseball Contest, 1325 E st. nw. Your chances are as good as the next fan's.

Augusta Wins, 3-2

The schools are open to every kid in the District. They begin at 10 o'clock on Saturday and last for approximately two hours. Later on, the Walter Johnson leagues will be formed

Here's where the school will be held:

Reds Getting Mighty Sweet on Hank Sauer

His .417 Average Includes 4 Homers;

By Jack Hand

New York, April 26 (AP).—Hank Sauer, Cincinnati's rookie fielder, is a spring sensation in the majors with four homers and a .417 batting average.

They say the big fellow, a grad of the Syracuse farm club, will strike out often and it probobly is true. But if he can come close to her early pace, he will do.

Vic Lombardi, the half-pint lefthander sold by Brooklyn to Pittsburgh last winter, can give you first-hand information. On opening day Sauer touched him for a two-run homer. Yesterday he faced him again on relief. The result was a ninth-inning blast that won the first game of a doubleheader.

With eight runs batted in, four homers and 10 hits in his first 24 at bats, Hank appears to be on his way. He hit 50 balls out of International League parks last summer.

Sauer, of course, is not the only rookie who has been burning up the National League in the first week of the season. The Phils' Richie Ashburn is hitting .367. Not bad for a tow-headed kid who was supposed to be playing for Toronto.

The New York Giants' Whitey Lockman has a .375 mark on two terrific days. Saturday he drove in seven runs against Boston. Over in the American League Catcher Gus Niarhos, the New York Yankees' catcher, back after a year at Kansas City, is winning the No. 1 receiving job by hitting .500.

Hall Jeffcoat, the Chicago Cubs' centerfielder who hit .346 at Nashville, is proving it was no mistake to make him over from a pitcher into an outfielder. He hit two homers off St. Louis Card pitching in the last two days.

Leo Durocher, of course, has youngsters in and out every other day. Preston Ward, the Dodgers' first baseman who moved up from Class A, has been hitting the ball hard. So far he has filled the bill. Another new first sacker, Ted Kluszewski, has been banging away at a steady clip since he took over at Cincinnati. Nippy Jones is hitting over .300 at St. Louis.

Cleveland's Negro outfielder, Larry Doby, who was up as an infielder last year, ruined Detroit in two games and Washington's Al Koz has been hitting consistently.

Detroit is playing two rookies every day—Connie Berry at short and George Vico at first. Vico repaid Manager Steve O'Neill for his confidence by smashing a homer on the first pitch thrown to him. Gil Coan, Washington's perennial rookie, is hitting around .367.

Pete Layden, the St. Louis Browns' centerfielder, has looked good and so has the Phils' shortstop replacement for the injured Eddit Miller, Granville Hamner.

New pitchers who have impressed in their early outings are Lou Brissie of the Philadelphia A's, Cliff Chamber and Bob Rush of the Cubs, Howard Judson of the Chicago White Sox, Erv Palica of the Dodgers and Sheldon Jones, who has been up before with the Giants.

Stanky Has Fun As Braves Romp Over Bums, 5-0

The Sports Beat

Ray Evans Signs With Pittsburgh

Kansas City, April 26 (AP).—Ray Evans, All-America halfback at the University of Kansas, signed a one-year contract today to play professional football for the Pittsburgh Steelers.

John Michelosen, the Steelers' new coach, in announcing the deal, did not disclose the terms of Evans' contract and it was reliably reported last month that the Steelers had offered the Ohio star $21,000.

Michelosen indicated thta Evans will be used at left halfback in the Steelers' single and double wingback formations.

Veeck Under Knife

Cleveland, April 26 (AP).—President Bill Veeck of the Cleveland Indians will enter Cleveland Clinic next Monday for additional surgery on his injured right leg.

Veeck, who suffered the injury while serving with the Marines during the war, already has had two amputations on the leg.

The leg has now been amputated to a point about 8 inches below the knee.

Business Picks Up

Indianapolis, April 26 (AP).—The Indianapolis American Association Baseball Club has drawn 69,109 cash customers in its first home stand. This exceeds the paid attendance for the entire season of 1941.

Rangers, Leafs in Swap

New York, April 26 (AP).—The New York Rangers of the National Hockey League today sent four players to the Toronto Maple Leafs of the same circuit for Elwyn Morris and Wally Stanowski, both defensemen.

Defenseman Bill Juzda, Right Wing Rene Trudel' and Center Cal Gardner are the Rangers sent to the Leafs, Stanley Cup winners of 1948, immediately.

Little Guy Has Triple, Single, Walk

Boston, April 26 (AP).—Eddie Stanky, traded off by the Brooklyn Dodgers last month, enjoyed a field day in his first crack against his old mates today as the Boston Braves shut out the National League champions 5-0 to end a four-game losing streak.

The little second baseman cracked out a triple, single and drew a walk in four times at bat. His walk came in the first inning as leadoff man and led to Boston's first run. His triple in the third led to another run, and his single in the seventh was followed by Jim Russell's home run. In the field, Stanky handled eight chances cleanly.

Bill Voiselle handcuffed the Brooks with three singles. Only one Dodger, Pee Wee Reese, got as far as second base. Voiselle walked three and struck out two. Arky Vaughan and Duke Snider were the others besides Reese to reach Voiselle safely.

The only run the Braves scored without the help of Stanky came in the second inning. With one out, Phil Masi walked and stole second. Alvin Dark singled to left scoring Masi, but was out trying to reach second on Vaughan's throw to Gene Mauch.

Bob Elliott collected a single and double and drove in the first Boston run.

GW High Makes Too Many Hits, Game Is Called

The voice on the phone said, "we only played five innings, they called the game on account of too many hits."

He was speaking of the George Washington-Falls Church highschool baseball game held yesterday at GW—and he was dead right. The score was 19-0.

Billy Philyaw, GW right-hander, pitched no-hi-no-run ball while his teammates were clubbing out 15 hits and 19 runs in the five-inning span.

But even with all this it wasn't the largest score of the day.

Over in Mount Vernon, the Mount Vernon team ran all over Roosevelt, 34-3, banging out 19 hits. The Rough Riders contributed nine errors to the proceedings.

Giants Win 5th in Row, 5-1; Koslo Holds Phils to 7 Hits

New York, April 26 (AP).—Lefty Dave Koslo, making his first league start following a winter operation on his pitching elbow, hurled a seven-hitter against the Philadelphia Phillies today as the New York Giants registered their fifth straight victory, 5-1.

The Giants collected eight hits off Schoolboy Rowe and his two successors, but five of them were for extra bases including Sid Gordon's two-run homer. Whitey Lockman cracked a double and triple and Walker Cooper smashed two doubles.

Rowe, who was tagged for six hits, failed to last out the third inning. Lockman's first inning triple and Gordon's single accounted for the first Giant run. Cooper doubled home a run in the second.

Lockman's double and Gordon's homer, the Giants' 10th of the season, chased Rowe in favor of Ken Heintzelman in the third. Cooper's double off Heintzelman ended the Giant scoring.

Koslo lost his shutout in the eighth when pinch hitter Ralph Caballero singled, was forced by Richie Ashburn and Bert Haas followed with a double to score Ashburn.

Browns Beat Tigers, 2 to 1

St. Louis, April 26 (AP).—The St. Louis Brown shaded the Detroit Tigers 2-1 today behind the effective pitching of Fred Sanford. The opener of a three-game series drew only 1274 fans.

Sanford doubled in the sixth inning, advanced on Bob Dillinger's single and then scored the winning run himself on Chuck Stevens' single.

Whitey Platt's long double drove in Dillinger with the Brown's other score in the fourth. Catcher Bobby Swift came back with a four-bagger to the left field bleachers in the next inning to tie the score.

'Skins Go After Behr, Midget Terp Running Back

Proof that press notices, or lack of them, sometimes don't mean a thing was contained in yesterday's revelation that Sammy Behr, Maryland University halfback, had been offered and was considering a Washington Redskin contract.

Behr played less than a full game with the Terps last year. The 5-foot-10, 165-pounder started the season with an injured foot and was hampered in efforts to repeat his stellar '46 play under Coach Clark Shaughnessy. But . . .

Behr got into the West Virginia game and looked kood. It happened Redskin Coach Turk Edwards was on the Maryland bench. Off that one outing, Edwards expressed "a lot of interest in Sammy's speed."

Sammy, overlooked in the National Football League draft, likes terms offered by the 'Skins.

"But I've got to think it over a little," he says.

GW Beats Out VPI in 11th, 4-3, When Fielder Loses Fly

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

A nice even swap of fly balls that got lost in the leftfield sun postponed George Washington University's victory over Virginia Tech until the eleventh inning yesterday, the Colonials finally winning 4-3, at Griffith Stadium.

Going into the ninth inning G. W. looked like an easy winner. Gene Gould, hurling 6-hit ball, had coasted on a 3-1 lead since the third inning and had been out front since his mates voided the Gobblers' first-inning score with a 2-run outburst of their own.

But Gould walked Shortstop Kean to start the ninth. Curley Kuldell, at short for the hosts, committed his third fielding error on Dalton's grounder and a sacrifice out put runners on second and third.

At this point Leftfielder Frank Cavallo lost the first ball in the sun. Folta's fly fell in front of him and before he recovered, the tying runs were across.

Very little happened until the last of the eleventh after two Colonials were out. Third Baseman Joe Famiglette, laughingly announcing he was "shooting for the fence," almost came through when he pounded a ringing triple to right center.

It was then the turn of Leftfielder Slayton of VPI to lose a ball in the sun. Kuldell's towering drive dropped a foot in front of Slayton as he stood stock still, shielding his eyes. Famiglette was already across the plate with the winning run.

Gould was credited with his third victory against no defeats this season, giving G. W. a record of seven won and four lost. The victim was Gil Falson, a right-hander, who gave up nine hits and walked four as he went the full 11 innings.

Deer Season Opens May 1—In Germany

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

BUDDY LEVINSON, clerk in a D st. sporting goods store, thought he was hearing things the other day when a customer asked for shotgun shells for the deer season opening May 1.

The request was legitimate, though. His customer was Lieut. Harry Immel, a C-54 pilot, headed back for Germany where the season on deer opes May 1 and runs through January 31, 1949.

Lieutenant Immel was buying shells for Lieut. Gen. Clarence Huebner, chief aide to General Clay. The pilot makes regular trips back to the States and was taking advantage of this one to stock up.

"Shells made in Belgium are fair," Lieutenant Immel reported, "but the products of the other European countries are very poor, particularly Italy's."

There's plenty of game in the Frankfurt area in which he hunts. Immel's favorite game is boar on which there's no closed season. "It's good sport and provides delicious meat," said Immel.

This is a good time to remind all fishermen that we welcome news of outstanding catches or experiences. Don't restrict your boasting t othe boys at the office. Or don't be bashful. We're eager to get good anecdotes.

MISCELLANY: North Carolina's news bureau wires that rockfish are running up the Roanoke River in their annual spawning migration and two or three weeks of good fishing are ahead around Weldon, N. C. (modestly called the rockfish capital of the world). . . . At its quarterly meeting the Game and Inland Fish Commission of Maryland cut a full month off the wild turkey hunting season by designating new dates for 1948, November 15-30. . . . Last year, the season ran through December. After hearing testimony from Game Warden Joe Minke of Cumberland, that there were only about 300 wild turkeys left in the State, the Commission passed the new regulations. . . . Although hundreds of hunters protested, the commission also reduced the period during which doevs may be shot legally during the September 1-October 15 open season. . . . New hours for shooting doves will be from noon to sunset instead of sunrise to sunset.

We reported recently that striped bass (rockfish) won't be taken from the Potomac until mid-May. Robert C. Bing, 1103 C st. se., promptly corrected us. "On Sunday, April 13, while fishing for white perch, I caught a rockfish weighing 14 pounds 2 ounces," Mr. Bing wrote, "and I have seen several small rocks taken from the Potomac since. I will admit that this is the earliest I have seen rockfish caught here."

Coaltown Doubtful In Tuneup

By Gayle Talbot

Louisville, Ky., April 26 (AP).—As if he had not already scared enough horses out of the Kentucky Derby. The wondrous Citation is scheduled to flex his muscles again tomorrow in the Derby Trial at Churchill Downs.

It is considered almost a forgone conclusion that the Calumet Farm's long-striding beauty will run all over several competitors in the 1-mile event and possible reduce the Derby field even further. It's down to about seven now.

Citation's almost equally noted stablemate, Coaltown, is included in the list of five entries for the trial—last serious tune-up for Saturday's storier race—but nobody really expects the second half of Calumet's one-two punch to reach the barrier.

Ben Jones, general manager and trainer emeritus of the Calumet string, practically has admitted that the streaking Coaltown will not have his eagerly-awaited "match race" against Citation until they both face the starter as an odds-on entry in the $100,000 mile and a quarter Derby on Saturday.

That being th case, Citation likely will be asked only to outleg W. L. Brann's Escadru, A. C. O'Neil, jr.'s Galedo, and Howard Wells' Eagle Look. Citation and Escadru will be even weighted at 118 pounds, while the other two will come in at 110. Coaltown, in the outside event he should start, would pack 115.

Both Escadru and Galedo, as of tonight, were included among the seven probable starters in the Derby, with Eagle Look only a cague possibility. What Citation does, or does not do to them tomorrow might go a long way toward making up their owners' minds.

Chemical Research On Man Advocated

Plotting of Metabolic Patterns Might Reveal Potentialities, Scientists Told

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

Intensive research into man's chemical makeup to determine his strengths and weaknesses by laboratory analysis was urged here yesterday.

Such study, for the purpose of setting up "Metabolic Personality Tests," was proposed before members attending the annual meeting of the National Academy of Sciences by Dr. Roger J. Williams, chief biochemist of the University of Texas.

Preliminary work in the special science, Dr. Williams reported, has shown that each individual has a distinct metabolic pattern. By scientific plotting of these patterns, he suggested, man's potentialities may be bared by the laborator's microscope, spectrograph and other instruments for analysis.

Broad Implications Posible

"Not only does it appear that individual metabolic personalities will be found to be important in dealing with such diseases as alcoholism, infantile paralysis, circulatory diseases, allergies, diabetes, dental decay and mental diseases in general, but it seems likely that these metabolic patterns are factors in numerous general problems such as nutrition, education, marriage and divorce and even in a broader way in peace and war," he declared.

He said he could see no reason why laboratory tests could not be devised to show, among other things, whether an individual might become an alcoholic, whether another might crack up under strain of combat, or even what mental quirks a man might be heir to.

The study, said Dr. Williams, has been limited to date to healthy students or employes of the university's Biochemical Institute, which he heads. Even with such limitation, he said, "a number of distinctive features have been found."

Man's "Enormous Variation"

The metabolism tests, he pointed out, were further limited to urinary excretion of amino acids, the presence of amino acids in saliva, to differences in sodium, potassium, calcium and magnesium contents of saliva and a few other types of testings.

Scientists, said Mr. Williams, have been prone to "oversimplify" man, to "reduce him to the average man," and "overlook man's enormous variation." Dr. Kinsey's studies in sexual behaviorism, he said, "show that healthy male individuals differe from each other in certain important aspects of sex by as much as 10,000-fold."

"When such enormous variation as this exists, the characterization of 'the average man' becomes a wholly unimportant item," he declared.

"Human understanding underlies all social problems, however limited or however broad, and it is essential that we learn to take ourselves as we are and learn to live with ourselves in a realistic fashion.

"This we can never do until we recognize the tremendous significance of the stamp of individuality which helps to make us what we are," he concluded.

In concurrent session of yesterday's annual meeting, other scientists heard a report on experimental brain operations on casts by two scientists of Johns Hopkins School of Medicine, Drs. Philip Bard and Vernon B. Mounteastle.

By selective operations on the forebrains of cats, they reported, the animals could be rendered either ferocious or placid. With the entire forebrain cut away, the felines displayed rage on slight provocation; when the underlying structure of the forebrain was left intact, the cats could not be stirred to anger.

Ex-Policeman

Bethesdan Sent to Jail In Bet Case

Millard L. Broadhurst, 51, of 4701 West Virginia ave., Bethesda, Md., a former Montgomery County policeman, yesterday was fined $1000 and sentenced to six months in jail yesterday on a charge of accepting racing bets.

Judge Warren Browning of Bethesda Police Court imposed the fine and jail term after County Officer Charles Pearson testified he had placed a racing bet with Broadhurst.

Police records show Broadhurst was a temporary appointee on the police force from December 1943 to February 1944, when he left to accept "other work."

Police testified when he was arrested February 21 he gave his present occupation as that of a real estate man. At the time of his arrest, they testified, he had $819 in cash in his possession. He appealed the sentence and was released on $1500 bond.

Weekly Rose to Girl He Loved Up to Heirs of Dead Soldier

Richmond, Va., April 26 (U.P.)—The Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals left it up to a dead soldier's heirs today to decide whether "one perfect rose" will be sent each week to the girl he loved secretly and in vain.

The court ruled that the $3600 estate left by Valentine Browne Lawless was willed to all his heirs.

The Appeals Court reversed a lower court ruling that the soldier had willed his estate to a brother, Edward Kirwan Lawless.

When Valentine Lawless went to war he made a will which mentioned that some of the money should be spent for a "special purpose." And in a letter to Edward Lawless he told the story of his hopeless love for Mildred Fitzpatrick, who never knew he loved her.

The letter asked Edward to have a florist send "one perfect rose" to Mildred each Saturday before 10 a. m. She was never to be told who sent the flowers. She was only to have the pleasure of receiving them.

Valentine Lawles died in a plane crash in Austria on October 16, 1944, but the only girl he ever loved never got the roses.

She did not know of Lawless' strange request until last summer, when the case reached the courts. Miss Fitzpatrick married Harold L. Sutton on October 25, 1944.

The soldier's sister, Margaret Lawless, said "it just isn't practical" to use the money as Valentine wished.

The Norfolk court had held that the soldier's estate was left to Edward Lawless.

The Appeals Court reversed this ruling. It held that the estate should be divided among all heirs. Since the perfest rose request was not mentioned specifically in the will, it was left up to the heirs to decide whether to carry it out.

Man Gets Top Sex Sentence

For the second time in less than a week Judge Ellen K. Raedy gave a maximum sentence to to a sex law offender yesterday in Municipal Court.

She sentenced James M. Calvert, 55, of 735 6th st. nw., to a year in jail and ordered him to pay a $500 fine or serve an additional year in jail.

Calvert, who was found guilty of indecent assault on an 8-year-old crippled boy, has a record of four previous convictions for the same offense and one for contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

Last Wednesday Judge Raedy imposed a similar sentence on another man convicted of indecent assault on a child.

According to police, the father of the crippled boy saw Calvert hugging the boy last Wednesday when the child was sitting in his wheelchair near his home, at 6th and H sts. sw.

DAR Holds To Stand on Immigration

The DAR has no intention of revising its stand opposing admission of more immigrants to the United States, it was learned yesterday.

Mrs. Roscoe C. O'Byrne, president general, said the resolution which the DAR congress adopted last Thursday asking that present restrictions be maintained, was voted "after free and open discussion from the floor."

"The vote," she said, "was largely in favor of the resolution, and was an expression of the sincere belief of the majority of the delegates that present quotas should not be altered. The resolution speaks for itself."

The organization was criticized Sunday by Archbishop Patrick A. O'Boyle of the Washington archdiocese, who said he regretted "that this grand group of estimable women should adopt a resolution so at variance with the sacred traditions of our country."

After Archbishop O'Boyle spoke at a solemn high mass, 1000 men at the Washington Archdiocesan Union of Holy Name Societies approved a resolution deploring the DAR action.

An official at DAR headquarters said yesterday that regardless of criticism of the society's stand, it would not be revised before the Congress meets again in 1949, and that it was doubtful whether the daughters would change their minds then.

Riot-Blessed Bridegroom Is Given a Break

James A. Manning, who started married life with a brawl Saturday at the American Legion Club, got a bit of a break from the United States Attorney's office yesterday.

When Manning was arraigned in Municipal Court before Judge Ellen K. Raedy, the prosecution announced that an original felony charge of assault with a deadly weapon against Manning had been reduced to simple assault.

Bond Reduced to $500

This automatically reduced the bridegroom's bond from $1000 to $500. Judge Raedy postponed Manning's trial until Saturday so his attorney, Charles Ford, can be present.

The brawl followed Manning's marriage to the former Catherine Sullivan, of 1622 34th st. nw. During the wedding reception at the Legion Club, Milton Mace, club manager, and his bartender, Andrew Burdis, were struck over their heads with bottles, one guest jumped from a second-floor window and other guests mobbed reporters and photographers.

Manning, who lives at 101 7th st. se., was accompanied to court yesterday by his wife.

Three Forfeit $25 Each

Meanwhile, three of four reception guests charged with disorderly conduct forfeited $25 collateral each before Judge Thomas D. Quinn in Municipal Court.

They were James N. Miles of 4367 Lily Pond dr. ne., the best man; Michael F. Glynn of 1249 Wisconsin ave. nw., and John D. Fitzpatrick of 501 3d st. se.

A fourth guest charged with disorderly conduct, Robert L. Kramer of 902 K st. ne., elected to fight the charge and was granted a continuance until Saturday.

Arnold Bus Workers Get Wage Rise

Bus drivers and shop workers employed by the Arnold Bus Line of Arlington will receive an "across the board" pay increase of 8 cents an hour effective May 18.

Agreement between the company and its union employes, who have been negotiating since mid-March, was announced yesterday by M. D. Mills, Arnold Lines general manager. He said a contract would be signed today at 3 p. m.

The workers were represented by Local 1079, Amalgamated Association of Street Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America (AFL).

Under the new contract, the firm's 213 drivers will be paid hourly wages ranging from $1.20 for those with no previous experience to $1.38 for employes at "top scale." Previous rates were $1.12 and $1.30, respectively.

Wages for 88 shop workers will range from $1.02 per hour for janitors to $1.43 for Class A mechanics, Mills said.

The wage increase, he added, will cost the company about $50,000 more a year. Mills stated the settlement marked the first time in several years a contract had been negotiated between the company and the union without arbitration.

Attorney General J. Lindsay Almond, jr., of Virginia, was admitted to practice today before the United States Supreme Court.

Judicial Opinions Too Long, Fancy, Jurist Asserts

Richmond, Va., April 26 (AP) Justice Herbert B. Gregory of the Virginia Supreme Coure of Appeals wrote today in the Virginia Law Review that authors of judicial opinions could be put into three classes:

(1) Those who go flitting off into the philosophy and literature of the law; (2) Those who write such exhaustive opinions that every legal point raised is pursued on paper in the minutest detail, and (3) Those who decide the particular case and nothing more.

"The primary purpose of an opinion is to decide a case. It is not to expound legal philosophy or to be an ideal piece of legal literature," the Jurist set forth.

Researcher Backs Cavalier Story

Charlottesville, Va., April 26 (AP). The Virginia Cavalier—whose existence has been doubted by modern historians—may now don his sword and plumes and remount his charger.

Dr. John E. Manahan of Radford State Teachers College, says there is ample evidence to prove his thesis that "cavaliers were attracted to Virginia as iron to a magnet."

In a dissertation at the University of Virginia, Dr. Manahan concludes that most of the Old Dominion's settlers during the 17th century came from West England, where the Stuart kings received their chief support against Parliament. Manahan defines a "cavalier" as any member of the political faction supporting the Stuarts.

3 Men to Be Hanged In Maryland Friday

Baltimore, April 26 (AP).—The second triple hanging in Maryland is scheduled for Friday, unless there is executive action.

To die are Roy Lee Latheo, 38, former hospital attendant, convicted of raping an 11-year-old girl; Ollie Smith, jr., for raping a 22-year-old girl; and Henry T. Jackson, convicted of killing Otis Mason.

Attendants at Maryland Penitentiary said three men were hanged on the same day 15 years ago.

The Federal Diary

by Jerry Kluttz

Truman Orders End Of Reemployment Rights of Thousands

ORDER: The President has ordered an end on October 22 to the reemployment rights of thousands of Federal workers. His order gives them six months to return to their old jobs.

In this group are those many employes who were transferred to war jobs under executive orders issued in 1941 and 1942. However, the President's action doesn't affect the reemployment rights of employes who were transferred to international agencies, to civilian jobs overseas, etc.

ECA: In the mill is an order to grant reemployment rights to Federal workers who are transferred to the Economic Cooperation Administration. Both Civil Service and the White House have approved the proposed order. Now it's up to ECA to decide if it wants the order.

STATE: The Senate Appropriations Committee has demanded a reorganization of this department. It reports that substantial savings could be made by bringing together units which are presently separated by arbitrary geographic, political, and commodity divisions." The inside tip is this—that Assistant Secretary Jack Peurifoy is working on such a plan which he will take to Secretary Marshall this week.

The committee also says that United States delegates should be instructed to hold United States contributions to international groups to below the 50 per cent level. It made the comment after it came to light that our contribution to the Pan-American Union this year had been increased from 50 to 70 per cent.

CENSUS: The committee restored House cuts for these programs: business, industrial, foreign-trade, Government, agriculture and international statistics. It upheld House slashes for population and field supervision programs.

CAB: The committee added a rider to raise the salary of the chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board to $12,000 and for its four members to $11,500.

WEATHER: Committee members are irked by inaccurate weather reports. The committee bluntly suggested that the bureau make more accurate weather forecasts before it goes into "border activities of meteorological interest."

PATENT OFFICE was given $285,000 by the committee with the understanding that it will be used to provide better salaries for examiners. The committee concluded that the big patent backlog of work could be better cut down by paying better salaries to present employes, rather than hiring new and untrained people to replace those who resign because of the present salary structure.

SECRETARIES: Civil Service now says it plans to hold its first secretarial exam in its history late this summer. The test will be for jobs CAF-5 through CAF-7. It will be written. However, secretaries will be given credit for experience which means most Government secretaries should pass the test.

LABOR: A plan to allow it to raise the salaries of a few of its professional and administrative officials to $15,000 a year was killed by the Senate Appropriations Committee which reported:

"The raising of the statutory $10,000 ceiling should be accompanied by general legislation to cover all agencies, rather than by means of provisions in appropriation bills for each agency."

The committee made it plain that union registration functions required by the Taft-Hartley Act should be retained in the Bureau of Labor Standards. Also, that the same agency should administer child labor and youth employment research functions in the Wage and Hour Division.

VETERANS: A clarification of the rights of veterans was demended by the Senate committee. It was suggested that the Senate Armed Forces Committee should immediately study the matter.

The comment was made in recommending $415,000 to continue the Bureau of Veterans' Reemployment Rights in the Labor Department. Agency officials admitted the job rights of veterans were sometimes uncertain.

NOTES: Charles C. Castella is now officially the executive officer of the Bureau Works Agency. He has been acting in the post . . . FW Administrator Philip B. Fleming is recovering from a minor operation. He's in Walter Reed . . . Commerce's office of small business is to be abolished as such. However, some of its employes will be transferred to other Commerce jobs . . . Bureau of Engraving and Printing will work only 12 Saturdays and not 17 this year.

JOB NEWS: Civil Service will announce exams soon for slug and monotype machine operators. Jobs are open in Government Printing Office. They pay $2.12 an hour . . . Only 1678 of the 4310 persons who took the messenger exam last September passed it. Nearly all of those who passed were veterans . . . The Naval Gun Factory has jobs open for machinists, boilermakers, electricians, brass melters, and electroplaters.

STATE was given $1,600,000 by the Senate Committee to construct radio relay stations for its Voice of America programs. But the committee directed that the Army Engineers should handle the job. It reported:

"State has no personnel competent to supervise the letting of contracts for such a project." The committee insisted the Army could do it better and cheaper.

'I Banged This Picture . . .'

"WHAT'S HAPPENED TO ME," asks bloodied, dazed William Johnson, 72, as he attempts to rise upon regaining consciousness shortly after he was struck by a streetcar at Massachusetts ave. and North Capitol st. late last night. The caption above is the photographer's idea of what should go under the picture. It was written by Post staff Camerman Eugene Jones, argus-eyed, forever moving. Seemingly he never goes to bed. Hardly a day passes on which he fails to bring something like this into the offic. A traffic victim in a Northwest street at midnight, a waterfront fire at dawn, a fist fight in Southeast at dusk—anything, anywhere, anytime can get into his little black box. Here's the note he sent down from the dark room with this photo:

"driving up Mass. ave. nw. towards Union station plaza about 11:15 pm last night. Just after I passed N. Capitol st. intersection, cab in front of me hit brakes fast. So did streetcar on far side of tracks exactly parallel to me. Looking that way, I saw a figure tumble out in front of the streetcar and come to rest beside streetcar lying on tracks. This put him almost right beside my car. I swerved to curb and grabbed box. By the time I ran back across the street crowd had run up from loading platform where they were waiting to board same car, and two men from streetcar which hit him were just turning him over. He was unconscious. I banged this pix less that 30 seconds after I first saw him. I did not see him actually hit, my eyes ahead at time, but I saw his body tumble out and hit ground.

Despondent War Veteran Found Hanged

Friend Discovers Restaurant Man's Body in Kitchen

Walter Henry Allison, 33, Takoma Park restaurant proprietor, was found hanging from a rafter above the kitchen door of his establishment about 8:45 p. m. yesterday.

Allison, proprietor of Walt's Restaurant, at 1110 Flower ave., Takoma Park, had been dead about 10 minutes when Silver Spring police arrived, they estimated.

He was found by a friend, Harold Day, of 3534 10th st. nw. Day said he came to pay Allison a call, noticed the front door was ajar, but the restaurant apparently closed.

Police said a note Allison left his wife told of despondency arising from poor business conditions. A war veteran, he opened the restaurant about a year ago. He formerly had been employed at Packett's drug store, Pineybranch rd. and Flower ave., Silver Spring.

A certificate of suicide was issued by Dr. F. J. Broschart, Montgomery County medical examiner. The body was removed to the Warner Pumphrey funeral home, Silver Spring.

Besides Mrs. Allison, with whom he lived at 8502 Greenwood ave., Takoma Park, Allison leaves two children, a boy, 8, and a girl, 1.

Yok Robber Given 8 Years

Ralph P. Adams, 23, of 1736 Cherry Hill rd. nw., was sentenced to 8 years in prison yesterday in Fairfax County Circuit Court on charges of two yoke robberies last winter.

Lawrence C. Williams, 21, Route 1, Vienna, Va., was placed on probation for 10 years for his part in the robberies.

Police said the men hired Washington cab drivers on Febraury 17 and again February 19 to drive them out to Fairfax County. They stopped the cabs at a desolate spot, police said, yoked the drivers and escaped with a total of $136 from the two cab drivers.

Both men pleaded guilty.

Boudoir Highlife Told in Suit

An afternoon performance of boudoir highlife which was rudely interrupted by the sudden entrance of the girl's mother was described in District Court yesterday by a 34-year-old secretary.

Wiley

The girl was Miss Camille Nowicki, who is suing Harvey Washington Wiley, jr., 37, for $150,000 in a breach of promise action. Wiley's late father, Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, was responsible as chief chemist of the Department of Agriculture for most of the present pure food and drug laws.

Miss Nowicki, who is on the secretarial staff of Senator Ball (R., Minn.), testified that she and Wiley were together one afternoon in December, 1945, in her apartment at 1741 Laniel pl. nw.

"Mr. Wiley had insisted on my having relations with him," she said, "and then my mother came home unexpectedly at about 3 o'clock.

"I was very much distressed. I was afraid to open the door. When I did my mother said an awful lot. She bawled us out. She said she couldn't understand how we could do such a thing.

Said Marriage Impended

"Mr. Wiley told my mother not to be excited; that we were going to be married in January and that we had been engaged since October."

Wiley, who as a youth was known as the "best-fed boy in America," had to answer a few other questions, the tall, slender, red-headed secretary continued.

Why hadn't the mother been told about the impending marriage?

"He told my mother," said Miss Nowicki, "that it had been solely because his mother was oposed to his remarriage."

And why was the marriage being delayed until January?

"He said," said Miss Nowicki, "that he had to get permission from the OPA to buy tires for his taxicab so we could drive to Florida on our honeymoon; also that we needed time to find an apartment and that my vacation was not due until January."

A, B & W Line Losses Cited At Hearing

Fare Hikes to Provide $526,000 Additional Revenues Are Sought

Fare increases proposed by the Alexandria, Barcroft & Washington bus line would provide additional annual revenues estimated at $526,000, R. T. Mitchell, vice president and assistant manager, told ICC Examiner Henry C. Lawton yesterday.

A hearing on the company's petition for interstate fare increases will be resumed at 9 a. m. today, when Mitchell is scheduled to be cross-examined by Lester R. Conley, representing the Arlington County Board and Public Utilities Commission, three civic groups and five individuals protesting the proposed increases.

Operating Losses Cited

Earlier yesterday, Beverly C. May, general mnaager of the company and son of R. L. May, founder, presdient and holder of 63.2 per cent of the outstanding stock, declared present fares would mean a loss of $163,456 for 1948. Average operating losses now are 2½ cents a mile, he said.

The petition before the Interstate Commerce Commission would increase present 10 cent fares between District and Virginia points to 15 cents cash or tokens costing 12½ cents. Use of the 12½cent tokens in the 15-cent cash fare zones, as allowed now, would be discontinued.

These increases would provide $220,000 more in annual revenue, according to Mitchell's estimates.

Other Sources Outlined

Another $254,000 in added revenues would come from proposed increases in intrastate fares, which will be asked in a petition to the Virginia State Corporation Commission at the conclusion of the ICC hearing, the officials said. Present 5 cent fares would be raised to 10 cents or 7½ cent tokens, while riders now paying 10 cents would pay 15 cents or use 12½ cent tokens.

A third source of new revenue desired by the AB&W would involve discontinuing the present tickets sold at 3 for 25 cents for rides between the District and the Pentagon, as well as the $1.60 book of 12 rides which allows transfers between AB&W buses and Capital Transit Co. transportation. The AB&W, which has appealed an ICC examiner's recommendation to continue present fares, would realize an added $52,000 in revenue if their petition for a straight 10-cent cash fare only is allowed, Mitchell said.

House Sends 9 D. C. Bills To Senate

Measures Include Year's Extension For Washingtton's Day Care Centers

The House yesterday passed nine District bills in 18 minutes and sent them to the Senate. The bills would:

1. Extend Washington's child day care center program for another year to June 30, 1949. Money for the progarm would have to be appropriated later in a separate bill.

2. Sharply increase penalties for sex offense involving children, and authorize treating sex psychopaths in St. Elizabeths Hospital.

3. Tighten the regulation of optomery in the District and classify it as a profession.

Would Modify Franchise Tax

4. Remove the District's 5 per cent franchise tax from the income of out-of-town firms which do not have offices or agents here.

5. Let the Protestant Episcopal Cathedral Foundation here increase the number of its trustees from 15 to 30.

6. Permit the Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Archbishop of Washington, to act as a single member corporation for handling business affairs of the Catholic Church here.

7, 8, 9. Give the District Commissioners authority to make necessary arrangement for the presidential inaugural ceremonies next January, and permit appropriating $37,100 for the expense.

Franchise Bill Revised

Only the franchise tax change has cleared the Senate. House revisions in the bill sent it back to the Senate for review.

Meanwhile, the Senate approved and returned to the House a bill to let casualty and other insurance rates in the District be fixed without regard to the Federal antitrust laws. The legislation is similar to State revisions in their insurance laws following a Supreme Court devision that insurance was interstate commerce when conducted across State lines. The House has passed the bill, but technical changes by the Senate sent the bill back to the House. The House could accept the changes or send the measure to conference.

In another decision, a House Education and Labor Committtee formally reported the bill it approved last week for authorizing voluntry admissoins to St. Elizabeths Hospital.

Progress Made On Rule Bill, Dirksen Says

Representative Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.) said yesterday he hopes the House District Committee can reach a final vote on the Washington home rule bill Wednesday.

Dirksen, chairman of the committee, said the group has made "good progress" in reviewing the bill during their second executive discussion of the 173-page measure yesterday.

He said the committee had completed discussion of the points of "high controversy" with the possible exception of whether the right to vote for the proposed Washington City Council and elected school board should be based primarily on residence or on legal domicile.

The bill now makes residence of a year a major qualification for voting in the council and school board elections, and also in the proposed referendum by which citizens here would have final say on whether the home rule bill would take effect after passage by Congress.

A main idea of the residence qualification is that Federal employes here with legal domiciles elsewhere could take part in the home rule local elections here without losing voting rights in their states.

Some committee members favor limiting voters here to those who are legally domiciled in the District. The bill already makes legal domicile a basic requirement for holding elective District office and for voting for the proposed District delegate in the House.

Wednesday's meeting on the home rule bill will be an executive session at 10 a. m. in the District committee room, 445 Old House Office Building.

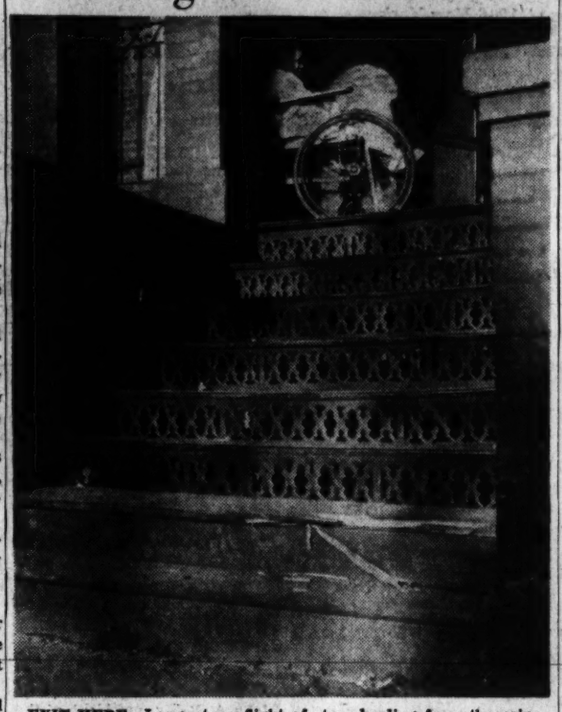
Traffic Light Timing Attacked By Trade Board

Two of Washington's biggest traffic problems are poorly timed traffic lights and a lack of bypass routes, the traffic committee of the Board of Trade declared yesterday.

The committee underscored these among 10 items on which 52 members answered questions in a poll. Replies to the rest of 33 questions put to the committee will be announced tomorrow. The questions are in a booklet, "Making Better Use of Today's Streets," prepared by the United States Chamber of Commerce.

District traffic officials were praised for traffic signs and special devices for turns at congested intersections.

Crippled Children's Building At Gallinger Is Criticized



EXIT HERE—Long, steep flight of steps leading from the crippled children's building at Gallinger Hospital

CROWDED—Youngsters who are able to get around eat from a small table in the corridor on the main floor

By Adrienne Tassler
Post Reporter.

The Fire Marshall has been asked to rule whether the Crippled Children's Building at Gallinger Hospital is a fire hazard.

The request came from Kimball Sanborn, a member of the staff of the Senate Appropriations Committee, who made a spot tour of the 100-year-old structure last week.

That the building, which houses 37 youngsters—many unable to walk—"is not wholly safe from the standpoint of fire" was acknowledged yesterday by Dr. Alvin R. Sweeney, superintendent of Gallinger.

"We have to be on constant guard," he declared. "That's one reason we don't use the third floor. There are certain hazards which can be corrected but the cost would run to $10,000, which we don't have."

Dr. Ella Oppenheimer, who, as chief of the Health Department's bureau of maternal and child welfare is responsible for medical treatment for Gallinger's crippled children, said:

"I understand there are certain things that need to be done but certainly I have never been informed that there is any hazard."

Sanborn, in his surprise visit last Tuesday morning, found that the Crippled Children's Building was "inadequately staffed," that it "was not too clean" and that the food served patients "wasn't exceptionall palatable." He blamed "mismanagement" and contended "the children deserve a little better."

Dr. Sweeney said the building is "as well staffed as any place in the hospital," but Supervisor Pauline Edlin said, "I'm making ends meet—and that's all."

Both claimed inadequate space and expressed the hope they could get a new building. Congress has several times turned thumbs down on pleas for funds for a new structure.

A reporter, touring the building, found the construction poor for a hospital, the premises not dirty but hardly clean and the space inadequate for all the needed facilities.

The first floor has three stairways for exits but each has more than a dozen steps. A ramp was recently installed adjacent to the front staircase to make it easier for wheel chair cases to descend. There is a fire escape in the rear.

There are two staircases leading from the second floor to the first and an elevator, but the latter cannot be used in case of fire.

Doctors are quartered on the third floor because it was felt that this part of the building would be unsafe for children in event of fire. Cardiac patients, who usually are able to walk and cannot exert themselves are on the ground floor, and youngsters with missing are fractured parts live on the main floor.

The reporter visited a youth on the second floor who lay in bed with a small tubein the left nostril—feeding him oxygen. There was 4-year-old Patsy, in a crib on the main floor, who lay in a cost because she had an operation recently for tuberculosis of the spine.

Play space within the building was nil, but somehow the youngwas nil, but some of the youngsters were permitted to frolic on the wide lown. Kids sat on their beds playing and others tossed jacks on the floor.

Some children strolled through the corridores for amusement and many of the youngsters ate their dinner on a small, battered table in the hall. There is no dining room. There is a small library, but it is only open once a week for lack of personnel. There is also a classroom but it is small and has only four desks and chairs for students.

Food, except for breakfast, is prepared in the central kitchen at Gallinger and sent over to the Crippled Children's building. Breakfasts are prepared in kitchens on the premises that are small, badly ventilated and contain poor equipment.

In some of the rooms, each of which contains about five beds, the windows were dirty and the floors cluttered. However, generally the appearance was one of untidiness rather than of filth.

The youngsters seemed happy and the personnel kindly and energetic.

2 Quadruplets Die, Other Cling to Life

The quadruplets—one boy and three girls—were born 10 weeks early to Anne Borg, 28, and her husband, Joseph, a 28-year-old auto worker. The mother was reported doing well.

Competitive Policies of Milk Group Defended

Efforts to Wipe Out Competition Called 'The Very Purpose' Of a Co-Operative

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Attempts to wipe out milk marketing competition, described in the alleged milk trust conspiracy here, were "wholly within the law," it was argued yesterday.

Defense Attorney William E. Leahy declared in District Court that, "Elimination of competition is a perfect legal right of a cooperative (and) . . . the very end and purpose of a cooperative."

Leahy is counsel for Bruce B. Derrick, secretary-treasurer of the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association. In addition to Derrick and the association—which is a cooperative representing 1500 farmers—seven area dairies are named in the indictment.

Indictment's Dismissal Sought

Seeking a dismissal of the indictment, which alleges a conspiracy dating back to 1930 to suppress competition in milk sales, Leahy maintained that to be valid it must show not just "restraint of trade," but "unreasonable restraint of trade."

Through their very nature, he declared before District Court Justice Richmond B. Keech, cooperatives involve a certain amount of restraint of trade for the self-interests of members, which is recognized by law.

A legal indictment, he held, must show not merely "tampering with prices" necessary to cooperatives' operation, but an "unduly enhanced price . . ."

Neither "unreasonable restraint" nor "unduly enhanced prices" are involved in acts of the producers' association, "which has not conspired with anyone," he said.

Leahy spoke for 4½ hours yesterday, the second day of legal arguments in the case.

Replying to one charge in the indictment alleging that the Producers' Association in 1940 participated in efforts to drive Holbrook Farms Dairy into receivership, Leahy declared:

"You bet we did. . . . I hope we can run every price-cutter who causes the ruinous price-cutting of 1932-33 right into bankruptcy . . . that is our right under the law."

The Clayton Act of 1914, the Capper1Volstead of 1932, and other legislation, he said, gives the association immunity from Sherman Antitrust Act violation.

Because it is a "peculiar" industry—the Nation's largest industry—concerned with a product vital to health, he said, the one-billion-dollar -a-year milk industry has been given these special rights.

Leahy insisted the association is operating under the same methods now required in more than 20 States by Federal milk marketing orders.

Use of Excess Milk

Replying to charges that the cooperative refused to put excess milk on the market, diverting it to butter, cheese and other products, he said:

"Suppose we put the excess on the market. What would we charge for it—4 cents, 5 cents or 8 cents a quart? This would bring the havoc of ruinous price competition of 1500 farmers peddling milk at whatever price they could get.

"The District of Columbia is known nationally as having the purest milk in America. What happens then to these standards in a ruinous price war?"

If the Sherman Act has been violated, said Leahy, the "ordinary, common American sense of fair play would have dictated that action should have been brought in civil court . . . for these are some of the most respected businessmen . . . in the District."

Justice Department attorneys will answer Leahy's arguments today. The trial has been set for May 5, but a motion is pending to postpone it one month.

Gypsy Palmist, Son Bound and Robbed

A gypsy palmist and her 18-year-old son were bound and robbed of $500 in cash by six other gypsies in their apartment early yesterday.

Mrs. Lena de Metro, who lives at 1216 New York ave. nw., told police the group of one woman and five men entered her residence about 2 a. m., tied her and her son, Robert, to chairs and took the money from a trunk.

The de Metros told police the gypsy group, who escaped in a blue Cadillac sedan, are from Philadelphia. Some of them are related to Robert's wife, who left Washington around Easter, they said.

Unworried by Wires

High voltage wires don't frighten William James Green, 39, who was sentenced in Municipal Court yesterday to serve 30 days in jail or pay a $25 fine for hoboing atop a railroad train.

Charged with illegal riding on a Pennsylvania train Suday in the Benning yard, Gren said, "I know about those wires. They don't worry me."

He was referring to the 23,000 volt line that powers the road. According to railroad detectives, the wires at times were scarcely two feet from Green's head. That is the distance electricity can leap from the wires it was testified.

Luke, Md., April 25 (AP).—An explosive powder stcik wrapped in partially burned paper was found tonight at the control shed of the Luke water reservoir, police reported.

Police said the stick would not have exploded without a detonation cap, but could have started a fast-breaking fire if the covering paper had not burned out. Similar sticks were found within the past few days at the planing mill of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Co.

Matter of Money

Trade Board Finds School Plan 'Hitch'

As far as the Board of Trade is concerned, there is one hitch in the recommendation that the District spend up to 44 million dollars to modernize the school system:—

"Where is the money to come from?"

John A. Reilly, president of the local trade body, said he had referred the recommendation of the board's education committee to the finance committee headed by Maj. Gen. David E. McCoach, jr., former engineer commissioner, to find the answer to that key question.

"The education committee has gone all out for a school building program. Now it is up to the municipal finance committee to decide where the money is coming from," Reilly said.

The final decision as to whether the Board of Trade will favor the building program rests with the board of directors, Reilly said. The directors will meet as soon as McCoach completes his report.

The education committee study, undertaken at the request of Representative George Bates (R., Mass.), chairman of the House District Committee's revenue-raising subcommittee, calls for the building program to be financed through a five-year, noninterest-bearing Federal loan.

Three New Classrooms Accepted Formally

Three new classrooms on the second floor of the Bunker Hill Elementary School were accepted from the contractor yesterday by the Board of Education's committee on buildings and grounds.

The 12-room schoolhouse at 14th st. and Michigan ave. ne., was built in 1938, but only the 6 classrooms on the first floor were finished. Six years ago three other rooms were completed.

The new classrooms, finished at a cost of $60,018 by the contracting firm, Roystone, Grimm & Sammons, have light maple floors, indirect lighting and wooden lockers instead of cloakrooms.

Watergate Concerts Plans Are Given Up

No last-minute financial "angel" appeared yesterday and the National Symphony's hopes vanished for a Watergate concert season this summer.

"The men have been told they won't be needed at the Watergate," E. R. Finkenstaedt, orchestra association president, announced.

Asked what would happen if someone later turns up with the finances required, Finkenstaedt said if that developed soon enough the association could reconsider the issue, but he held little hope for such action.

Last year, the association suffered a $29,000 loss on the summer concerts. It would require $25,000 to back a six-week season ,and $15,000 for a four-week season, he said.

Meanwhile the association was more optimistic on its main music front, the winter season.

Through tonight's benefit performance at the new motion picture theater, ad other benefits to be given before the winter season, the association's $165,000 goal for that season "is practically assured," announced J. E. Mutch, association manager.

"Plans for the winter season," said Mutch, "are therefore being consummated." Some tickets for the premiere of The Playhouse, at 727 15th st. nw., are still available at the Symphony Orchestra office, 1727 K st. nw. Telephone National 8410.

Ruling Due Today In Worthington Estate Battle

Montgomery Orphan's Court is expected to rule today on which of two wives is the legal heir of the late Otis A. Worthington, Silver Spring real estate man.

Attorneys for Mrs. Mabel Worthington and Mrs. Naomi Worthington yesterday argued the case before the Orphan's Court in Rockville.

Mrs. Mabel Worthington, who had been separated from the realtor since 1936, was appointed administrator of Worthington's estate soon after he died April 18 without leaving a will. The second Mrs. Worthington, who said she was Worthington's wife at the time of his death, then filed a petition claiming to be the legal widow and asked the court to revoke its order.

Judge William Tyler Page of Orphan's Court said a written opinion would be handed down today.

Dr. Vaughan, Distinguished Surgeon, Dies

Dr. George Tully Vaughan, 88, retired chief surgeon and professor of surgery at Georgetown University Hospital and Medical School, died yesterday at Georgetown Hospital, which he had helped to found.

The distinguished surgeon, who lived at 1718 I st. nw., had been hospitalized since February, 1947, when he fractured his hip in a fall. He suffered a stroke Sunday.

Dr. Vaughan retired from his posts at the medical school, where he was head of the department of surgery, and the hospital, in 1933. He continued his private practice until 1943. He performed his last operation at the age of 84.

He also was formerly chief surgeon at Emergency, Providenee, St. Elizabeth's and Mount Alto Hospitals.

Born in Arlington

Born in Arrington, Va., June 27, 1859, he received his medical degree from the University of Virginia and Bellevue Hospital Medical College. H edid graduate work in surgery at the New York Polyclinic Hospital, Bellevue Hospital Medical College, the University of Berlin, Jefferson Medical College and Georgetown Medical School.

Dr. Vaughan became professor of surgery at Georgetown Medical School in 1897. The same year the Georgetown Hospital was established, and he was named chief surgeon.

For many years he also was surgeon for the old Tuberculosis Hospital and consulting surgeon at St. Elizabeths, the old Washington Asylum Hospital and the Veterans Bureau, now the Veteran Administration.

A veteran of two wars, Dr. Vaughan served as brigade surgeon with the rank of major in the Seventh Army Corps during the Spanish-American War. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Davies Entertain at Garden Fete

By Elizabeth Maguire

Spring beauty is concentrated in the garden of "Tregaron," home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Davies. Fountains play in the midst of a glen of white dogwood, and the long driveway winds through giant magenta azalea plants spaced with more dogwood. In front of the mansion a circular drive is banked with solid azalea in shades of pink and rose.

Guests at the tea given yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. Davies were ushed through the house and outdoors onto a terrace where they were received by their hostess. From the terrace one sees the slopes of the golf course which are bordered with a bed of pink and lavendar tulips on one side and white and yellow tulips on another. Sprays of white bridal wreath and delicate pink azaleas grow with the evergreens, and white dogwood dots the woods.

Residential, official and diplomatic society attended the garden fete yesterday. It was the second of two parties given by Mr. and Mrs. Davies.

Mrs. Julius Krug, wife of the Secretary of the Interior, poured coffee, dressed in Navy blue frock and tiny white straw. Mrs. Brien McMahon, who was costumed in black and white print with silver fox cape, poured tea.

The most striking costume at the party was worn by the wife of Mrs. Davies' godson, Mrs. Alden K. Sibley. Her grey taffeta dress was long, full skirted, with peter pan color, and she wore a bonnet of pale pink straw which matched her pink gloves.

Mrs. Augusto Rosso, wife of the former Ambassador of Italy, was there with, chatting with Senator and Mrs. Millard E. Tydings, and Mrs. Burdette Fitch with the Secretary of Commerce, Mr. Krug.

Others in the gathering included the Ambassador of Mexico and Senora de Espenose de los Montero, the assistant to the President and Mrs. John R. Steelman, Gen. and Mrs. Omar Bradley, Senator Owen Brewster, the Attorney General and Mrs. Thomas Campbell Clark and Senator and Mrs. J. William Fullbright.

Local Group Opposes GFWC Resolutions

Members of the D. C. Federation of Women's Clubs yesterday voted to reject two resolutions offered by the General Federation of Women's Clubs for passage at the Portland, Oreg., convention next month. After eschewing the motions of the national organization, the local group drew up substitutes and instructed their conclave delegates to push them.

The two resolutions proposed by the general federation and turned down by the District club are as follows: (1) Resolved, that the General Federation of Women's Clubs favors immediate reform of the Office of Indian Affairs, both as to policy and as to administrative organization, to the end that Indians may more satisfactorily, more quickly and more economically be enabled to achieve unrestricted citizenship, independent managemetn of their own affairs, and equal opportunity with American people; such reforms to assure Indians continuity of Federal policy; more decision-making at the reservation level with Indian participation; equality of standards of health, welfare, education and other services with those of surrounding areas; protection of land ownership rights; more benefits to the Indians themselves from congressional appropriations, and quickest possible release from Federal control; (2) the GFWC urges the Government of the United States to ratify promptly (a) the declaration of the "Internatoinal Bill of Rights;" (b) the covenant of human rights, the treaty which shall include the measures for the implementation of the International Bill of Rights."

Local federation members voted unanimously that the D. C. delegates to the Portland convention recommend that the general federation withhold action on the International Bill of Rights and the Covenant on Human Rights for the present time, because "these documents are not yet finished and we

Miss Barnes, World President Of YWCA Is Honored Here

By Genevieve Reynolds

Diplomatic and Supreme Court wives, club leaders and residential Washington society figuratively circled the globe together yesterday. Occasion was the Washington Young Women's Christian Association's annual luncheon held in the Mayflower Hotel honoring Mrs. Lilace Barnes of Chicago, first and only American woman to be president of the World YWCA; Mrs. J. Birdsall Calkins, president of the United States' YMCA and Mrs. Forrest Anderson, president of the National YWCA board.

Preceding the luncheon a reception was held with Mrs. Truman as guest of honor.

Mrs. Barnes, main speaker of the event, described the work of the YWCA in China, Japan and India.

"The YWCA in China lived with gallantry and effectiveness during the war," she declared. "Now it is carrying on with equal efficiency."

She told how hundreds of girls from the industrial area in Shanghai who lived in small, dark cramped rooms attended classes every night from one to three years in order to learn to read and write. "Those who came for three years not only learned to read and write but were taught citizenship responsibility," she explained. "The YWCA doesn't deal in politics but is responsible for teaching free people how to lead in their new role of active participation in community and political affairs."

Miss Barnes praised the leadership of the Indian women, but pointed out that the Indian YWCA of the future must be one of villages as well as of the big cities. "YWCAs in India must teach people how to vote in their new role as well as give practical immediate training in every day living," she said.

As for Japan, she said that she found many able, willing YWCA leaders there, a residue from the past. She revealed that the Army had asked the YWCA to train Japanese teachers so that they in turn could teach the value of the individual rather than the outward, superficial trappings of democracy.

The speaker called upon the women of the world to put aside despair and doubt. "Unless we can speak with conviction and passion for a better life there will be none," she asserted. "People if given a chance reach out for onenes with peoples.

"We all belong together," she continued, "not as idealistic fools but as children of one God." The delicate balance of the future depends upon disciplining noe's intelligence to think through differences.

Miss Mable Cook, executive directo rof the Washington YWCA, reported that 861,881 people came to the YWCA in 1947 for its program asd activities; that 64,182 participated in the health program and that some 51,000 took work in the adult education program.

Mrs. J. Howard Nichols, president of the Washington YWCA board, presided.

Among the guests at the head table who also attended the reception for Mrs. Truman were Mme. Koo, wife of the Chinese Ambassador; Lady Inerchapel, wife of the British Ambassador; Mrs. Andrews, wife of the Minister of the Union of South Africa; Signora

IT was all right to cut a class or two at Holton Arms Junior College yesterday. Occasion was a showing of French fashions by Pierre Balmain who was there in person to do the commentating. Pictured on their way to the show in the school's Little Theater are left to right, Miss Jenny Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Clark; Miss Winnie Allen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kent Mullikin and Miss Mary Ann Medaris of North Carolina.

Slim Skirts and Stoles Feature Balmain Show

NO MORE petticoats. Lots of narrow, slit skirts, high-riding waistlines, and stoles—(those long, slim strips of cloth or fur, draped over the arms and trailing to the hemline.)

That's one man's idea of fashion, 1949. He is Pierre Balmain, the French designer who is in town this week with 16 startling new creations. The gowns had their Washington debut yesterday at Holton Arms Junior College, where Mr. Balmain acted as commentator for the fashion show.

Strangely enough, Mr. Balmain has chosen to show his sophisticated collection to school and college girls on his current American tour. His reason, as explained yesterday, is because "I make clothes for young people—or clothes that make people look young." While he claims he is not making a junior or teen-age line, he apparently is interested in Young America's reaction to his clothes.

Practically all the costumes shown yesterday featured the long, slim, tapering skirt, minus padding or draping. He explained it was possible to walk in such garments, because they have been cut on the "half-bias." His jackets are tiny, the shoulders unpadded, the lapels drawn back to form a wide V-front.

It is hard to imagine an American college girl in one of Mr. Balmain's skirts. But the Holton Arms girls definitely approved. It is certain he has had few more enthusiastic audiences. The more elaborate the gown, the more the students liked it. And this, despite the fact that each and every one was clad in traditional school rainment—sweater and pleated skirt, a simple cotton frock, socks and flat-heeled shoes.

They saw lots of little fashion items that took their fancy. For instance, Mr. Balmain has done some tricky things with "fillips"—little ruffled appendages, attached to gloves which reach up under the sleeve of a jacket and appear to be part of the blouse. When the glove comes off, so does the fillip and you have a three-quarter length sleeves. False cuffs, complete with cuff-links, peek out from the sleeves of a tailored suit. It's a novel and inexpensive way to get that valuable touch of white to an outfit.

One of the shirtwaists had a bow in back rather than under the chin, and the girls adored a straw hat, with a complete detatchable cover of white pique. Two hats in one!

How can American teen-age fashions be improved? Well, Mr. Balmain think: our young set should wear more feminine and softer modes. "And wear simple things," he told his audience. "Real elegance mean simplicity and dignity."

Mr. Balmain will not tarry long in Washington. He is on his way to other dates with the juniors around the country. His appearance here was sponsored by Julius Garfinckel & Co.

Daughters of 1812 Oppose Change in Immigration Laws

Strong opposition to socialized medicine and relaxation of immigration laws was voiced yesterday by delegates to the fifth-sixth associate Council of the National Society, United States Daughters of 1812, now in session at the Shoreham Hotel. Action came in the form of several indorsed resolutions, following a speech by Representative Ralph W. Ginn of New York.

The Congressman expressed disapproval of "Federal Aid to Education" and socialized medicine. He gave as his reasons that 40 of the rich States could pay for their own educational programs, and that the money would not be equally divided among those that need it. Also he maintained that too much centralization of Government power destroys "private initiative."

Representative Ginn said that Mississippi, the poorest of the States, rejected the offer of Federal aid to education, preferring to leave the matter to the States.

The Council's motion on immigration stated that a determined effort is being made to break down our immigration laws and that the society, "for the purpose of protecting the interest of all citizens, opposes any relaxation or weakening of our immigration laws for a period of years."

The resolution expressing opposition to the establishment of socialized medicine in the United States, maintained that "pressure is being brought upon Congress to pass laws placing under Government control the health and medical care of the people, and that such an action would discourage research and individual activity on the part of members of the medical profession."

Other notions adopted included support of the project to restore the United States Frigate Constellation and urged voluntary contributions by chapter members; commendation for the Federal Bureau of Investigation and a call upon Congress to continue to appropriate sufficient funds for the development of the FBI programs; indorsement of Bacone College as an approved project (Bacone College is the only accredited school of collegiate rank exclusively for Indians in the United States and is financially supported by the National Society, Daughters of 1812.)

Mrs. Lane Schofield of this city, chairman, national memorial markers, reported that 14 markers had been placed on the graves of 1812 soldiers during the pas ytear.

would be indorsing contents of which we are ignorant."

Also passed was a resolution that a letter be sent to Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt, chairman of the U. N. Commission on Human Rights, urging that "equal rights" for both men and women be included in both the International Bill of Rights and in the Covenant on Human Rights. Convention delegates were instructed to have the general federation's resolution revamped to recommend the inclusion of the words, "The rights of men and women shall be equal in all fields."

Contending that the general federation's resolution on completely revamping the Indian Affairs Office "is too drastic" and objectionable to the D. C. federation members, a new motion was offered. The substitute, passed by a vote of 48-2, reads: "Resolved that GFWC urges the policy of the United States with regard to the Indian population should have as its objective the encouragement of Indians to assume full management of their own resources and affairs and full participation in American life, without being required to relinquish existing guarantees as to their inalienability on tax exemptions of their land and property; that the United States refrain from acting in any manner affecting Indian land titles without the consent of the Indians; that the United States reaffirm its historic pledge to assist the Indians in becoming educated and in adjusting to the ways of the white man by supplying health, welfare, educational and industrial opportunities, and that the Bureau of Indian Affairs organize its legislative and administrative programs and reorganize its staff so as to bring those objectives to early accomplishment."

Ask Anne — Suggestions for Softer Towels

Could you give me some suggestions for keeping clothes, especially turkish towels and diapers, from becoming harsh and stiff after being washed in an automatic washer? I have used a water softener all along, but that hasn't prevented the clothes from becoming stiff,
M. H. D.

Towels and diapers will be much softer if, before you hang them to dry, you will shake them very vigorously. By shaking when wet, extra moisture will be shaken off and the fibers are fluffed better than they can be after they are dry. Of course, hanging them out of doors in a brisk breeze will accomplish the same thing.

Where the top of our baby carriage was folded down when it was put away a few years ago, the fabric has cracked and the paint is peeling off. Is there anything we could get to repaint it that would hide or improve this? Or, is there a place where they make such things where we could get a new one? C.R.J., Jr.

You can improve the appearance of your carriage top by applying a thin coat of quick drying enamel. Open the top so that the cover is stretched. Brush away loose particles at the crease and dust. Apply the enamel and let dry. If you wish to have the top recovered, call Columbia 9611.

We have a standard three-piece set of maple furniture badly in need of new cushions. We have been to all the stores in the District trying to get replacements. We do not wish to have new cushions "tailor-made" because we found they were more costly than replacement cushions. So far we haven't struck "pay dirt." Can you give us a clue as to where they might be available? We would even go to Baltimore for them if necessary as the wood in the maple is in excellent condition.
G. J. W.

The best suggestion I would have for obtaining replacement cushions would be to look on your furniture for the name of the company which made it. This identification will probably be imbedded into the wood somewhere on the underside—or it might be on the cushions, underneath. When you have the name of the manufacturer, get in touch with a furniture store which will write to that manufacturer to find out if such cushions are available. One store with whom I discussed your problem can be reached by calling Franklin 3080. (Asking for the drapery department.) They have offered to try to get the replacements, if they are available, for you but could not say with certainty they could get them until they have the name of your furniture manufacturer.

Literary Notes

U. S. Book Fans Surprise Toynbee; Ickes Turns Down Free Copy of Farley's Story

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

ARNOLD TOYNBEE, most prolific contemporary historian, and his wife have been charming the Capital's literary cognoscenti lately. Mr. Toynbee, as everyone knows, has been turning out the multi-volume " Study of History," with the last tome due for publication in 1952. In the meantime he's tossed off "Civilization on Trial" though, privately, Mr. T. doubts whether he, himself, is making any progress toward civilization.

He's much puzzled, often entertained by our American habits. The professor is surprised, for instance, that anyone will go to the expense of buying his book just to get his autograph, surprised, too, at being asked so many questions because he claims to have written down every one of his thoughts.

His present wife, whom he married a year or so ago, is the former Veronica Boulter and has been his assistant since 1922. They jointly get out a Survey of International Affairs, which is published at Chatham House.

Sets Own Deadlines

PROFESSOR TOYNBEE'S writing technique is fascinating. He outlines his work in such detail that the actual writing, done in longhand, comes very quickly. It took him two years to complete the voluminous framework for "A Study of History." He sets his own deadlines, plotting years in advance when a certain volume will be finished. While immersed in actual writing, not outlining, he indulges in no recreation except long walks.

The Professor has a sense of humor, too, liked the New Yorker cartoon based entirely on a Brooklynese pronunciation of his name — thus "Do you know Toynbee?" "Coitainly."

Mr. Ickes Sizzles

HAROLD ICKES can usually be counted on for a spot of excitement even though he's leading such a contented pastoral life these days. Recently James A. Farley dispatched an autographed copy of his memoirs to the effervescent former Secretary of the Interior. The book had scarcely been unwrapped when it was re-wrapped, shot back to its sender with a sizzling note. Mr. Ickes, loyal to FDR, regards Jim Farley as a traitor, politically speaking, and will have no truck with him —not even via the printed page!

Names in the News

MURIEL KING, the tall, handsome, exceedingly accomplished New York dress designer, is off to Greece on an interesting assignment. She's to re-style Greek handiwork, embroideries and such, show them the American way of weaving, which will help Greek products sell over here. Getting women like Muriel to do constructive things toward rehabilitation is one of the State Department's smart moves. And, unfortunately, most of them are very little publicized.

DUNCAN AIKMAN, erstwhile Latin-American expert, who's been featured in The Washington Post editorials lately because of his sensible remarks about Bogota, is on the verge of publishing a new book. It's called "The Turning Stream," is about the U. S. A. in a vice-versa manner from that of John Gunther.

Though the Aikman brain-child is reported to be a killer-diller from the sales angle, the most exciting thing chez the Aikmans is a prize won by George McCann 3d. George is seven months old, the grandson of their maid, and recently his handsome physical "altogether" wno a $25 bond, a "gold" cup, in a contest at their church.

CARROLL REECE, the charming, intelligent gent who's heading up the G. O. P.'s current doings, has a most appealing sideline — which ought to go over big at the coming conventions. He plays the jew's-harp in a tentative, nostalgic way, soothing the wildest politico within earshot!

THINGS WE LIKE—The Palmer House chocolate ice cream at the Mayflower, the strawberry ice cream pie at the Statler. The ferocious hign at the zoo, "Lost Children will be taken to the Lion House." The sage political advice of Henry Ashmore (his picture is in the Saturday Evening Post this week), editor of Little Rock's Arkansas Gazette: "Don't have nothing to do with nobody with no banjo!" Banjo players (Senators O'Daniel, Taylor, Governors Folsom and Jones) stay 'way from this door! . . . Leslie Biffle's bow ties worn with his dinner jacket . . . Mrs. George Holmes' black straw pagoda chapeau . . . Lady Inverchapel's ruby centered diamond roses . . . The Lawrence Houston's dachshund, which had to be built up with liver and vitamin shots before undergoing a tonsillectomy.

Wedding Bells Ring

Brown—Johnstone

The marriage of Miss Mildred Ingle Johnstone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George D. Johnstone of Kilmarock, Md., to Howard William Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Brown, also of Kilmarock, took place April 24 in St. Patrick's Church. The Rev. John J. Russell officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was costumed in embroidered net. A tiara of tear drop pearls held her veil and she carried white lilacs and tulips. Miss Mary Margaret Brown, wearing a lavender marquisette gown and garden hat, was maid of honor for her sister-in-law. Mrs. Ramona Johnstone, another sister-in-law served as matron of honor wearing yellow marquisette. Both attendants carried purple lilacs and yellow tulips. Charles M. Farm Woman Whose Soldier Son Is Sending His Bride to Her, a Stranger Whom She's Never Met, Wonders How to Meet Situation

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My son, who is still in the armed forces, got married some months ago and now he is being sent to Alaska and will be gone at the time his wife Nora is to have a baby—in June or July.

He is sending her to stay with us, as he feels she shouldn't be all alone; and after the baby arrives he expects to get home for a month's leave before being sent abroad—or "shipped over," as he calls it.

He wants Nora and the baby to live with us until he gets back, in about a year, he hopes; and on his return he will get land duty. Then they can have their own home.

Should She Treat Girl as Daughter?

WE RUN a large farm and have a large modern home and we are willing to help them that much; but we have never met his wife and it will be like taking in a total stranger. I am wondering just how to treat her,—as we did our own daughter, who was with us when her baby was born? (Her husband was overseas, too.)

I will have my father here, too—an old man, 84, whose health is failing,—and as I am passing through the climateric, I am quite nervous, though physically well. I am sure I will try to keep things running smoothly, but mindful of the old saying, "No house is big enough for two women," I would appreciate your advice on how to handle the situation.

My daughter-in-law is quite young and doesn't know much about sewing, cooking or motherhood, I understand; but my son says she's very willing to learn. I hope to see your answer soon as she is arriving shortly. F. S.

Give Girl 'Place' In Family Picture

DEAR F. S.: Your letter was posted the first of the month and reached this office 20 days later, so I assume your daughter-in-law is with you by now; and I hope you received her as fondly as if she had been your son instead, but with an extra edge of sympathy, in view of her lonely awkward plight.

Forget the old saying, "No house is big enough for two women," and take as your motto the lovelier one, "A heart as big as all outdoors."

Since Nora is to be with you at least a year, make a real place for her in the home right off; and by a real place, I mean: 1. A room of her own, big enough (if possible) to accommodate the baby's things later, unless you have two adjoining rooms to spare for that purpose.

Win Her Heart With Good Will

2. A WORKING relationship to the household — routine chores suited to her condition and abilities,—agreeably clarified, so that she'll know how to be useful in terms acceptable to you, without overdoing or seeming to be a shirker. Caring for her room, setting and clearing the table, helping with the dishes, doing light cleaning, feeding poultry, gathering eggs, etc., as trained,—these, on regular schedule, would be fair; and a "lift" to her self-esteem in the circumstances if she is a stanch character.

3. Sensible proffer of leisure and privacy; kindly sincere assurance that she is to feel "at home," and that, with regular chores done, she may feel free to spend her leisure as she likes, either "to herself," in privacy in her room, or elsewhere about the house and grounds; or with the family in any sociability or town-trips it is planning, for church, movies, shopping, etc. In brief, respect her individuality, allow her marginal freedom of action, as a matter of course.

Unless you feel instant rapport with Nora, don't assume the familiarity of treating her as a daughter, since the strain of uncertain pretense in that particular would cause both to behave unnaturally. Rather accept her in friendly spirit and let your good will, from first to last, win her trust completely in the year ahead. M. H.

Mary Haworth counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interview. Write her in care of The Washington Post.

Murder Case Plea Denied By Va. Court

Richmond, Va., April 26 (AP).—Ralph H. Garner of Harrisonburg lost in the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals today his fight to be cleared of a murder indictment still hanging over him.

The court denied him a writ of habeas corpus to force his bondsman to bring him before the high court for a final determination of the indictment.

Garner's conviction of second-degree murder in the slaying of Frank C. Smith by a Rockingham circuit court was reversed by the Supreme Court last year. Mrs. Grace M. Smith, similarly sentenced, also won a reversal. She obtained a writ of mandamus and the case was dismissed by the trial court.

Twenty-seven other opinions handed down by the court included the reversal of the murder conviction of Louis Crockett by a Middlesex County Circuit Court jury in the shooting of Clifton Ward at Urbana August 30, 1946.

The court reversed an order of the State Corporation Commission approving "installment plan" purchases of fire insurance and upheld the Law and Equity Court of Richmond in the long-argued litigation of M. Osborne Jones vs. Galleher & Co.

The court ruled out an installment system of fire insurance purchases which had been approved by the SCC.

As advocated by the Insurance Company of North America and its associates, the plan would have permitted a purchaser of insurance to pay his premiums on a long-term contract over a period of several years. A discount under straight rates would have been allowed.

In another case the court upheld the Roanoke Hustings Court which declared unconstitutional a local ordinance levying a tax of $1 per hundred on real estate sales.

The case was that of the City of Roanoke against Harold Joseph Donckers, who had refused to pay the fee when he made a real estate purchase.

Md. Assembly Pay Increase Session Seen

Annapolis, Md., April 26 @.—A special session of the Maryland General Assembly this year "appears" to be necessary, Governor Lane said today.

Although no date has been set, the session is expected to be held late next month or in early June and a date may be set by Lane in the next two weeks.

A cost-of-living salary increase for State employee would be the main item of business. The next regular session will be in January, 1949.

Previously Lane had said he "assumed" a special session would be necessary if there were to be any increases in pay.

The Governor made no comment on reports that officials have recommended a flat 10 per cent pay raise for all State employes.

He said he is studying a recommendation that suplemental salary money be provided in a blanket appropriation rather than to individual State departments.

"The suggestion of the lump sum appropriation has been made. That suggestion is now being studied," he said.

Under the lump sum plan, it was expected some two million dollars would be appropriated for the Board of Public Works, to be allocated to State agencies for pay bosts.

The present payroll runs between 22 million and 23 million dollars annually.

VPI Student Drawns on Student Picnic

Radford, Va., April 26 (AP).—Calvin R. Groves, 25, of Remington, a student at Virginia Polytechnic Institute, was drowned late yesterday afternoon in New River near Prices Fork in Montgomery County.

The Radford life saving crew recovered the body early this morning after grappling for more than an hour. Groves was picnicking with other VPI students, started to swim across the river and about midstream called for help. Ethel Johnson, Culpeper, went to his aid but was almost drowned. Her screams were heard by Carl Landis, who lives nearby. He pulled the girl from the river.

Grundy Miners Held in Clash

Grundy, Va., April 26 (AP).—Practically all of the 166 miners charged with maiming in a single warrant issued here Friday have been arrested, Commonwealth's Attorney Isaac M. Lambert said today.

The maiming charge was lodged after a clash of union and non-union workers at a strip mine in which three persons were injured last Wednesday before 30 State tropers arrived. R. L. Gilliam, 54, one of the strip mine's operators, suffered a broken jaw, a fractured nose and cuts and bruises.

State Attorney General J. Lindsay Almond, jr., ordered State police to make a full investigation and suggetsed the possibility of invoking the State antilynch law's provision against mob violence.

Worker Buried In Excavation Directss Rescue

A workman directed his rescue yesterday from a sewer excavation cavein.

Trapped by dirt and stones for more than an hour, Urbano Ferandez, 44, of 805 6th st, nw., was dug out and taken to Gallinger Hospital with a possible dislocated hip.

The accident occurred when Fernandez went into a 10-foot excavation to examine a water pipe in the 4400 block of 3rd. st. se. A fellow-worker, Joseph Gage, 42, of 906 8th st. nw., heard a noise, and fiund Fernandez completely buried.

Gago began digging, and had uncovered Fernandez's head before firemen arrived to help.

Parents Denied Plea to Reopen Day Care Center

Eight parents yesterday lost their last chance to require the Board of Public Welfare to reopen the Grant Day Care Center.

It was closed last December 19, when the board deemed it was not being used fully enough. The parents, through their attorney Claude A. Thompson, asked District Court for an injunction requiring reopening.

When Justice Dickinson Letts denied their request, they appealed to the United States Court of Appeals. Yesterday, Justices Henry F. Edgerton, E. Barrett Prettyman and James M. Proctor dismissed the plea.

The court held that operation of the center is "plainly within" the discretion of the welfare board.

2 Men Injured In Plane Crash

Elkins, W. Va., April 26 (AP). Two men were in a hospital today suffering from injuries which attendants said they received in an airplane accident at Red House, Md.

They were identified as William D. Hill of Belington, Route 3, and Joseph G. Gower, 21, of Philippi, Route 2.

Gower said he rented a plane yesterday from Wilbur Simpson of Philippi. He added that Hill was a student pilot at Simpson's Field.

Gower said he did not know what happened, but a power company employe reported the ship struck a high tension wire.

Husband Slays Briide and Self

Clarksburg, W. Va., April 26 (AP). An oil field worker shot and killed his 18-year-old bride of a month last night and took his own life, State Trooper S. E. Trippett reported today.

Charles E. Doffelmyer, 27, of Clarksburg, hired a taxi driven by Leroy McWilliams and started for Doddridge County.

At Salem, he saw his wife in another taxi directed McWilliams at gunpoint to overtake it. McWilliams said he forced the Salem taxi off the road.

Thereupon, McWilliams told officers, Doffelmyer pulled his wife from her taxi and shot her. Then the husband got back into his cab and shot himself fatally.

The woman told police that Harding offered to take her home Sunday, but instead went to the municipal parking lot where he hit her with his fist and attacked her.

Nursery Rhymes Outmoded in Our Bright New World

Some children like "Farmer in the Dell." Others prefer "London Bridge Is Falling Down." Still others won't go to sleep until they hear "Rockabye Baby."

But 4-month-old Stacy Gonder (son of Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Gonder, 4834 MacArthur blvd.) has to be different.

Stacy's favorite jingle is "Dux, D-U-Z, Dux Does Everything."

It certainly does. It even puts the kids to sleep. No other soap powder can make that statement.

PIED TYPE DEPT.

Beatrice M. Hamlin of 1227 N. Taylor st., Arlington, Va., found this startling information in one of our afternoon contemporaries the other day:

"The House Armed Services Committee appears ready to give approval to a 10-through-25 draft plan."

VAGRANT THOUGHT

Dental Technician Martin Bridges of the United States Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md., muses:

"When our new Secretary of Commerce started his law practice, do you suppose he hung out a shingle reading 'Sawyer the Lawyer'?"

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

In an attempt to improve my handwriting, I have become interested in the Spencerian method of penmanship.

I dimly remember a book containing alphabets, instructions and exercises; but on inquiry at the book stalls I am told that there are no handwriting instruction books of any kind available—not even used ones. What do you suggest?

George O. L. Holmes,
3002 Franklin st. ne.

Dear George:

Our District Liners may be able to find some handwriting books in their attics.

But, judging by the letters which cross my desk each day, I'd say that penmanship is rapidly becoming a lost art.

There are scores of letters in my files which nobody in the office has been able to decode. And I couldn't check back with most of the writers, because very often the name and address were also illegible. Bill.

YOU CAN'T KEEP A GOOD MAN DOWN

The next time you get the idea that you must be a wonderful fellow to be able to bear up under so many adversities, think about this incident:

After the first World War, Mrs. R. H. Martin of 3016 Dumbarton ave. nw., was visiting at Walter Reed Hospital.

She noticed a dejected-looking amputee, and asked, "Why so blue, soldier?"

"Aw," he replied, "this used to be a good ward. But now they've got a lot of two-legged guys in it."

PIED TIME DEPT.

Wadsworth Likely of 519 6th st. nw. says that he heard the following announcement on WARL the other afternoon:

"Sixthirty, Arlington Sun time. Accuracy, reliability and service are the goal and purpose of the Arlington Sun. Correction, the time is 5:30 Arlington Sun time."

An understandable error. Just a slight mixup between daylight saving time and Sun time.

NEW YORK.—John Golden, the producer and songwriter whose hits include "Poor Butterfly," was asked by The Lambs Club to write a sketch for the forthcoming Lambs Gambol. This is a revue whose only competition is the show put on by the rival theatrical club, The Friars. Golden worked hard at writing the sketch—about the wonders of New York, where it's possible to see bits of China, Ireland, Syria, and the rest of the whole world for the price of subway ride around Manhattan. This was all in rhyme, and concluded with "It's the only ve-HIcle where they can take you for a Nickel" . . . The next day Mayor O'Dwyer announced the increase in subway fare. In requesting The Lambs to return his script so that he can make the necessary revisions, Golden wrote: "Mayor O'Dwyer must be a Friar.'

Franz Lehar, the author of "The Merry Widow," who has been living in Zurich ever since the collapse of Germany, is returning to Vienna . . . The New Yorker is writing a profile on Franklin D. Roosevelt jr . . . Ira Hirschmann's new book on Germany will be called "The Embers Still Burn" . . . Ingrid Bergman sang her own songs in "Arch of Triumph." She didn't want, or need, a professional singer to do the dubbing. She sang two songs for the picture, but only one was used. Both songs will be released by a record company.

How Byrnes Kept Reds Talking

By Drew Pearson

Thanksgiving Day, 1945, Jimmie Byrnes spent at his State Department desk, worrying. As Secretary of State and primarily responsible for United States relations with Russia, he didn't think he had too much to be thankful for.

J. F. BYRNES

The last conference with Molotov had broken off with no date, no plans, no provision for meeting again. The Big Three Foreign Ministers had rowed continually ever since VJ-Day, but Byrnes felt that if they kept talking at least there was continued hope. Besides he knew that the Russians, unlike American diplomats, relished hot arguments. To them, it was all part of diplomatic negotiation. Therefore, he thought it was important that these talks not be permanently broken off.

Finally Byrnes hit on the idea of taking advantage of a provision in the Potsdam agreement to call another conference and to that end drafted a note to Stalin.

The note reminded Stalin that at Potsdam it was agreed the Big Three Foreign Ministers were to meet in their respective countries, and that they had now met in San Francisco and London. However, they had not yet met in Moscow. If the United States, therefore, received an invitation to meet in Moscow, Byrnes wrote, it would be happy to accept.

Within a few days, Moscow cabled back inviting the United States and the British to meet there in December.

Keep the Diplomats Talking

The Moscow conference which followed did not bring all the results hoped for, and Byrnes was criticized by some Senators for Russian appeasement. However, it kept both sides talking.

That's one important thing to be remembered about any dispute—whether it be a threatened labor strike or a diplomatic negotiation. A good labor conciliator will keep both sides talking, for once they stop talking, they strike. And once diplomats stop talking, their armies start shooting.

At present, the Big Three Foreign Ministers have stopped talking—which is dangerous. One diplomatic feeler has come to the State Department from the Russians for a talk between Stalin and Truman, but the White House turned it down.

Asked by a White House visitor the other day why he hadn't been willing to talk to Stalin, the President replied to the effect that he wasn't going to lick anyone's boots. Only he used words even stronger.

However, with the United States wisely starting a vigorous rearmament program, we are in a position to keep our feet under the diplomatic conference table without bootlicking—especially since we have shown our strength in the recent Italian elections.

In the opinion of this columnist time is now on our side. The longer we can postpone war, the better chance we have of using the Marshall Plan to build a strong and friendly western Europe. So it may pay us to keep on talking.

Duke of Windsor

The Duke of Windsor, not as young as he once was, but almost as handsome, lunched with Senator Barkley, Leslie Biffle and other Democratic leaders the other day.

He talked, not about dancing and night clubs as in the old days, nor about cabbages and kings. Instead, the conversation covered the Italian elections, John L. Lewis and British coal production.

The Duke described the outcome in Italy as the most encouraging thing that had happened in a long time. Switching to coal, he was quick to rebuff John L. Lewis' criticism that British coal operators opposed mine mechanization.

"There is some mechanization in Great Britain," he said, "but most of our mines do not lend themselves to it because they are deeper and the coal seams narrower than in the United States. That makes the use of machinery difficult and more expensive."

The Duchess of Windsor was not at the luncheon. Her husband told Senators that he was looking forward to golfing on Long Island where he and Wally have leased a home near the Piping Rock Club.

Air Argument Continues

Secretary of Defense Forrestal got a rough going-over from Senators when he opposed the 70-group air program in a secret session of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

"I'm glad to hear that you fellows have finally made up your minds," remarked Senator Dick Russell of Georgia when Forrestal said he and Truman were agreed on 66 air groups. "I've seldom encountered as much inconsistency as the armed services have shown on this subject. They have had their representatives up on the Hill dozens of times with conflicting stories of what our military establishment should be."

"They haven't convinced me," declared Iowa's plain-talking Senator Wilson. "I'm still for the full 70 groups. If we're going to use these obsolete storage planes, then let's spend some money to make them up to date. However, depending on obsolete planes in these advanced times is like living in an old house. You can modernize it to make it more livable, but it's still an old house."

"The 66-group plan may solve our immediate needs," argued Senator Bridges of New Hampshire. "It may be all right for this year and next but it doesn't visualize the type of aircraft production we may be needing four or five years from now."

Only convert Forrestal made was South Carolina's able Burnet Maybank, who seemed won over to the 66-group compromise.

NEW Scientific Discoveries Used in Hair Experts' Exclusive Treatments Help You To GROW THICKER HAIR

R. W. FARRELL, Trichologist

Hopeless Cases Not Accepted

Hair Experts' Scientific Plan Allied with Nature's Functions!

Upon Nature's innate system of growth is based Hair Experts' specialized system . . . a plan that results in thicker hair NATURALLY grown and nurtured to full strength and virility with the aid of modern scientific formulae. First, the scalp is thoroughly and professionally cleansed of its dandruff or other disorders through special, gentle but effective germicides which penetrate below the skin surface to kill the source of the infection and then reopen clogged passages.

Then when the basic cause of the scalp trouble is routed, Hair Experts begin the rejuvenating treatments that start to show actual results within weeks.

Special Exclusive Laboratory Created Formulae Used ONLY by Hair Experts!

After energizing the papilla to action, and then creating a fertile "field" for that growth, Hair Experts' special formulae (scientifically created by and for them) stimulate the sub-scalp hair growth to normal, natural length, strength and thickness. Then sluggish blood circulation is normalized to flood the hair follicles with life-giving "food" for hair growth.

Delay Is Deadly! Fatal Follicle Shrinkage May Negate Any Treatments!

Once your hair begins to show these symptoms: excessive hair in the combings; weak, short hair; excessive dandruff; itchiness, etc., you can be sure that a scalp disorder is already well under way. Follicle shrinkage is fatal!

Once it has set in your chances for thicker hair is practically negligible! Come in IMMEDIATELY for a free, private scalp examination. Relax under our pleasant, professional treatments and care, and enjoy THICKER HAIR within a few months.
